DRAFTING AGAIN OPENS ON MINOR LEAGUE PLAYERS

No Federal League This Year So Process Isn't Kept Dark.

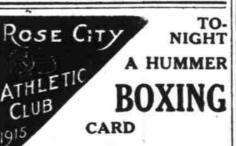

Cincinnati, Sept. 15 .- (U. P.) -- With nothing to fear from the bold, bad Federal league, major league baseball magnates gathered today at the Hotel Sinton for their annual draft of minor league players.

Last year, because the Federals were sneoping around to get a line on new material, the drafting was done in secret and the names of the prizes kept dark until they could be affixed to contracts. But now the Federals have been shooed out of the way and the pro-ceedings are again in the open. Garry Herrmann, president of the National commission; John K. Tener, president of the National league; Ban B. Johnson, president of the American league, and John T. Bruce, secretary of the national commission, were the big guns at the meeting.

Under the rules major league clubs wishing to draft players had to submit names of players along with the draft price to Bruce by 10 o'clock this morning. The secretary of the commission received a flood of coin from this source at the last minute, several of the club owners bringing their lists and purchase money with them. Where more than one club seeks the services of a player, lots will be drawn for

Charles E. Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn club of the National league, will make his annual effort to have the rules of draft changed so that the weaker clubs of each league will get he stronger players.
