

CHIEF WHITE ASSERTS DYNAMITER WILL BE IN JAIL IN TWO DAYS

Sure That Saturday's Outrage Was Planned by San Francisco Residents.

REWARD AGAIN INCREASED

Model of Infernal Machine Has Been Reconstructed From Fragments by Police—It May Prove a Clue.

San Francisco, July 26.—(P. N. S.)—An important arrest in the hunt for the perpetrator of Saturday's bomb outrage was made here this afternoon at the free clinic of Lane hospital, to which the captive had applied for treatment. The arrest was made by Detective Attorney Charles Fickert, Lieutenant Steven Bunner and Sergeant Charles Goff. The prisoner is now being questioned as to his movements on Saturday. His identification has not yet been established.

Acting Captain Matheson, who is in charge of the bomb plot investigation, refused to discuss the arrest at this time.

San Francisco, Cal., July 26.—(P. N. S.)—Announcement by Chief of Police David White that the police within two days would have the person responsible for Saturday's dynamite outrage in jail, created a sensation here today.

Chief White declined to go into details or to divulge any of the information now in the hands of the special police bomb squad, but he made his statement, but both he and Mayor Rolph, to whom he communicated his plans, were optimistic over the outlook. White declared that he feared the detective would lose the quarry if any hint of their plans leaked out.

Simultaneously, White announced that the total reward for the apprehension of the dynamiter whose bomb exploded but seven lives had been brought to $15,000 by an offer of an additional $1000 by a man whose name he could not reveal.

The success of Captain Duncan Matheson, head of the bomb squad, in reconstructing what he believes is an exact model of the infernal machine which worked such human havoc during the Saturday afternoon explosion, is expected to lead to the needed clue. Experts from the Philo and Hercules powder companies have examined Matheson's model and believe it is an accurate reproduction.

Chief White evidently has no faith in theories voiced in some quarters that the dynamiting may have been the result of a conspiracy formed in eastern cities to force the country to believe it was a local "job," and that the man or men who perpetrated it are still in this city. It is believed that the persons involved are already under close surveillance.

The strongest clue yet furnished was that brought by Newton Potter, owner of the Metal Welding Works, who believes the dynamiter purchased from him the container used to hold the explosive which was used in the bomb. Potter gave the police a minute description of the two men who made the purchase. He promised to give the police the model from which the container was made, and this is expected to prove of great value in running down the dynamiter.

THREATENING NOTES SENT TO A NUMBER OF SAN FRANCISCANS

San Francisco, July 26.—(P. N. S.)—Under direct orders from Washington, federal investigators not only in this city, but elsewhere are pushing a widespread independent investigation into last Saturday's bomb explosion at Steuart and Market streets, it became known today in advice received here from the national capital.

At the same time it became known that a mass of threatening letters are being copied and are being rushed to Washington for inspection by the government's expert hunters of plotters. This phase of the bomb investigation has revealed the fact that the San Franciscans were threatened in notes and on postal cards prior to the Saturday afternoon explosion, those warned against aiding the preparedness propaganda including:

Raphael Well, millionaire merchant (card received at his office), Well is now in France.

J. D. Grant of Burlingame and San Francisco.

Edgar S. Lewis, merchant.

Theodore Kyka, hand writing expert, was retained by the government to copy and examine the missives, it was learned. When pressed for a statement today, Kyka refused to discuss his connection with the inquiry.

The postoffice and of the investigation by the government was put in the hands of S. N. Morse, chief of the local postal inspectors. Those of the surviving victims of the bomb explosion today still hovered near death despite heroic efforts of surgeons and nurses.

Thomas H. Turnbull, the most dangerously injured, was unconscious this morning at Central Emergency hospital.

Mrs. Kingsley Van Lee, who was reported improving slightly yesterday, suffered another relapse and died this afternoon.

Miss Pearl Seeman, who is at the San Francisco hospital, was in the same grave condition today. This crisis has not yet passed, according to attending surgeons.

