

FAIRBANKS PREDICTS MOST DIRE DISASTER IF WILSON REELECTED

Entire Prosperity of U. S. Due to Nothing but "Shrapnel!"
Speaker Says.

CROWD GREET'S VISITOR

President's Supporters in the Audience
Make Armory Resound With Applause When Name Mentioned.

"Four years ago the people of this country elected Woodrow Wilson," began Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican vice presidential candidate at the Armory last night after the usual introductory remarks about what a great state Oregon is and what fine people it has. He got no further.

Such a storm of cheering greeted the name of the president that Mr. Fairbanks stood blinking fully two minutes before he could get on his feet. When it finally did, he continued: "And they have regretted it ever since." The Hughes and Fairbanks supporters then had their inning. They evidently realized that they had to set the distinguished visitor at ease and they went to it with a will, making more noise than the Wilson supporters.

Look of Perplexity Leaves Speaker. As he realized that his side was in the majority, he may have had more than the look of perplexity left Mr. Fairbanks' face and a faint smile of a smile encircled his features as he launched into a recital of platform pledges which he said the Democrats have broken.

He referred to only two, the single-term plank, which he said the people would enforce in the November, and the high cost of living plank, which he called a "most insidious platform utterance."

Mention of Roosevelt's name in a statement calling the Republican years of 1896 to 1912 the "golden age of America," drew the greatest ovation of the evening. In those years, the speaker said, the country had peace for every hand and bread for every mouth and our prestige in the chancelleries of the world was unsurpassed and our flag was not trampled upon.

The remark about the peace and spirited cheering in which the Grand Army men, who had a special section reserved for them, and the uniformed members of the Armory club, who with a brass band had escorted Mr. Fairbanks to the Armory, led.

Mr. Fairbanks next took a fling at the establishment of national employment agencies by the Democrats by declaring that "the best employment agency is a Republican tariff."

"Wouldn't you like to exchange your hard times in this state for Republican times?" he asked, to which there were a few exclamations of "You bet."

Continuing, he declared that "the only prosperity that is any good for our country is due to the European war."

"Our Shrapnel Making Prosperity." "Our shrapnel, which is weaving death in the air of Europe, is making Democratic prosperity," he declared, and then directed the subject of the part American munitions are playing in the European war.

Mr. Fairbanks declared that without a Republican party in power, this country will be at the mercy of European competitors in the struggle for markets which he declared will follow the termination of the European war.

He declared that we will be outdone in the contest for even our own markets.

"Wilson has not kept us out of war—in Mexico," he said. "More wearing American uniforms have been killed in this war with Mexico than were killed in the war with Spain. True it was not a great war, but it was a war."

Warns All Wilson Voters. Pursuing the subject, he warned his auditors not to vote for Wilson "out of a false sense of gratitude," asking: "Wouldn't it be long to have a public break out after the European war was over? Who would be responsible?"

Let us, he urged, "use our hard-headed judgment, not voting for sentimental reasons, but out of sheer regard for the welfare of the people in the years before us."

At one stage in his address he made the statement that "No greater tragedy since Mount Calvary has occurred than the death of William McKinley at the hands of an assassin," and then dropped the subject.

Says Republicans Give Security. He concluded with a declaration that the country has "more sense of security when the Republican party is in power," a fling at the expenditures of the Democratic party which, he declared, "has been more wanton in profligacy than any party since the stars sang together," and an admonition to his auditors to discharge a patriotic duty by voting the Republican ticket.

Mr. Fairbanks was introduced by Governor Withycombe, who referred to Mr. Fairbanks' activity in securing a government appropriation for the Lewis & Clark fair. A mention of Mr. Hughes' name by the governor brought forth a loud applause.

Club Members Escort Candidate. Mr. Fairbanks arrived at the Armory escorted by members of the Multipurpose club, a Republican organization, and a brass band. The band was playing "America" when he entered the hall and he was given a hearty welcome in which the Multipurpose club members and Grand Army men were the most conspicuous.

Prior to this time Mr. Fairbanks had been entertained at dinner at the Portland hotel by local Republican leaders, many of whom were gathered around him later on the platform. His audience filled the lower floor of the Armory and probably 40 per cent of the gallery.

Attacks President's Mexican Policy. Mr. Fairbanks said in part: "In their extremity our Democratic friends urge the reelection of Mr. Wilson upon the ground that he kept us out of war. A little analysis shows how utterly baseless it is, and it should not hold our attention for a moment.

