Of her newest creation, now running in the Fiction Magazine of the Sunday Journal, a word will suffice to commend u to those who haunt the printed page.

Mystery-as thick as a London fog-that's the atmosphere. The characters, members of the boulevard nobility; portly dowagers frolicking at assemblies; old gentlemen with eccentric hobbies; impetuous little darlings whose loves are not always as planned; heroes splendidly attuned to the social machine.

Mad business they make of it on that memorable November night! Murders that have apparently no author; bold hold-ups, proceeding from nowhere, putting a rude quietus on the revels; courtships torn asunder to the distraction of lovers, unpunished guilt and fettered innocence.

Ruin and success, confusion and calm, despair and happiness playing at shuttlecock. A mental rough-house that meets the acid test: it sends the thrill.
