

SPEECH OF SEN. LANE ON CHILD LABOR BILL ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Gives Jar to Some of Professed Venerators of Constitution by His Words.

MILLS SAYS LIFE OF CHILD

Calls Constitution Good as Long as It Acts for General Benefit of Country and People.

Washington, Aug. 16.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL).—Senator Lane's speech on the child labor bill is attracting attention because of the jar he gave to some of the professed venerators of the constitution. If the constitution is not beneficial, he said, and interferes with the prosperity and happiness of the people, it is anything but a sacred document.

"Personally, I do not care what the constitution says about it," he went on. "The arguments indulged here regarding the difference which exists between tweedledee and tweedledum in respect to the powers of the constitution when a condition exists where children are called upon to render up in their youth the vitality which they will need in other years, in old age, in maturity age, to the general disadvantage of the entire nation, do not interest me."

"If the states are not big enough and brave enough and honest enough to the nation and with themselves to make that change, then the general government, as a matter of self defense, should, as a duty, step in and say to them, 'Here, we will take this over for the general benefit of the entire country.'"

"The law of nature contends and disproves any theory of any state or any lever of state rights or any constitutional lawyer that the child should have the privilege and the freedom of breaking down its tissues before it arrives at maturity. I do not see from a humanitarian or from a physical standpoint or view of the question how there can be any dispute on this proposition."

Little Gap Life of Child.
"The trouble with the mills—although I have had but little experience with them—is that the child does not get sunshine. It does not get enough vital outdoor air. Another trouble is that in its formative stage of life, when it is tender and its resisting powers are low, the child comes in contact with the exhaustions of the machinery of older persons or of some diseased person among them and incorporates them into its system at the very time when it is least able to resist them."

So long as the constitution of the United States acts and is able to work in the general interests and for the general benefit of the people of the country, it is a good ordinance, a beneficial ordinance, and I am willing to burn incense and pour oil before its altar and bow down to it, but just the minute it interferes with the welfare of the general community and the general interests of the people of the country, and causes them to suffer and deteriorate, to go down, to descend to a lower degree of health and prosperity, and one which will eventually wipe them out, if you please, then I am not for the constitution."

Larger and Broader Aspect.
"I am willing to vote for anything that will put this evil influence off the people and lift them out from under its shade. I am ready and willing to go further than that. I am willing to say unpleasant things about it and to question it, if you please, and the authority of any court of justice which would fasten that condition onto the backs of the people of this country."

"If we hark back to the days when the constitution was drafted and adopted, we will find that the gentlemen who were talking most about freedom in this country and about making this into a great, free nation, were slaveholders, buying human beings off the block as cheaply as they could get them."

"There is a larger and broader aspect to this question than constitutional rights and interference with the dicta of some court and fine whittlings of law points here and the interpretation of somebody long ago who knew not what the country was coming to or what this day would bring forth."

DANIELS ASKED TO RECOMMEND NAVAL BASE IN WRITING

Washington, Aug. 16.—For the purpose of holding up his side of the controversy, in an effort to place responsibility for what the house conferees may do to the Columbia submarine base upon Secretary Daniels, Representative Hawley sent another letter to the secretary, asking for a recommendation of the Columbia base in writing.

After the item for the base was written into the naval appropriation bill, through the efforts of Senators Lane and Chamberlain, no effort to insert it having been made on the house side of the capitol when the bill was there, Senator Lane conferred with Secretary Daniels and asked him to communicate to the house conferees the secretary's views in favor of the amendment.

This the secretary agreed to do, and did so, having conferred with Chairman Padgett of the house committee after the bill was sent to conference. After the item for the base was called upon Daniels, and the Oregon congressmen were told the same thing Senator Lane was told—that the secretary favored the base at the Columbia and would talk with Mr. Padgett about it.

Later Padgett informed Congressman Sinnott that the secretary's statement that he was favorable to the item remaining in the bill. Hawley then took the position that he is unable to learn just what Daniels said to Padgett, and that a specific declaration in writing from the secretary would be "decisive."

Whatever Daniels said to Padgett or Padgett said to Daniels, it is apparent that the house conferees form the stumbling block, and the failure of the Oregon house delegation to convince three out of five of these conferees of the desirability of immediate action as to the Columbia base caused the house members to disagree.

The house conferees are said to have advanced several reasons for disagreeing to the Lane amendment. These may be summarized as follows:

The improvement is not specifically estimated for; there is provision in another part of the bill for an investigation and report by naval experts as to where such bases should be located; the Lane amendment as adopted provides only for a site, though it was the understanding in the senate that this should be provided for in the establishment of the base; large appropriations not clearly demanded as immediately needed should go over until further investigation is made.

Hobbs of Massachusetts, one of the Republican conferees, is understood to be most strongly opposed to the item for the Columbia base. The Democrats, in most favorable to it.

