

CARRANZISTAS HAVE LIVELY FIGHTS WITH VILLA AND INDIANS

Past 24 Hours Also Brings News of Two Raids Along the Mexican Border.

THREE AMERICANS KILL 14

Rancher Perrine and Two Cowmen Successfully Try Conclusions With 40 Carranzistas.

By H. H. Stanbury. El Paso, Texas, July 8.—(U. P.)—The developments of the last 24 hours in northern Mexico include two raids on the border, hard fighting between Villistas and Carranzistas in southern Chihuahua, and the massacre of 14 Carranza soldiers by Yaqui Indians in Sonora.

Bandits crossed the Rio Grande near Houllas and attacked the property of the International Mines company. Three American employes of the company are believed to have been captured. The others are unaccounted for.

Mexicans, believed to be Carranzista cavalry, crossed the boundary at Anapra, seven miles west of El Paso, raided the ranch of Tom Perrine and started away with 46 horses. Perrine, with Jesse Adams and Alex Rivera, gave chase and engaged the Mexicans, killing 14 in a running battle.

Mexican Consul Andres Garcia and General Francisco Gonzales have received an official report of desperate fighting which is still in progress between the rear guard of Villa's army and Carranza forces under Domingo Arrieta. Villa's main army is admitted to be much larger than previously indicated.

Carranzistas Are Massacred. A force of Carranza soldiers and camp followers estimated at 200 men left to guard the Yaqui valley when General Estrada mobilized his forces to the north, are reported to have been massacred by Indians. The soldiers not killed by gunfire are said to have been burned at the stake.

The first information of the Houllas raid was received here in a telegram from John Denny, bookkeeper for the International Mines company. He made his way during the night of Friday to Marathon, which is the nearest telegraph station.

His message to the officials of the company in El Paso states that Mexican soldiers wearing the uniforms of Carranza attacked the American drivers of three motor trucks on Friday morning. This incident occurred just south of the border, along the road which extends eight miles to the Houllas Del Carmen mine. Definite information as to what happened to the three drivers is not yet known here.

Halter Was Narrow Escape. Later the Mexicans are reported to have crossed and attacked the properties on the American side. Among the Americans with the group on this side of the border is Carl Halter, a young mining engineer, who was captured in

MRS. ASTOR NAMES FLIER

Mrs. Vincent Astor christening the new naval hydro-aeroplane at the headquarters of the Second battalion, Naval Militia, Brooklyn, N. Y., July 1. The hydro-aeroplane was presented to the battalion by her husband, Vincent Astor (at left), who is a junior lieutenant in the outfit. It is interesting to note that in the Spanish-American war the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, father of young Vincent, presented a completely outfitted battery to the state of New York.

May with several others. Halter and his associates escaped at that time by overpowering their guards, who had been allowed to fall behind the main band of the retreating raiders.

Denny's message said he expected additional information from the scene of the trouble some time tonight. The details lacking are being anxiously awaited by the officials of the company here.

Reports of a fight near Anapra, N. M., caused consternation in El Paso. A flying squadron of the Eighth United States cavalry was rushed to the scene. Deputy Sheriff J. B. Kilpatrick and six other deputies also joined the pursuit. The surviving bandits escaped south of the international line.

Bandits Attack Perrine Ranch. A colored cook employed on Perrine's ranch, two miles west of Anapra, brought the first report to El Paso. He came here for ammunition and reinforcements. To General Bell he told his story.

About 2 o'clock this morning we were aroused by noise from the direction of the corrals. Mr. Perrine, Jesse Lewis and Alexander Rivera, his two helpers, grabbed rifles and ran out. About 40 Mexicans, all mounted, were driving horses out of the corral. They fired on Mr. Perrine and the other two, forcing them back into the house for shelter. The Mexicans drove the horses off toward the border.

"Mr. Perrine, Lewis and Rivera got horses and started for them shortly after dawn. He told me to hurry to El Paso for aid and ammunition."

Shortly after the negro had finished, Perrine called military headquarters on the long distance telephone. The ranchman was at Anthony, N. M., a few miles west of Anapra.

"We killed 14 of 'em," he reported. "We were not even scratched. It was the prettiest fight I ever had. They opened fire but their bullets passed high above us. We got off our horses and began firing, using the animals for protection. My first five shots brought down three Mexicans. Lewis and Rivera were getting along nicely. The bandits killed my horse, but I kept on firing."

"The Mexicans got enough of it in a jiffy. They left the horses and galloped across the border line. We counted 14 dead Mexicans after the fight."

Perrine formerly was employed as a border patrolman in the customs service. He is known in El Paso as one of the best marksmen in this country.

The official admissions from Carranza sources that the rear guard of Villa's army has been able to stand and fight a brigade of cavalry under General Arrieta is accepted as significant by American army officers. The information was received here from General Trevino at Chihuahua City by General Francisco Gonzales.

