DULUTH'S OARSMEN DECLARED SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHER ROWERS

Minnesotans Have Established Many Records on Water With Shells, Blades.

BARNES FATHER OF SPORT

When Veterans Could No Longer Engage Actively in Sport He Began to Open Up Strings of Furse.

By Frank G. Menke.

New York, Aug. 5.—A western rowing authority once remarked:

"A Duluth oarsman can shoot a shell backwards at a faster clip than any other man can send it forward." The man from the sunset region of the U. S. A. probably was carried away a bit by his enthusiasm over the prowess of the Minnesota blade wielders, but the fact remains that the Duluth boys are the greatest natural oarsmen in the world; that they are the standard by which all others are judged.

The record established during the past few years by the youth competing under the colors of the famous Duluth Boat club is an amazing one; a showing that ranks beyond that of any other strictly amateur rowing organization in the world.

Here Is Their Record.

Competing in the regattas run under the auspices of the Northwest Rowing association and the National Rowing association and pitted against the most skilled oarsmen in the United States, the Duluth Boat club crews, since 1911, have achieved the following:

Won 48 firsts, eight seconds and one third in 58 starts. Just once in the five year sweep did a Duluth shell finish unplaced, although every one of its boats ranked among the winners of the crack oarsmen of the country.

The Duluth sweepers and scullers have established so many records that even the oldest immigrants have lost count. They were backed in every time mark in the many different events that constitute a big club regatta. The immense clubhouse is filled with trophies, and a Duluth oarsman, when he is decorated in his medals and ribbons, takes on the "parade appearance" of an European field marshal of "commendable bravery."

Is it any wonder that "Duluth Oarsmen" and "perfect oarsmanship" have become synonymous?

Barnes Popularized Rowing Game.

And to Julius H. Barnes, the "Lip-top of Rowing," goes the major portion of the credit for the remarkable accomplishments of the Duluth blade wielders during the past 15 or 20 years. In Duluth and everywhere else where the water grain is known, he is hailed as "one of the finest sportsmen in the world" which he is.

Barnes has been a lover of the rowing game all his life. Back in 1896, when he was in his early twenties, he pulled the blade in Duluth's original four oared crew, the quartet which first brought oarsmen from the Minneapolis town, the "Big Four," which, for several years, swept ahead to the finish line in the majority of its races.

When business cares forced Barnes to abandon active participation in the game, he decided to do all in his power to popularize the rowing.

One of Best Exercises.

"It is one of the finest sports in the world; it is a wonderful brain and body builder for boys," he said. "I want to give the youths in Duluth a chance to become real oarsmen and to imbibe its benefits."

And so he opened wide his purse strings and started a boom for rowing which, in the years since then, has lifted Duluth to the crest of the rowing world, which has resulted in keeping the game all over the United States and making it one of the greatest summer sports in America.

Backing Barnes in his efforts to lift rowing to the highest possible plane was the Duluth Boat club. Barnes, quiet, modest and unassuming, declares that the splendid cooperation by the club officials was the prime cause for the great increase in rowing interest. But the club officials have a different viewpoint.

Give All Credit to Barnes.

"It was Julius H. Barnes who made rowing the great national sport, who practically made the Duluth Boat club and who enabled its crews to score so many notable victories," say the officials. "It is true, the Duluth Boat club has done a great deal of work. It was organized in 1885, with 11 members. Along in '98 and '97, when Barnes became active in behalf of rowing, the club had a membership of a hundred or two, but not many of them were extremely active. Our clubhouse was small.

"But Barnes changed all that. He gave us unsparingly time and money. In ten years he spent close to $25,000 to help the game. He built new boat houses and hired special coaches to tutor the boys. He saw to it that our oarsmen lacked nothing in equipment and preparation. The finest shells obtainable were not too good for our boys, in Barnes' opinion. He awakened the town to the real sport in rowing and, as a result, our membership increased by leaps and bounds. Today we have an enrollment of something like 1500 and have a club and rowing establishment which is ranked as among the finest in the world.

"And to Julius H. Barnes, that grand sportsman—and to no one else—goes the real credit."

Langer Retains His Title.

New York, Aug. 5.—Lulu Langer of Los Angeles retained his title of quarter-mile swimmer of the United States this afternoon, when he defeated Herbert Fallmer and Teddy Cann of the New York A. C. in the A. C. championship at Travis Island. Langer, using the powerful trudgeon stroke of which he is master, easily outdistanced the New Yorkers and won in 5:28, against the 5:59 trudgeon holder, was second and Cann third.
