CONFERENCE RESULT MAY BE COOPERATIVE ADVERTISING OF N.-W.

Meeting Called to Perfect Organization to Make Broad Publicity Campaign.

PORTLAND REPRESENTED

Will First Direct Attention to Traffic; Chamber of Commerce of Northwest May Be the Outcome.

Cooperative advertising of all Pacific northwest scenic features may result from a conference held at the Arctic club in Seattle, Saturday, at which representatives from 10 communities were present.

George E. Hardy, executive secretary of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, represented Portland.

The conference decided to call a meeting to be held in the Arctic club, September 6, to which representatives of all railroads, steamship lines, hotels and commercial organizations in the northwest will be invited.

An endeavor will be made to perfect an organization that will do advertising on a broad scale for this entire section of the country, the association absorbing the expense, which will be divided pro rata.

Attention will probably first be directed to the tourist trade, a publicity campaign being waged in spreading the fame of the northwest's scenic attractions.

Instead of a single community publishing booklets and spending money on advertising for its purely local attractions it is proposed to consider the northwest as a whole in the belief that the tourist does not journey west to see one particular thing but is interested in the entire western country.

It is possible that a chamber of commerce of the northwest may spring from the cooperative campaign, and that it will maintain tourist bureaus in the east.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 14.—(U. Estimates today placed property loss at $500,000.

Hints at rigid investigation and possible action developed today when it became known that the great retaining wall had been several times reported leaking during the past year.

Shortly before noon Sunday a stream of alarming volume began seeping through the masonry, a watch was set, and about 6 o'clock the break ripped wider and wider until it was apparent collapse of the wall was inevitable.

Married at Last, and They Couldn't Keep It a Secret

Ridgefield, Wash., Aug. 14.—Their wedding day was not only their happiest to Lloyd Pearson, 21, Ridgefield, and Lillian Bales, Cunningham, Wash., but it was also one of their busiest.

Mr. Pearson purchased the license at Kalama, Cowlitz county, because he and Miss Bales wanted to keep their marriage a secret for a while. When the hour for the wedding arrived the county judge at Kalama, was out of the city, and no minister nor other person qualified to perform the ceremony, could be found.

Mr. Pearson and Miss Bales returned to Ridgefield, and asked Rev. Harvey Cooper, pastor of the local Methodist church, to marry them. Mr. Cooper said he'd be glad to do it, but when he found that the license had been issued in another county, he had to refuse to perform the ceremony in Ridgefield.

Then the groom-to-be hired an automobile and with the bride-to-be, the minister and a couple of witnesses, drove to the far end of the bridge spanning the North Fork of the Lewis river, the county dividing line. Lost Link in Bomb Case Being Welded

Julius Kohn, at Liberty Under Charge of Conspiracy, Said to Be Aiding the Police of San Francisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—(P. N. S.)—The missing link in the preparedness parade bomb investigation is being trailed, according to a report circulated at police headquarters today. With this was linked the name of Julius Kohn, or Caster, charged with conspiracy, but released temporarily.

It was pointed out that Assistant District Attorney James Brennan had declared Kohn gave information of value while under arrest. Though charged with conspiracy, he was released on his own recognizance at the request of the prosecution.

Kohn, though denying any knowledge of the bomb explosion, is said to have admitted having known some of those under indictment for murder—Thomas J. Mooney, Mrs. Rena Mooney, Warren K. Billings, Edward D. Nolan and Israel Weinberg.

The Mooneys and Billings will appear to plead tomorrow, and Weinberg and Nolan Wednesday.