Villa Has Big Band. It is the official opinion that the forces attacked by Arrieta represented only the stragglers from the rebel army who remained behind to loot Jimenez after the main force had started for Parral.

The scene of the battle is just south of Jimenez. Reports forwarded to General Funston at San Antonio early today by secret service agents credited Villa with the control of a formidable force. He is said to dominate the situation throughout southern Chihuahua and the greater part of the state of Coahuila, where the greater part of the population regard him as the most influential leader in Mexico.

Johnson Is Ready to Become a Candidate. California Governor During Progressive Conference Expresses Willingness to Enter G. O. P. Race.

San Francisco, July 8.—(U. P.)—Governor Johnson this afternoon virtually announced his candidacy for the United States senate. He declared that if it seems necessary for him to make the race in behalf of Progressive principles he would do so.

His statement, which was made during the Progressive conference this afternoon, created a sensation. The governor in expressing his willingness to make the race said he would do so although the senate has no lure for me.

"My probable opponent is quoted as saying I have not enough money to make the fight. I have more than that—the confidence of the people."

Johnson's announcement was made during a speech in which he urged the Progressives to work with the Republican and Democratic parties to bring these two parties to the principles on which the erstwhile Progressive party was founded.

Act of Bravery Is Rewarded by Court. Yonkers, N. Y., July 8.—City Judge Beall on his way to court saw a young man dash into the street, grasp the bridle of a runaway horse and bring it to a standstill after being dragged half way across Getty square.

The judge ran out to shake hands and compliment the youth for his bravery.

"Thanks, judge," the man said. Then he laughed. "I hope you will remember this when you get me in court today."

He explained he was Frank O'Neill of 139 Vineyard avenue, and was on his way to appear for fighting in the street.

Judge Beall later suspended sentence.

Snake Coils Around Young Girl's Ankle. Point Pleasant, W. Va., July 8.—A wonderful display of nerve for a girl of 11 years occurred on the Prince Tompkins farm, near Albans. A little girl named Hartley, walking barefoot across the farm, stepped on a snake, which coiled around her ankle.

The child at first screamed in terror, but on looking down at her foot saw that it was a blacksnake. When she realized it was not a poisonous reptile she sat down and coolly uncoiled the snake from her ankle before the people at the house, who had heard her cry could reach her. The snake had coiled around her ankle so tight that it made very distinct depressions in the flesh.

Turks Continue to Drive Back Russians. Constantinople, July 8.—(U. P.)—The Turks continue to press back the Russian lines in the Caucasus and on the left wing have captured enemy positions on the Teboruk sector, the war office announced today.

Four hundred Russians were killed in a fruitless attempt to re-conquer the positions.

BECOMES CHIEF OF KAISER'S NAVY IN SPITE OF THE PRINCE

Admiral von Holtzendorff's Open Hostility to Prince Henry No Bar to Success.

IN ABSOLUTE COMMAND

Accepts High Post on Imperial Promise to Have Free Hand in Its Conduct.

Berlin, July 8.—(U. P.)—Admiral Henning von Holtzendorff, chief of staff of the German navy, and as such receiving a large share of credit for the German naval victory in the great North sea battle, attained his present office in September, 1915, not contrary to the wishes of Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, who has been stated, but against the recommendation of Prince Henry of Prussia, the emperor's only brother.

Prince Henry is ranking grand admiral and inspector general of the German navy. This is an honorary office, still one of great influence. When the war opened in August, 1914, Holtzendorff was in retirement like Hohenberg. The victor of the battle of Tannenberg, now the idolized field marshal of the German empire, had been allowed in time of peace to leave the army. He could not get along amicably with all of his superior officers. Holtzendorff retired because he dared to criticize Prince Henry's exaggerated ideas of discipline. The prince admired his mother's country although his subordinates were naturally deluged from showing disapproval.

Clashes With Prince Henry. Admiral von Holtzendorff, who commanded the German high seas fleet for several years, came in direct opposition to Prince Henry when the ranking grand admiral paid more attention to the ornamental side of seamanship than to actual efficiency. On a tour of inspection, if he found the brass fittings of the ship not as brightly polished as he thought they ought to be, he would order the man who had done the work brought to him and personally sentence him to solitary confinement. Holtzendorff was unable to get his way and he was allowed to retire.

Prince Henry declined to receive the salute of Admiral Holtzendorff when the two happened to meet, and when the emperor invited Holtzendorff to return to his naval duties, the admiral declined unless he were given the post of supreme authority where he would not be interfered with by Prince Henry.

No man in the German navy represented to the same extent as did Holtzendorff the ideals of legitimate warfare which the United States government was in September of last year insisting that Germany adopt.

Named Chief of Staff. The emperor cut the Gordian knot, actually by the country's highest in time of war, exercising that genius for choosing the right men for the right place which he has inherited from his grandfather. William I. Holtzendorff was made chief of staff with the imperial promise that he should have a free hand.

