

COURT TAKES CASE OF DR. McCANDLESS OUT OF THE JURY'S HANDS

Judge Jones Says State Has Failed to Prove Charges Against Woman.

DECISION WINS APPLAUSE

Charge of Practicing Medicine Without License Was Made as Result of Signing Death Certificate.

"The state has absolutely failed to prove its case," said District Judge Jones yesterday, in throwing the case against Dr. Frances McCandless out of court and dismissing the jury.

Dr. McCandless was arrested July 22 on the complaint of Dr. Harry E. McKay, member of the state board of medical examiners. She was charged with practicing medicine without a license in playing "M. D." after her name in signing a death warrant.

The case followed the death of Mary Obermer. According to the testimony, Dr. Dammasch treated the case at first, but would not sign the death certificate because the case was taken out of his hands.

Signed in Dimly Lighted Room.

The defense claimed that Dr. McCandless had not treated the case and that she refused to sign the death certificate. She finally signed it on the advice of Dr. David N. Roberg, secretary of the state board of health, over her own protests.

Dr. Harry E. McKay testified that Dr. McCandless had told him that she was a licensed physician in a conversation at the county jail.

"That's the only death certificate I ever signed. My patients do not die," said Dr. McCandless, according to Dr. McKay's testimony.

Dr. Dammasch told of meeting Dr. McCandless five days before the removal of the patient from the hospital. She had come to consult him about the case, which, she said, friends of the family had asked her to take.

"I told her that the case was very serious," testified Dr. Dammasch, "and that she would remove the patient from the hospital on her own responsibility. She said she would assume the responsibility."

"She said that she practiced all schools of medicine," he continued, "and that she was going to treat this case by bloodless surgery." As to the signing of the certificate, I refused to sign because the patient had passed out of my hands. I told her to sign it.

Rev. Albert Ehrhott Says East Busier Than Coast But That Busy-ness Coming; Still Likes Portland.

Rev. Albert Ehrhott, formerly pastor of the East Side Baptist church and now connected with Y. M. C. A. work in San Francisco, is in Portland today on his way home after several weeks spent in studying Y. M. C. A. methods in New York, Cleveland and other cities.

"The east is busier than the Pacific coast but that busy-ness is coming our way," said Rev. Mr. Ehrhott. "In the meantime we are getting along comfortably, and more prosperously than some of our pessimistic friends would have us believe. I am always delighted to get back to Portland. I tell people who drop under the heat of the east that out here we have sunshine without a blister."

"I believe that in the Y. M. C. A. work of San Francisco I have found my life's mission."

Rev. Mr. Ehrhott was accompanied by his little daughter, Caroline.

"I am sorry that I cannot give you more," said District Judge Jones yesterday in sentencing Harry L. Turner to days in jail for importing 23 quarts of whiskey in one shipment labeled "household goods."

Turner was arrested in the barn back of his house at 1044 Sixty-second street southeast on the night of August 9, just after he had opened the consignment of whiskey. Deputy Sheriff Ward and Harburt had concealed themselves in the barn and waited for Turner to appear.

Tries to Obey Law; Gets Into Trouble

C. C. Chapman Parks Auto in Accordance With New Traffic Ordinance Only to Find Old Rules Effective.

The new traffic ordinance has yet to become effective. C. C. Chapman, editor of the Oregon Voter, said to be a wide-awake newspaper man, thought it had been passed and was in effect. He knows differently now.

The new ordinance, when in effect, will require parked automobiles to face the curb instead of the street. Chapman left his machine that way last night and a tag inviting him to visit the police station was placed in his machine. It said that he had violated the traffic ordinance.

Chapman accepted the invitation. Then he was informed that the new ordinance had not gone into effect and that the old ordinance was still on the books. Chapman left, promising to keep better informed hereafter.

ROADMASTER WILL PROCEED UPON BASIS OF VISTA HOUSE FUND

Unless Otherwise Informed, He Will Consider $12,000 as Granted by the County.

A call from Roadmaster Yeon for $12,000 from the emergency fund for use in completing the construction of the Vista House on the Columbia river highway was filed by the board of county commissioners at the meeting this morning. Mr. Yeon said that unless otherwise informed, he would proceed with the project which the $12,000 is to cover, and the filing of the report means that he will not be otherwise informed.

In other words, the county commissioners grant the roadmaster's request for $12,000 from the emergency fund. The fund for the Vista House was originally planned to be raised by private subscription, but on May 17, committees headed by Julius Meier, asked the commissioners to appropriate the remainder. The commission passed an order authorizing Roadmaster Yeon to proceed with the work, which will be paid for with money from the road fund. The commission said that an appropriation not to exceed $12,000 would be granted from the emergency fund, however, should it be needed.

HUSBAND'S RETURN FROM THE BORDER IS URGED BY COUNCIL

Wife Makes Personal Appeal, and Commissioners Act in Accordance at Once.

FAMILY GREATEST NEED

Fred Hubach Had Been an Employee of City and His Place is Held Open for Him.

Which needs Fred Hubach the more—his family, in Portland, or his country, on the Mexican border?

The city council this morning, having heard a communication from W. H. Warren, secretary to the mayor, decided that Hubach's family should have the preference.

Mrs. Hubach called on Mr. Warren yesterday and convinced him of the urgent need of her husband's return. "If our country was in danger," she said, "if there was actual fighting, we would try to get along somehow. But we believe, as things are, that we need him more than the country does."

Mr. Hubach was an employe at the city incinerator, and when the call came for the border went with his command, the medical corps of the Third Oregon.

After he had been on the border some time, Mrs. Hubach says, she obtained statements from responsible persons, telling the need of his return, and sent them to Major Marcellus, commander of the medical corps.

Major Marcellus replied that he couldn't spare Hubach from his organization, and suggested that the council pay Mrs. Hubach the difference between the pay her husband got at the incinerator, and his $16 a month army pay.

The council has been holding Hubach's job for him.

Acting Mayor Daly wrote a letter yesterday to Major Marcellus, urging Hubach's discharge and return, and, with the concurrence of the other commissioners, this morning sent a telegram of the same import.

Mrs. Hubach's young son, who had a 100-a-month job, lost it yesterday by the failure of the firm, and this turn made a crisis in the family affairs which took the mother to see Secretary Warren.
