Remembrance of Days When Old

Church Was Beloved Senctuary Touches Heart of Member.

By J. De V. Johnson.

Last Sunday the morning service of the Taylor Street Methodist church was conducted at the temporary meeting place in the hall at 229 Fourth street by the preacher in charge, D M. H. Marvin, assistant editor of the Pacific Christian Advocate.

The sermon theme was "The Philos-ophy of Disappointment." That is, the necessity of the discipline of hardship and suffering to fit the Christian to fight the "good fight" with endurance and courage and absolute obedience to his divine leader. It was intended to comfort the hearts and confirm the faith of the congregation. The fellowship service following was led by A. Thurlow, and brought out many expressions of belief and hope and loyalty.

The hall provides seats for the time being for certain members and for lit the children who could not easily stand through the outdoor services that were no trial to many others. And it provides a musical instrument, a plano, as a substitute for awhile for the church's own pipe organ that has been unied to it and kept mute for the last two years and that the workmen had been learing partially from its place. Singers Now Gather.

The latest church singers who have sung to the accompaniment of the great organ now gather around the plano under the leadership of I. D. Boyer. Miss Harriet Leach, Mrs. Netthe Greer Taylor, Mr. Boyer and Ernest Stansbery are the soloists and Messrs. Boyer, Stansbery, Hanson and Idleman compose the men's quartette.

The voices of all of these have reached from the Third and Taylor street corner far out upon the streets and over to the plaza upon many and many a Sabbath morning, and have won many a "wandering boy" to the old worshiping place where his mother's religion was taught. As to its plans for the future, the Taylor street church has not yet perfected them fully beyond the "staying together" and resuming the work to which their organization was dedicated when Father Wilbur set up the first standard of the cross in Portland nearly 70 years ago.