CERTAIN PRACTICE OF SELECTING JURORS IS SCORED BY M'GINN

"Confine Yourself to Man's Ability to Serve According to Law," Says Judge.

Because of the indisposition of Judge McGinn, presiding over the criminal department of the circuit court, the Clyde E. R. Wallace subornation of perjury case was again postponed today until tomorrow. Before postponement was taken, however, the work of selecting a jury was completed.

Judge McGinn directed the attorneys to expedite the procedure of selecting jurors, and when F. H. Whitfield, attorney for Wallace, began asking a jurymen if he was acquainted with a long list of persons that might be connected with the Portland Railway, Light & Power Co. or the district attorney's office, Judge McGinn interrupted.

Court Makes Objection.

"You know you can insert a lot of 'pizen' when you are questioning jurors," said the judge. "There is no need to ask all those questions. What have you got to do with the case?"

Confine yourself to the question of whether a juror can try the case according to the law and the evidence."

"I am objecting to your insinuation that we are trying to inject poison," retorted Whitfield.

"I do say you people have a fashion of injecting 'pizen' into a case before it gets started," insisted the judge.

Whitfield, the Portland Railway, Light & Power company is interested in this prosecution," began Whitfield.

"There you go," shot back McGinn. "You have no right to make that statement. You confine yourself to the question of whether a juror can try the case according to the law and the evidence."

When McGinn opened court he decided that the practice of attorneys quizzing jurors before and after cases are tried must stop. When he postponed the Wallace case last week he said he did so in order to make an investigation into this practice.

Attorney Makes Reply.

"I don't wish to have any reflections cast upon the district attorney's office," said Deputy District Attorney Hindman, who is prosecuting the Wallace case.

"There is no intention to cast reflection on the district attorney's office," replied McGinn. "but I was a district attorney before you were born and I think I know more about conditions than you do, and questioning of jurors has got to stop."

The Ford forgery case, for which witnesses have been brought to Portland from other states, is still being held up awaiting opportunity to go to trial.

Albanyites Frolic At Annual Picnic

Albany would have felt proud could she have seen and heard her former sons and daughters at their fifth annual picnic at the Oaks yesterday.

Albanyites were gathered in the grove upon their former homes by the picknickers. Albany would have been elated. And could she have seen here self pictured as a wonderful city at the present time and in bygone days, she could justly have felt flattered.

Young and old gathered in goodly numbers to do homage to their former home and renew old acquaintanceships. And they frolicked as they have not done in years. Scenes of old returned to the former Albanyites, and they were children at play instead of men and women of affairs.

At 6 o'clock benches were drawn up and dinner served.

With E. L. Thompson in the role of toastmaster, nearly everybody that had ever heard of Albany told of their life and impressions in the Hub city. Among the silver tongued members of the society were Colonel R. A. Miller, Valued Struble, Judge M. C. George, Professor Lee, Mrs. Sarah Hinton, acting president; Mrs. Westfall, ex-president; and Miss Hackleman, whose father was the first inhabitant of Albany.

Colonel Miller reminded the gathering that it was on the bank of the Willamette at Albany that Sam L. Simpson wrote his celebrated poem, "Beautiful Willamette."

After singing "Add Lang Syne," the picknickers gave way to the band concert which they attended in a body.

D. A. R. Patriotic Committee
Needs Much More to Continue Assistance.

ONE COMPANY SENT $200

Light Work Needed for Crippled
Father of Soldier; Sister Wants
Housework or Care of Children.

The demand from the families of soldiers now at the Mexican border for assistance in meeting their living expenses is becoming greater every day. In many instances there were little reserve funds left by husbands, and these have been exhausted and nothing remains with which to pay rent and buy food.

The patriotic committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution is working diligently in an effort to make its funds go as far as possible, and the county has voted $3000 for relief work, but all funds must be used sparingly, as the length of the enlisted men's service is not yet known and it may be that the families will need assistance for many months to come.