"The assumption itself is utterly false. It is not true that we have not been cured at home by new absorption method. If you suffer from bleeding, itching, blind or protruding piles, send me your address, and I will tell you how to cure yourself at home by the new absorption treatment, and will also send some of this home treatment free for trial, with references from your own locality, if requested. Users report immediate relief and speedy cures. Send to money, but tell others of this offer. Write today to Mrs. M. Summers, Box P, Notre Dame, Ind.

Mrs. Ben Lindsey to Work for President

Other Women in East Send Word of Affiliation With the Women's Bureau of Democratic Committee.

New York, Oct. 7.—Mrs. Ben Lindsey, wife of the "fighting judge" of Denver, enrolled with the women's bureau of the Democratic national committee today. She will work in the west for the reelection of President Wilson, as one of the vice chairmen of the bureau.

"We are surprised and pleased at the unsolicited affiliations that are rolling in from western women," said Mrs. Mary Ware Bennett, executive secretary of the Democratic national committee, who had just received word from the leaders of the labor movement in Massachusetts.

Miss Julia O'Connor of Boston, president of the Boston Women's League, and Miss Mabel Gillette, secretary of the Massachusetts league, that their organization will cooperate with the bureau.

Mrs. Maude Swartz, secretary of the Women's Trade Union league in New York, already is an active member on the Wilson women's bureau.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY WILL BE FEATURED BY A GREAT PROCESSION

Monday's Demonstration Designed to Be Greatest Parade of Kind Ever Held.

Portland will have next Monday afternoon one of the largest fire-prevention parades ever given in any city, according to committee reports at a meeting held last night in the Chamber of Commerce. The fire equipment of many Portland stations and departments of such outside cities as Tillamook, Gresham and Vancouver will be on hand.

The parade will be in charge of Fire Chief Dowell which is in charge of the parade announced this morning that all entries are to be in position ready to move at 3 o'clock. The parade will start at 3:30 o'clock sharp, he said, without delay for the benefit of those who are tardy. Oliver K. Jeffery, Ira P. Powers and Frank C. Riggs will be the marshals of the parade.

The parade begins at Fourteenth and Yamhill streets. The line of march is as announced yesterday in The Journal. The platoon of police, city, county and state officials will take position on Fourteenth street, facing Morrison.

Private cars and volunteer fire companies on Yamhill facing east toward Fourteenth. Floats on Taylor facing west toward Fourteenth. The parade will start at 3:30 o'clock sharp, he said, without delay for the benefit of those who are tardy. Oliver K. Jeffery, Ira P. Powers and Frank C. Riggs will be the marshals of the parade.

Following the parade there will be a fire drill between engine companies, net jumping and other contests. Oliver K. Jeffery, Ira P. Powers and Frank C. Riggs will be the marshals of the parade.

fallacious, for the fact is that he did not keep us out of war, but upon the contrary got us into it. It is true as compared with wars which occur in the public mind, it was a very small one.

"When the president took possession of Vera Cruz in Mexico it involved a great element of war, it was an aggression upon our part, our army killed Mexicans and Mexicans killed our soldiers."

Mr. Fairbanks left last night in his private car for Seattle, where he will continue his campaign speech.

FAIRBANKS DECLARES COUNTRY MUST HAVE A PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Salem, Or., Oct. 7.—Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican candidate for vice president, at a well attended meeting in the Armory Friday afternoon, advanced as the principal argument why Hughes should be elected president, that a protective tariff would be needed following the European war or economic ruin would follow.

He contended that the underwood tariff, passed during the Wilson administration, discriminates in favor of the south and against the north and west and strikes at American industry.

He mentioned as one of the industries injured by the tariff, the automobile industry, which he said, "Wilson has kept us out of war," was a reason he had heard given frequently for the reelection of the president.

He said, "His insistence that keeping the country out of war was not a good argument when Wilson's tariff policy would plunge the country into economic disaster after the European war was over."

Mr. Fairbanks rapped the contention that Wilson had kept the United States out of war from another angle, asserting that this country had to all intents and purposes been at war with Mexico and the only difference was that Mexico was a small country and the war was conducted on a small scale.

He insisted that the future industrial welfare of the nation was the big consideration and the salvation of the country depended upon the election of Hughes.

Mr. Fairbanks was the guest of honor at a luncheon at the Hotel Marion following his arrival. Among the guests were Governor Withycombe, Secretary of State Cleet, State Treasurer Kay, National Committee Chairman Williams, County Committee Chairman C. P. Bishop, State Chairman McKinley, Representative C. Lewis and Attorney George Bingham.

Fairbanks at Seattle. Seattle, Oct. 7.—(U. P.)—Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican candidate for vice-president, arrived here at 7 o'clock this morning and will speak tonight at the Moore theatre. He addressed the Young Men's Republican club briefly at noon.

