

What Society is Doing

BY NONA LAWLER

MRS. FRANK KERR'S tea yesterday announcing the engagement of her sister, Delberta Sturt, and Charles Haddon Manners and Mrs. Guy Standifer's tea honoring her mother, Mrs. George W. Boschke of San Francisco, were among the larger events of the day. Before Miss Stuart's wedding, which is planned for September, there will doubtless be much entertaining, as she is a popular girl.

For this afternoon the Serbian relief benefit, which Mrs. Thomas Kerr is giving at her home at Riverwood, is of interest to hosts of society folk. It will be a "marketing party," with every conceivable delectable dainty, as well as fresh garden things, for sale in lieu of the inclement weather. Mrs. Kerr has arranged to have it on the veranda. Instead of the garden, as first planned.

Summer at Friday Harbor. Dr. and Mrs. Harry Beal Torrey will leave this evening for Friday Harbor, on the sound, where Dr. Torrey is taking a class of 12 students for research work at the marine biological station.

To Visit in New York. M. Christensen and his son, Victor Christensen left last night for New York city, where Mr. Christensen will attend the Castle school, and his son will resume his violin studies. Mrs. Christensen will join them at Chicago the latter part of August for the American National Dancing Masters' convention, of which Mr. Christensen is vice president. Victor Christensen will probably remain for the winter in New York to continue his music.

Miss Calbreath to Return Soon. Miss Eviline Calbreath, the talented young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Calbreath, who has passed the winter in New York, continuing her vocal studies, is expected home within a few weeks for the summer months. Miss Calbreath has passed the last four winters in New York, prior to which she studied in Germany. She is a clever pianist and violinist, as well as being possessed of a splendid soprano voice.

Mrs. Scovel Guest. Mrs. Carl W. Scovel of Portland, N. Y., arrived Saturday evening to pass the summer with her mother, Mrs. F. L. Kiehl, and her sister, Mrs. J. C. Elliott. Mrs. Scovel is accompanied by her son, Frederick Scovel. Mrs. King has invited guests to tea to meet her sister on Thursday afternoon.

San Francisco Notes. Notes from Sunday's San Francisco Chronicle, which are of much interest: "Mrs. J. Leroy Nickel will chaperone a party of young people over the Fourth of July at Del Monte. The number will include: Misses Gertrude Hopkins, Lealie Miller, Aracelin Scherwin, Ruth Zelle, Mary Louise Black. "Miss Barbara McKezgle of Portland, who is on her way to the city, will also be in the party. She will arrive shortly from the north, and will be the house guest of Miss Nickel.

"Concluding a delightful visit of several months in Redwood City, Mr. and Mrs. Arno Doseh and their two children left last week for New York en route to Europe. They expect to be absent during the next year, and will take an apartment in Paris. "Mrs. Doseh passed a portion of last year in that city with her aunt, Princess Poniatowski. Miss Etel Mary Crocker, who is also a niece of Princess Poniatowski and a cousin of Mrs. Doseh, is in the French capital with her aunt.

"While here, Mr. and Mrs. Doseh have been the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Sperry. "Mr. Doseh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Doseh of this city, and on his return from Europe a year ago he visited for a month or so with his relatives here.

Corinthian Social Club Dance. Corinthian Social club will give a shirtwaist party at the Oregon Yacht club Thursday evening. The party will be cards and dancing. Committee has made elaborate plans for this party. All Masons, members of Eastern Star and friends invited.

Picnic Postponed. St. Ann's society has postponed its annual picnic, which was planned for tomorrow at the Oaks park, owing to the weather.

Home From East. Mrs. James E. Davidson and her little son have returned from an extended eastern visit.

Society Notes. Mrs. W. S. Fortimer of Portland is at the Banff Springs hotel, Banff.

Mrs. John M. Mann, with her son, Maurice Mann, left last Saturday for Gearhart, where they will remain for the summer.

Miss Cora Rasmussen of Everett, Wash., who has returned home after passing several weeks' visit at Portland.

NATIONAL GUARD NOTES

Women Left at Home Can Help in Many Ways. Work for the Women.—There's plenty of work to be done by the wives and mothers and sweethearts of the officers and men of the Third regiment, O. N. G. "We need the active help of the women," said one of the company commanders. "I have a sergeant in my company going to the front with us who leaves two little children behind and not a soul to look after them. There is a private in my company who leaves a wife and child, and they cannot subsist a month on what they have. The women of the Third can find a score of cases needing assistance, and they can secure the assistance needed, where we could not. The wife of a noncommissioned officer at the Army last night said: "I want so much to help and I would like to work with other ladies of the O. N. G. to help. Can't The Journal call us together or let us get together to do something?"

Battery A Made a Hit. Yesterday morning Lieutenant G. W. Stevens secured the use of an empty store near the corner of Washington and Fourth streets for the use of the 30 men and a field gun. Jennings' furniture store sent over two tables and a desk and the recruits began to come in rapidly. The crowd blocked the sidewalks. The 18 men wanted to complete their organization were secured in three hours and then five more, and still they come. Last night there were 140 signed up. The battery will take up to 182 men, but the requirements are 155. "We are on our way," telegraphed two members of the battery from San Francisco. It is supposed they are on one of the steamers coming up the coast, and probably working their passage.

