THE STRAIGHT PATH

By George McDonald

SAID, "Let me walk in the field;" He said, "Nay, walk in the town," I said, "There are no flowers there;" He said, "No flowers, but a crown."

I said, "But the skies are black. There is nothing but noise and din;". But he wept as he sent me back. "There is more," he said, "there is sin."

I said, "But the air is thick, And fogs are veiling the sun;" He answered "Yet, souls are sick, And souls in the dark undone.

I said, "I shall miss the light, And friends will miss me, they say;" He answered, "Choose tonight, If I am to miss you, or they."

I pleaded for time to be given; He said, "Is it hard to decide? It will not seem hard in heaven To have followed the steps of your guide." I cast one look on the field,

Then set my face to the town. He said, "My child, do you yield? Will you leave the flowers for a crown?' Then into his hand went mine,

And into my heart came he, And I walked in a light divine, The path I had feared to see.

Thought He Was Maud. WHEN Dr. Harry Lane, now United States senator from Oregon, was superintendent of the Oregon Insane asylum, the grand jury paid the institution a visit. During their tour of inspection the foreman kept up a running fire of criticism and acrimonious comment. One of the other jurors drew Dr. Lane aside and said: "You don't want to pay any attention to him-he's a natural-born kicker." Dr. Lane's eyes twinkled as he led the way to one of the wards they had not yet inspected. "Why do you keep that poor man hobbled and that heavy shackle on his leg?" asked the foreman of the grand jury. "There is no excuse for such cruel and barbarous "Personally, I approve of what has been done, but if you say so I will have the attendant get you the key and you can unlock his shackle and release him," said Dr. Lane, The foreman said, "Get me the key at once." The key was brought and the foreman stooped down and took the hobbles and sharkle off the man's feet. A moment later the foreman uttered an anguished howl and went head-first into the corner. The insane man was braying excitedly and kicking like a battering-ram.

Two of the attendants rushed up and finally overcame the patient, "What shall we do with him?" thee asked of Dr. Lane. Dr. Lane nodded to the foreman of the grand jury and said. "He will tell "Put his hobbles back and get two shackles in place of one," said the foreman of the jury, as he rubbed his bruises. "What did he want to do that for?" "He thinks he is a mule and that his name is Maud," explained Dr. Lane. When he is hobbled, he is perfectly quiet, and, aside from his delusion, he is quite intelligent." The report of the grand fury was very brief, and there was no complaint