Democratic Rally Tuesday. The Democratic Equality league will hold its regular noon luncheon at the Portland hotel at noon Tuesday, October 10. A special program of addresses and music will be furnished.

BASEBALL FANS PUT IN NIGHT LINE FOR SEATS AT BIG GAME

British Columbian and Wife
Make Early Hours Gay
With Angry Comment.

MORNING WAIT IS TEDIOUS

Fewer Than 100 in Line Last Night but After Daylight the Fans Came Swarming After Tickets.

By George Martin.

Braves' Field, Boston, Oct. 7.—(6 a. m.)—(U. P.)—Here were the re-handled fans, entirely surrounded by dew and dawn. Filled with hot dogs and a desire to see the game. Dimmed in shivers and engulfed in yawns.

If it hadn't been for Marsh of Vancouver, the wait would have been full. He was the maddest Britisher that ever ate marmalade for breakfast. The street was strewn with the r's he dropped and the way he treated his h's was a sin.

At 3 o'clock, when the waiters started for the series early last month with cash and hopes for a grandstand seat. Hiding out on Broadway, over behind the Hudson river till they were sure of the winner's purse upon the high prizes of the Red Sox by letter, mail and phone. Somehow their double play was a fizzle and here they were in line.

At 3 o'clock, when the waiters started for the series early last month with cash and hopes for a grandstand seat. Hiding out on Broadway, over behind the Hudson river till they were sure of the winner's purse upon the high prizes of the Red Sox by letter, mail and phone. Somehow their double play was a fizzle and here they were in line.

From then on until daylight it was dull for the disciples of Watchful Waiting, but dawn brought a woman with a mole on her chin and a square meal in her hand. She began to talk on arrival and at a late hour her mole was still waving madly.

"I not only got up with the birds," said a stout Irishman. "I am also Mrs. C. A. Hawkes of Boston. I brought my lunch, but I won't have time to eat it. I've been doing this for three days now and I don't know of keeping up the conversation until long after the game is over. It amuses the boys and it doesn't bother me; I'm used to it."

With Mrs. Hawkes was her sister, Mrs. Lou Young of Chicago. Mrs. Young did not say a word. She could not.

First in line all night was Celeste Gazzaniga of Boston. This patient person with a name like a Metropolitan tenor and a face the color of a plug of tobacco, draped himself over the dollar section wicket and slept on the wire entanglements.

Joe Mizella came up from Philadelphia a few minutes later and got behind him. All through the night they shared their chills and chewing tobacco. Fred Marden of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., also suffered.

Jack Carry came in from Bretton Woods, bought a hole in the line, installed a watcher, and wrapping himself warmly in slumber, lay down under a tree.

These crowds are not what they used to be. Old Man Experience has taught them that they don't have to be early to get seats. They have learned that the birds to catch the past-board words.

Time was when they came by hundreds from all parts of the country, to a soap box city and camped beside the concrete battlements. A dozen roaring campfires, several all night vest pocket restaurants and innumerable sleeping concessions were common then. Since last night there were fewer than 150 waiters at all entrances, and only one campfire. The fans know they can do just as well and buy places in line just as cheaply if they wait until 8 or so the morning of the first day's game.

So it came to pass today that dawn's hand had been in the sky a long time before the great throng of fans came swarming off the street cars with their right hands in their pockets.

Root Switches on Watchful Waiting

Former Secretary of State Under Moosevelt in Recent Speech Condemns Policy Once Advocated.

New York, Oct. 7.—In his speech at Carnegie hall Thursday night Elihu Root severely criticized President Wilson's Mexican policy as one of "watchful waiting."

Mr. Root when secretary of state under Roosevelt, in a speech on the Mexican situation urged that very same kind of a policy for which he now so bitterly assails the president.

Mr. Root then said: "The injuries have been done to American citizens that ought to be redressed, that wounds have been inflicted, that lives have been taken, that does not follow, sir, that we should begin the process of redressing for those injuries by a threat of force on the part of a great and powerful nation against a smaller and weaker nation. That is to reverse the policy of the United States and to take a step backward in the pathway of civilization."

Roosevelt Cannot Give $40,000 Away

Washington, Oct. 7.—(I. N. S.)—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt today holds the distinction of having tried to give away $40,000, failed. A board appointed to dispose of it, including Chief Justice White of the supreme court and Secretary of Commerce, is now trying to give the $40,000 back.

When the colonel won the Nobel peace prize, he donated it—it being the largest sum in the world, in the form of a fund to form a world peace movement. That was before the invasion of Belgium and the present campaign. The money since then has been in Washington. Several thousand dollars in interest has been earned.