To date, monthly subscriptions for three months have been made to the amount of $746, by 232 persons. The new contributors include one large firm, which has agreed to pay $200, with the request that the name be withheld from publication. Other contributors are: E. S. Piper, Gladys Falm, M. M. Robbins, Mrs. L. G. Smith, Mrs. M. E. Smead, Jr., G. F. Trommler, Mrs. Edwin A. Taylor, William L. Turner, Elton Watkins, J. A. Waddell, Mrs. Thomas P. Wise, E. C. The headquarters has one case that is particularly touching. In which the son, the wage-earner of the family, has gone to the front. The father has a crippled arm, which prevents him from doing ordinary hard work, but he is able to take a watchman's job, run an elevator or do light work. A 13-year-old daughter wants a place to do housework or care for children. She is experienced in both lines of work. Anyone desiring the services of these people may call up Woodlawn 2216.

Man Makes Threat, Put Under Arrest

Eugene Meaves, Merchant, Said He Had Been Given Mission of Destruction, in the Letter Sent.

A letter received by the city commissioners early yesterday containing vague threats of destruction caused the arrest early this morning at a South Portland rooming house of Eugene Meaves, 55 years old, a rancher. The letter was that of a religious fanatic, predicting the early destruction of the universe and that the writer had been given a mission of destruction preliminary to the grand catastrophe.

Meaves had been living on a homestead near Jewell, in Clatsop county, for several years, and the solitude is thought to have deranged his mind. County probation officer Harry Bulger turned him over to F. E. Mallory, a son-in-law.

PLAN FOR PORTLAND INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE WILL BE CONSIDERED

East Side Business Men's Club Will Take Up Proposed Trade Measure.

The plan for the Portland Industrial league will be submitted for adoption to the industrial committee of the East Side Business Men's club at a meeting tomorrow night.

The plan provides for incorporation of the league in the sum of $500,000, with subscriptions of $250,000 at the time of incorporation. Installment bonds are to be issued payable in amounts as small as $2 a month. Funds are to be loaned direct to manufacturing concerns which by investigation are proven worthy.

There will be carried on by the league an educational campaign to arouse Oregon people to the importance of supporting Oregon industries and of supporting Oregon products. A series of lectures, a statement explanatory of the purposes and proposed service of the league will be circulated among the people of the state.

L. M. Lepper, secretary of the East Side Business Men's club, who has been active in the long considered plan for industrial promotion in Portland and Oregon, said this morning that the plan as it is to be submitted tomorrow evening is an adaptation of the plan recently planned with desirable features from the plans of other cities. Deliberation and care will be used, he said, in bringing the league to an operating basis, with particular attention to the selection of the personnel of the board of directors and in making sure that people generally shall have opportunity to subscribe to the support of the work.

"The league's plan should furnish a real test of the desire of the people of this city and state to establish our industries," said Mr. Lepper.

Auld Lang Society Enjoys Day's Outing

Luncheon and Addresses Feature Picnic—Wallace McCamant Speaks of Earlier Days in Portland.

The Auld Lang society gathered in large numbers at the Oaks Park yesterday to vie with the Portland Albany society for premier honors as the summer picnicers. The picnic, which was held at the Oaks, was a most successful one. The program of the day was held from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Families with happy faces and baskets of lunch, began making their way toward the picnic grounds at the Oaks. By 5:30 o'clock friendships had been renewed and everybody had settled in their places in preparation for the addresses that featured the afternoon.

Wallace McCamant spoke of the earlier days in Portland and some of the famous men that made their homes in this city. He talked of the large number of nationally prominent men Portland has had in comparison with the population. Frederick V. Holman told of the early land troubles in this city and A. F. Fiegl spoke of Portland in the eighties.

