

MAN IS A PROUD GUARDIAN OF 19 BOYS UNDER ARMS

All of the Youths Are Either Enlisted in the Army or Navy of United States.

COUNTY ADVANCES FEES

Appointment of Guardian Made Necessary if the Boy Is Under the Prescribed Age Limit.

The "family" of Samuel H. Pierce, deputy district attorney, is rapidly increasing these days.

Under former rules when a boy under 21 years of age wishes to join the army or navy, before he can do so he must have the consent of his father or of his guardian.

The appointment of guardian is made in the usual way by the county court. The county itself has been advancing the fee necessary for filling the papers.

Nearly all of the 19 boys are American born. Some were Portland boys and others had been here but a short time.

Mr. Pierce has received letters from some of them, telling of their early army experiences.

Harold L. Dixon, who enlisted May 26, wrote from San Francisco that he was in the hospital, suffering from poison oak, and he was counting the days until he would be out and off for the Mexican border.

The boys for whom Mr. Pierce has been named guardian are: Carl Stanley, James E. Richards, Harold L. Dixon, Howard Manning, Bruce A. Oester, Joseph Parent, Grant D. McFarland, William F. Rasche, John Paul, William John Kay, William I.

BRITISH ATTACK ON GERMANS IS PART OF DRIVE

Petrograd as to operations on the Russian front is taken by critics here as the best evidence that the Russian drive is proving serious to the Teutons. Especially this is believed to be true in the Bukovina sector where practically nothing has been told of the fortunes of the army of General Pflanzner which is fleeing along the borders of Roumania into the passes of the Transylvania Alps before the victor's advance.

Public in Petrograd that parties of Russian cavalry have already concentrated in Transylvania have not been confirmed by further information, but the secretary of the Russian war office as to events in Bukovina has led to a belief here that masked movements of big troops units are in progress which will stir compel the surrender of Pflanzner's forces or force them into internment in Roumania.

Success of the Italian offensive in the Trentino against the hard-pressed Austrians, and the doggedness with which the Latins are following up their success, was believed here to be having an effect on Roumania and Greece, which, coupled with the Russian victories on the south of their line, may once again make the Balkans a center of war news.

It is unofficially reported in dispatches from Bucharest that Bulgaria has closed the frontier against Roumania, and that the latter country, at least, seems to be on the eve of declaring for the allies. If this was done, there is little doubt that the British, French and Serbians in garrison at Saloniki will move with Roumania against the Bulgars.

Harassed by the Russians and Italians, Austria would be unable to move to the aid of Bulgaria, and Czar Ferdinand once beaten, there would be a strong probability that the world war might be finally settled on the plains of Hungary.

Property Damage Is Considerable and Crops Are Hurt or Helped as Case May Be.

Walla Walla, Wash., June 28.—(P. N. S.)—The life of a 10-year-old boy and serious property damage was marked up today against the storm which has raged for the last two days.

Dick Reser was staying at the home of his uncle, Dick Utter, north of Prescott. He was working in the fields when storm waters swept him five miles away, where his body was found. The Utters climbed a hill. Their house and barns, horses and cattle, were washed away.

Following Monday's storm on Cottonwood creek and upper Mill creek, yesterday brought heavy rains in many parts of the valley. At the Nelms ranch, near Lowden, there was a cloudburst, and for a time it was thought two workmen in the fields had been lost. They had been able to reach high ground, however, and arrived safely at the farm house after several hours in the pouring rain.

Prosecuting Attorney Earl Benson, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Wierk Jr., arrived in the city yesterday afternoon from the "Little Meadow" in the Blue mountains, where they went Sunday. The party had been cut off by washes in the road, and were unable to telephone because the wires were down. It was feared here yesterday morning that the party had met with a serious accident and a searching party had been sent out.

Crops Picking Up. Kennewick, Wash., June 28.—The abundant rains of the last few days have put new life into the crops. Wheat in the Horse Heaven country is looking fine. With the exception of a few localities, there will be a good crop this year, although not nearly so good as last year. The early rains and the cool weather has brought out the grain that was not injured by the extreme cold weather of last winter, in fine shape.

Hail Near Eugene. Eugene, Or., June 28.—A hard hail storm in the Cloverdale country and other sections of the county east of Eugene, in the foothills of the Cascade mountains, yesterday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock, did considerable damage to growing crops. Hail stones fell as large as cherries, say the farmers in that locality, and the hail in places piled on the ground three and four inches deep. None fell in Eugene or in this part of the valley.

Rain here has been of benefit to the flax crop, report the growers.

Highway Washed Out. Wamic, Or., June 28.—The hillside grades of the new highway leading into the Tygh valley country have been Cherries Hurt; Wheat Helped. The Dalles, Or., June 28.—Fruit growers are complaining that the heavy rains are splitting the cherries. They are picking practically, but the heavy rains are splitting the cherries. It has been raining intermittently for four days. The wheat men are alate with prospects of a wonderful fall crop.