Conductor Hurt in Swinging to Train
Trainman's Head Strikes Tie and Benders Him Unconscious for Two Hours; Wrist May Be Fractured.

J. H. Dobbins, a Southern Pacific passenger conductor, was injured Thursday night as his train was passing through the east side yards near Oak street when he fell from the vestibule of the baggage car and struck his head on a tie.

Dobbins was on the local train that leaves the Union station at 6:10 p. m. He attempted to swing to the step, his hands, was unable to catch himself. He was taken to the Good Samaritan hospital, where after two hours he regained consciousness. He was cut about the head and arms, and it is thought that his wrist may be fractured. His home is at West Linn, near Oregon City.

The Old Adage. "A stitch in time saves nine" is better to have your fuel supply in good season than to wait until fuel is short and delivery is difficult. Reliable fuel dealers are today listed in The Journal's "Prepare for Winter" feature.

Keyes Will Be New Mayor of Salem

Time for Filling Has Passed and No
One Has Entered Race Against Him
—Others Seeking Places.

Salem, Or., Oct. 7.—Attorney Walter E. Keyes will be Salem's mayor, beginning January 1. The time for filling so as to get on the ballot expired Friday night and no one appeared in opposition to Keyes. A majority of the votes cast for mayor at the primary election November 8 means his election, as the law so provides. The same law applies to other city offices.

Fillings for other offices were as follows: Recorder—H. W. Elgin, Earl Race, J. A. Mills, Benjamin S. Via, Adolph A. Gueffroy and J. W. Cox. Chief of police—C. E. Welsh, E. E. Cooper and Frank Sheddick. Treasurer—C. O. Rice.

Councilmen—First ward, R. W. Simeral and S. S. Geer; second ward, F. L. Utter and Lloyd T. Rigdon; third ward, W. F. Buchner; fourth ward, J. D. Hartwell, A. B. Hudelson and Paul G. Johnson; fifth ward, F. A. Boyington and Glen Unruh; sixth ward, Roy S. Nelson and Paul Smith; seventh ward, E. W. Stubbs and Elbert Thompson.

FATHER KIDNAPS HIS OWN SON AS PARENTS ATTEMPT TO HOLD HIM

Grandparents of 3-Year-Old
Richard Morgan Vainly Try to Retain Youngster.

A. R. Morgan, proprietor of Chanticleer Inn on the Columbia river highway, is accused by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Morgan of No. 1738 Hawthorne avenue, of kidnapping his own son, Richard Morgan.

Yesterday afternoon, according to the grandparents, Morgan visited their home, played with his 3-year-old boy for an hour, and then without warning carried him off. The grandfather, who is 77 years old, sought to restrain him but was pushed aside and the boy was carried to a waiting automobile several blocks from the house.

The youngster is now said to be at Chicago, where his father, who is a member of the German American league, is now residing. The grandparents have not notified the authorities and are not likely to take legal action as they are informed that Morgan's father has a legal right to the boy.

According to the grandparents, the little boy is said to have been given to the care of Mrs. Vernon Jeffcott, 618 going street, Morgan's sister, three days after his birth, the mother having died.

Mrs. Jeffcott cared for the youngster without protest until last March, when Morgan was two years and six months old. Three weeks ago, it is said, Mr. Morgan demanded his son, but was persuaded to wait until the matter could be discussed amicably.

Recently Mrs. Jeffcott removed to the Hawthorne avenue home of her parents and there, following his call yesterday, Morgan is said to have seized his son.

Horse Show Plans Talked at Meeting

"Portland is going to have a real horse show this year," declared J. H. Murphy, president of the Hunt club, following a meeting held yesterday afternoon.

The show is to be made a social success as well as an exhibition of fine horsemanship, with the touch of charity to play the proceeds of the venture of benefit to those of less fortunate circumstance. The Visiting Nurse association is to profit jointly with the Hunt club in the venture.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Murphy is negotiating for the loan of Credentia, the world's champion jumping horse, which is owned by a horseman of Vancouver, B. C.

FRANCE ALONE IS NOT WILLING TO DISCUSS PLANS TO END WAR

Dutch Government Sends Out
Feeler and Receives Curt Reply.

THINKS END FAR DISTANT

Wide Difference of Opinion Found Between Opposing Sides as to Situation in the Banks of Other.

By Carl W. Ackerman.

The Hague, Sept. 17.—(By Mail)—(U. P.)—The Dutch government only two months ago sounded the European belligerents on the prospects of peace. Dutch officials have not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is a long way off.

The one positive indication that peace is impossible at present is the wide difference of opinion between each of the opposing sides regarding the situation in the banks of the other. The Dutch government has not only resumed their attempt at peace negotiations, but they are now convinced that the end of the war is