J. K. Gill, who is charged with being responsible for the society, spoke in his object. He was followed by Frank Dayton, another pillar of the Lang Syne. Mr. Dayton urged the members of the society to become better citizens and to promote the friendship for the organization. He was given three cheers by the audience.

It was nearly 7 o'clock when luncheon was served.

Adjournment was taken in time to attend the band concert at 8 o'clock.

DEBATE OVER SLOUGH DREDGING ENLIVEN'S SESSION OF COUNCIL

Attorney George Shepherd and Commissioner Dieck
Have Word Battle.

NOTHING IS ACCOMPLISHED

Matter Is Continued Until It Can Be Considered by Entire Council—
Dieck Wants Time to Study.

George S. Shepherd, representing the Peninsula Development league, and R. G. Dieck, commissioner of public works, enlivened an otherwise dull meeting of the city council this morning with a debate on the dredging of Columbia slough to provide sewage facilities for the peninsula district.

Mr. Shepherd demanded action. Mr. Dieck advised making haste slowly.

"Our district needs relief," said Mr. Shepherd. "It is the only part of the city not yet given attention as far as sewers are concerned."

"It will be the greatest endeavor the city has ever engaged in," said Mr. Dieck. "There are many technical questions involved. Studies must be made to the effect and army officers familiar with the flow of streams is necessary. The expense is great. With the limited means at our disposal, I believe it would be unwise to recommend expenditures to the amount necessary for experiment."

City Engineer Dater has estimated that the project will cost $293,500. Mr. Dieck said he had planned to go in September, 1915," said Mr. Shepherd. "This is July, 1916. It seems to me there has been plenty of time to make a study. Now is the time to do the dredging, for the water is high."

"I should know my business," said Mr. Dieck.

"You should," replied Mr. Shepherd. Residents of the Peninsula have petitioned for the dredging of the slough, but both Commissioner Dieck and City Engineer Dater recommend deep study of technical questions involved before taking any action.

"I believe the project should be expedited as much as possible," said Mr. Dieck. "but we have insufficient data as to the current and flow. Why, since the construction of the Interstate bridge the currents of the Columbia have entirely changed."

The matter was finally continued, to be discussed before the entire council.

Wrong Man Given Refund.

In 1910 Edward M. Neylon took out a license to do heavy hauling. He was opportunity to subscribe to the support of the work.

"The league's plan should furnish a real test of the desire of the people of this city and state to establish our industries," said Mr. Lepper.

Refund Is Authorized.

A refund of $270.65 to the St. Johns Waterworks & Lighting company for city taxes paid on its property before the land was taken over by the city of Portland was authorized by the council this morning on recommendation of City Attorney La Roche. Following the merger of St. Johns and Portland the company continued in operation for four months before being taken over by the city. The amount refunded covers the taxes paid on the unexpired eight months of the year.

Senator Takes Up Matter With War Department and Results Are Obtained Quickly.

Members of the National Guard now on duty on the Mexican border, who can show intentions of returning to high school or college to continue their studies, will be mustered out of service on September 1. Such was the announcement of the war department yesterday in regard to the policy which will be followed by the government.

The matter was taken up with the war department some time ago by Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the committee on military affairs, and the above order is the result.

A letter signed by many of the Oregon boys on the border was received by O. M. Plummer of the Portland school board, saying that the boys would like to return to their studies if there was no fighting to be done.

Mr. Plummer wired Senator Chamberlain, and the latter went to the war department.

The release is general, however, guardsmen from all states being mustered out.

The following telegram was sent Senator Chamberlain last night by Mr. Plummer: "Your request for mustering students out of the National Guard has given intense satisfaction over the entire country. It was a considerate and just action, and the people of the United States should know where the credit lies."

President Hendrickson of the Scandinavian-American bank was also elated at the news. "None of us should be ashamed to endeavor to give the boys an education. If they were to fight, it would be a little different, but inasmuch as they are only doing their duty, we should all work for their release for an education. Those persons that are responsible for the order are to be congratulated."