Hawley's latest move in the letter to Daniels asking the secretary for a written statement is to throw pepper across the wall of those who charge that he was negligent in failing to move his finger for a naval or submarine base while the naval bill was in the house. The Oregon senators having secured the provision in the senate, and failure being threatened through the adverse action of the house conferees, the new Hawley strategy was to "pass the buck" to Daniels.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN MAIL SERVICE FOR OREGON IN PAST YEAR

Washington, Aug. 16.—The second assistant postmaster general has completed a statement showing extensions and improvements made in the mail service during the last fiscal year, making the following showing for Oregon:

Railroad service between Juntura and Riverside, at an annual cost of $19,678, a superior star service and allowing the rearrangement of star service for about 30 offices in eastern Oregon, with a substantial saving of time of cost.

Extension of star route service from Myrtle Point to Powers, doing away with special service and advancing time of delivery for 1100 people.

Service established on the new railroad to Coos Bay and connecting at Marshfield so as to form a through line from Eugene to Powers, greatly reducing cost and time of transportation. The yearly cost of this service is $6000.

Electric car service displacing railroad and star routes between Oregon City and Molalla. This greatly improves facilities at slight increase in cost.

Delivery of mail at St. Paul, Tonquin, Wilsonville, Donald and Metzger advanced from one and one-half to seven hours.

Post delivery and collection service established between Marshfield and Smith camp No. 1 by power boat, at a cost of $600; also power boat, at a cost of $444, between Newport and Yaquina, from six to seven times a week from May 1 to June 1 and October 1 to 31.

Wants Settlers to Get Money.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Now that the Sinnott bill for relief of settlers of Sherman county, Oregon, is a law, regulations will soon be issued from the interior department prescribing the manner in which the beneficiaries of the act may identify themselves and receive the sums appropriated.

Congressman Sinnott has requested that he be consulted before the regulations are issued, and has been informed that this will be done. He is interested in having the plan of payment so arranged that those who receive money under the act need not have the warrants pass into the hands of claim attorneys unless they so desire.

The amount appropriated is over $24,000. Some of the original claimants are dead, and it will be necessary for their heirs to show their right of succession.

Lassen Park Approved.
Washington, Aug. 16.—Lassen park, California, has been its own most active lobbyist. The fame achieved by its strenuous labor in the last few years has it today passed a bill establishing the Lassen Volcanic National park, which has been approved by the president.

The new national park contains 52,850 acres and includes the only active volcano in continental United States. Congress has also just enacted a law establishing a national park in Hawaii which takes in another famous volcano. Thus the only two national parks created by the present congress have been unannouncedly "active."

Amendment to Homestead Law.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The senate committee on public lands has reported an amendment to the stock grazing, or 640 acre homestead bill, providing that if shall not become effective until after January 1, 1917. The bill is on the senate calendar and an effort is to be made to pass it at the present session.

To Correct Baggett's Record.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The house has passed a bill introduced by Representative Hawley to correct the military record of John Watson Baggett of Salem, Or., the effect of which will be to give Baggett a pensionable status.

Examination for Postmasters.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The postoffice department has requested civil service examinations to be held for filling vacancies of postmasters at Hallett, Polk county, Oregon, and at Olalla, Douglas county.

Taunted by Friends; Man Ends His Life

J. Kelly Neal Travels From Duck Hill, Miss., to Distant San Francisco to Kill Self—Leaves Explanation Note.

San Francisco, Aug. 16.—(P. N. S.) J. Kelly Neal, a visitor here from Duck Hill, Miss., is dead today, a suicide, because the people of his home town taunted him for stammering. He ended his life with poison.

According to farewell notes to friends, Neal came to San Francisco expressly to die. He had premeditated suicide for a year, he said, being unable to endure longer the taunts and jeers of his townspeople.

"I could not kill myself in Duck Hill," he wrote to one of his friends. "It would mean too much to those who have made fun of my affliction."

Neal left a pathetic note addressed to his mother, Mrs. D. J. Neal of Duck Hill.

Location of German Submarine Merchant Ship Still a Secret, Since Captain Koenig Failed to Send Word.

Berlin, Aug. 16.—(U. P.)—The German submarine Deutschland has not been heard from since she cleared the Virginia Capes on the night of August 2, the United Press learned from reliable sources today.

Sixteen days were required for the Deutschland to cross the Atlantic on her trip to Baltimore. Part of that time she spent in dodging hostile warships. Actually she could have made the voyage in much shorter time. The fact that 14 days have elapsed and she has not been heard from indicated that she has been compelled to take a round-about course in the return also, to avoid British and French warships, if she has not met with a mishap.

The Deutschland is equipped with a high power wireless apparatus, but probably would not communicate with a German station while in British waters, fearing detection and pursuit.

The Hague, Aug. 16.—(I. N. S.)—Two German submersibles of the Deutschland type have just been given trials off Heligoland, and received here today. It is expected that they will be sent to the United States soon.