The admiral's father was president of the court of appeals in Gotha, where he was a school teacher. Full of vitality, grasping his school work without effort, he was full of boyish pranks and early gave indication of extraordinary ability in thinking and acting for himself. As a middle aged man he was, however, a distinguished citizen of Gotha, director of the Gotha Real Estate credit bank, a famous old institution.

Marties Wealth. In 1892, when he was 39, he held the rank of captain in the navy, and was captain of the minesweeper, the commander, later on to the staff of the maneuver squadrons. In 1895 he was sent to cruise in Chinese waters as captain of the warship Kaiser. His naval career came after his marriage. Inheriting several estates with his brother Arndt, younger than himself, the family was nevertheless poor. Arndt, Holtzendorff went into business and stayed there. He is now director of the Hamburg-American line at the main office in Hamburg.

Henning von Holtzendorff made a rich marriage. His wife being the widow of a millionaire by the name of Klötz. Her money made Holtzendorff financially independent, able to take his position at court and adopt the ways of a profession. He has no children of his own, and has adopted two girls belonging to his wife's family. They are the daughters of a writer, now dead, named Zitelmann—Frau von Holtzendorff's maiden name—the father's son de plume in German literature having been Conrad Telmann.

Rockefeller Enjoys Golf on His Birthday

Physician Believes World's Richest Man, Now 77, Will Reach Centenary Mark; Health Rules Followed Given. Cleveland, O., July 8.—(U. P.)—John D. Rockefeller, the world's richest man, observed his 77th birthday at his Forest Hill estate today by playing a foursome at golf with his "cronies."

Rockefeller, tanned, clear-eyed and vigorous, is in the best of health. Dr. H. F. Biggar, his physician for 25 years, and one of the golf party today, believes Rockefeller will live to be 100 years old.

These are the rules which John D. has followed for a quarter of a century to keep in good health: Never worry; don't acquire overweight; drink sufficient water between meals to have clear eyes and a pink skin; exercise daily; go to bed early; for sleep after sundown does one more good than sleep after midnight.

Militiamen Injured In Collision in Dallas

Score Hurt By Flying Glass or Thrown From Seats as Switch Engine Backs Into Troop Train.

Dallas, Texas, July 8.—(U. P.)—A score of militiamen were slightly injured tonight when a troop train bearing the Fourth Nebraska infantry collided with a switch engine in the Missouri, Kansas & Texas yards here. The troop train, drawn by two big engines, was just gathering speed as it pulled out of the station, when a switch engine with a long strip of freight cars backed onto the main track. The switch engine was derailed, holding up the troop train an hour and a half. All the injured were cut by flying glass or thrown from their seats. Most of them were from Omaha.

Mexicans Convicted Of Arson Conspiracy

Laredo, Texas, July 8.—(U. P.)—Captain Pezzot and two other alleged Mexican bandits, Cuevas and Solis, were found guilty of conspiring to burn the railroad bridge at Webb, Texas, June 11, and were sentenced to five years each in the state prison. Pezzot claimed he was a Carranza officer, working under orders of the de facto government.

FORESTS GIVE ROOM FOR MYRIAD GOATS TO FEED AND GROW

Over 50,000 Angoras Browsed Over National Woodlands During Year 1915.

CASCADES GOOD PASTURE

Care Needed in Handling Herds, but Returns in Mohair and Flesh Are Found Highly Satisfactory.

In connection with the effort to introduce the best methods of handling all classes of livestock on the national forests, a study of the goat industry has been inaugurated by forest service officials. In 1915 over 50,000 Angora goats were grazed on national forests in six states, mostly in the southwest.

The goats are grazed in bands of 500 to 2000, although the smaller herds are more common and feed mostly on brushy undergrowth. Sheds are necessary during the kidding season. When grown the goats have considerably more agility and courage than sheep and fight off coyotes and other predatory animals.

The goats are not allowed to spend more than one night at any camp and are handled in such a way that all the range is used but not over-grazed. In the national forests of Oregon and Washington, on the west slope of the Cascades, it is said that there are many areas of open brush land suitable for grazing goats. Such areas may be found on the Blunsliaw, Blakely, Crater, Timpanu and Santiam forests in Oregon, and on the Columbia, Rainier and Olympic forests in Washington. These areas would take care of from 20,000 to 25,000 goats and are easily accessible from railroad points.

The outlook for the goat industry appears at present to be very bright. While the big Angora goat has amounted to 500,000 pounds per year in the northwest, the Willamette valley in Oregon being the center of the industry in this region, the value of goats for meat is now becoming an important factor in the industry.

In southern Oregon a stockman was heard to remark recently that he could get $4.50 a head for all the goats he could drive to market. Mohair prices, too, have gone up from 5 to 10 cents per pound during the past year.
