Head of Journalism Department Resigns

Lee A. White Quits University of Washington, Third Man to Leave Same Position Within Three Months,

University of Washington, Oct. 4 .-The third member of the department of journalism to tender his resignation in the last three months is Professor Lee A. White, acting head of the department. This announcement came as a great surprise to the students and Professor White first handed his resignation to President Suzzallo last spring, but he was persuaded to withdraw it and take charge of the department. Mr. White's resignation will take place at the end of this semester. which will be some time around the first of February. President Suzzallo plans to leave the last of this week for the east where he will get men to fill the vacancies in The other men who have resigned in the last three months are: Frank Kane, head of the department, and Hugh E.