"War Baby" to the Front. When the Second Oregon was en route to San Francisco to take ship for the Philippines, Captain John L. May was given leave of absence for a few hours to be at home during a very important event, and when he rejoined his company at Roberg's, he announced that Dewey May was born. Dewey May is now a big strapping young Oregon lad and a member of the machine gun company under Captain Frank O. Tabbot and his father is Lieutenant-Colonel of the Third regiment now going to the front. "It shows how old we are getting," said a veteran of the Second Oregon, as he smiled into the face of Colonel May and the "Spanish-American war baby" standing in uniform beside him.

Officers Complimented.—Compliments on the prompt mobilization of the troops are being extended to the adjutant-general, George A. White, and his staff. Very little sleep was taken by any of the officers, both commissioned and noncommissioned, from the time the call was made last Sunday night until the companies began to move out of the Army. The entire forces called will be under canvas tonight at Clatskanie, 66 hours after the call was received. He Is Some Cook.—Charles C. Smith, cook of Company C, promises to come up to his title of chief of all the cooks of the Third, according to the members of that organization. "He can make a tenderloin out of a piece of shoe leather, and his biscuits are bet-

Beauty Chat

Keep Cool. WHILE women who are annoyed by excessive perspiration suffer in cold weather, their affliction is naturally more pronounced during the summer. It is not unfortuitous when a deluge of moisture escapes through the pores of the skin. Excessive discharges from the pores have disturbed the equilibrium of more than one woman. Mountains of powder have been exhausted in efforts to overcome the annoyance.

A woman is never at her best when she looks hot and sweaty. In the feminine world there is a general battle against perspiration throughout the summer. It is not pleasant to appear "fat and greasy"—nor can enjoyment be one's portion under such conditions. The health would soon be impaired if the pores did not perform their functions. Beauty would disappear if the poisonous substances of the body were not thrown off and if the skin were not kept moist—but there is such a thing as an "excessive" flow of perspiration.

In the summer the skin requires a great deal of moisture to assist it in opposing the effects of the heat. If the flow of perspiration did not increase, then the skin would soon become dry and ugly. Certain organic and physical disorders produce "sweats." Under such circumstances, the advice of a physician is needed, but there are several ways in which women can keep the flow of perspiration in normal volume even in hot weather.

You have no doubt noticed that exertion has a tendency to increase the moisture of the skin. Undue haste and mental disturbances have a similar tendency. If you engage in outdoor sports, you can expect to sweat and not perspire in moderate form. If you do not perspire under such conditions you had better cease exercising until you ascertain what is wrong with you, but when exercising you are so dressed that it is not bothersome to perspire. And if your mother ever made," said one of the non-coms. "He makes strawberry short-cake out of beans and things and his coffee is the limit for being just right."

You take a good sweat under such conditions you are less likely to perspire when your muscles are relaxed. This is one way to avoid excessive perspiration—by taking an occasional good sweat.

It is when you are dressed in your best and desire to appear trim and neat that beads of perspiration most annoy you. It seems to me that women and girls who exercise freely each day, and thus keep their pores open and their weight normal, have the least difficulty in looking cool and natural when they are not exerting themselves.

Relief is found in bathing, and this is a form that is naturally very popular. A hot bath cleanses the skin and opens the pores to permit the skin to be well drained. A cold shower has astringent qualities which close the pores and prevent an excessive flow of moisture.

Women who perspire very freely should make liberal use of powder in the summer, but they ought to exercise the greatest care in preventing it from clogging the pores, for such a condition operates against both the health and beauty.

The women with the best complexions perspire freely, for the pores of their skin are open. It is worth while remembering that you are more likely to gain a good complexion through perspiring than through a lack of moisture for the skin when it is in contact with the heat of the sun and wind. It is not likely that you will go through the summer without failing to perspire. If you do so, you had better see a doctor at once. One's diet has a good bit to do with the amount of moisture thrown off by the body. Follow a simple diet. You do not require as much food in the winter as in the summer. Avoid stimulants and stick to water with a temperature that is within reason. Do not be fussy. Do not become excited. Take things easy—keep cool mentally and your body will be at a similar temperature.

Ashland Getting Some Real Thrills

Rampant Steer Breaks Loose During Taking of Movies to Advertise Bond. Up and Tress Number of Witnesses. Ashland, Or., June 21.—Cowboys in gaudy attire dramatizing helpless captives in the end of 40 foot lariats and with citizens in pursuit banging away with real forty-fours, are common sights on the streets of Ashland. The reason is the taking of motion pictures of round-up activities which will be used to advertise the coming Rogue River round-up, the biggest feature of the Ashland Springs dedication celebration on July 4, 5 and 6. Some real thrills resulted when a wild steer broke away and chased several persons up trees.
