

ALLEGED FISH TRUST METHODS ATTACKED BY SENATOR LANE

Central Labor Council Asked to Help Block Plan Now Pending Before Congress.

ALASKA SCHEME IS BARED

Commissioner Daily Discusses Jitney Question, Declaring Drivers Have Right to Use of the Streets.

The Central Labor Council was addressed last night by United States Senator Harry Lane, who urged upon that body that it take hold of a movement to help block the joint agreement made between the two legislatures of Oregon and Washington and up for ratification by congress that neither state should pass legislation concerning the salmon fishing regulations on the Columbia river without the consent of the other, Senator Lane said:

"I had to stay on the job for three months continuously in the United States senate to prevent the passage of the regulation. They took it out of my committee on fisheries because I would not let it come before the senate, and put it in the hands of the judiciary committee, which did not report. It will be reported at the coming session, and unless something is done present regulations which are destroying the fish of the Columbia and which will rob your children of their inheritance will be continued. Furthermore, the agreement will forever take out of the hands of the people of Oregon the power by the initiative to regulate the fishing on their own river."

Blames It on Trust.

"It cost the fish trust $50,000 to maintain a lobby there in Washington to head me off, and while leather is high my hide is not worth much if it goes on the fence, but the combine that is after your hides knows they are worth a great deal."

Senator Lane then told of another scheme before congress to monopolize the entire salmon fishing wealth of Alaska, and urged the Central Labor Council to combine with all good citizens and protect the great natural wealth of our fisheries.

The timber, oil, coal, meat and other things are in the hands of the trusts," closed the senator. "I want you to help me keep the fish that come from the ocean out of their clutches."

Jitney Issues Discussed.

Will H. Daly, city commissioner, addressed the council on the subject of the jitney versus the street car lines. He quoted figures from the expert report of William J. Hagenah of Chicago on the physical valuation of the property of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Co., to show that there was $4,000,000 of speculative real estate which is held by the company and not used in its business, on which it demands an income of 8 per cent from the operation of the street cars. "According to the report of this Chicago expert, paid $12,000 by the company to tell it what it owned, real estate to the value of $6,490,000 is tabulated, but the figures of Assessor Reed are away below that value. One piece of instance, is valued at $97,000, but Assessor Reed says it is worth $6400."

"We are told that the people of Portland are under some sacred contract to pay eight per cent interest on this higher valuation. Another piece of real estate is valued for dividend paying demands upon us at $260,000 and is assessed at $1,000."

Company Must Take Chances.

Commissioner Daly contended that the street car company took its chances with any other business in facing competition, and that the jitneys had a right to the use of the streets without any other regulation than sufficient to protect the public in making use of their "five-cent taxis."

Another thing Commissioner Daly called attention to is the claim of the company that its "intangibles" is entitled to draw eight per cent. He defined this form of investment as the heritage of interest on alleged total investment in any one year, which is capitalized and added to the burden which it demands shall pay eight per cent thereafter. He denied the right of the company to cash returns on "intangibles" or imaginary investments, and said that the city was under no obligations whatever to assure any man going into business eight per cent on his business, nor any per cent.

In closing, he said: "I do not believe that the gentlemen on the commission of the city of Portland will attempt to do anything so dishonorable as to drive citizens off the streets who are operating the jitneys in the service of the people."

Everett Riot Thema.

Charles Ashley of Seattle addressed the council on the Everett riot, which he declared was provoked by a Wisconsin man, who, masked and in the most cowardly manner, had committed acts of violence upon peaceable citizens intent in a lawful manner upon exercising their constitutional rights. "That this mobocracy was composed of the 'best citizens' of Everett, in his opinion, did not make it any the less anarchic. He quoted from Mayor Gill to show that the Everett citizens were in the wrong and the true anarchists in the matter. The Central Labor Council authorized inquiry to be made concerning the allegations of Mr. Ashley of labor organizations in Seattle, Everett and other places."

Falling Limb Kills Logger at Raymond

Cat's Nine Lives Will Not Save Him Makes Meal of Infected Guinea Pigs

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 10.—(P. N. S.)—It's all up with "Soot," the big black Tom cat at the city hall. His nine lives won't help him. "Soot" got into a nest of guinea pigs in the health department offices today and what he didn't do to those pigs wasn't worth doing. The pigs met sudden death.

But the pigs will have a "come back" despite the fact that they are now deposited in fricasseed form in "Soot's" stomach. For they were all innoculated with disease germs for experi-

Soldiers Believed to Be 2 to 1 for Wilson

Brownsville, Texas, Nov. 9.—(U. P.)—"About 1800 votes were cast on the border by Minnesota troops," Colonel Luca, commanding, told the United Press yesterday. "Of this number about 1200 were for Wilson as near as can be judged, and 600 for Hughes."

"In talking with the men in the First Minnesota, I found that they figured voting for Wilson was 'voting to be sent home,' and men of the Second and Third, I understand, voted for the president for the same reason."

The soldier vote will not be canvassed and counted before next Tuesday.

mental purposes. A late bulletin shows "Soot" developing symptoms of housemaid's knee. If these nine lives of his hold out long enough he will have scrofula, tuberculosis, both in the galloping and gradual form, spotted fever, chicken pox, infantile paralysis and Saint Vitus' dance, pleurisy and charley horses.

Dr. Simmons, the head of the health department, was called in and took a look at the cat. Then he took a look at the empty guinea pig berth. "There is no hope," he said.

DEEP RUMBLINGS OF RENEWED WARFARE IN KEYSTONE STATE

Penrose, It Is Said, Plans to Oust Brumbaugh From the Governorship.

Washington, Nov. 10.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL.)—There are rumblings of renewed warfare among the Penrosians and the Brumbaughians in Pennsylvania. Rumblings not loud, but deep. Impeachment of the governor and repeal of the direct primary and other progressive laws are some of the things likely to be attempted, it is said.

Penrose had a harrowing experience as primaries last spring. His rule was challenged by Governor Brumbaugh. The latter announced himself a candidate for president in order to obtain the preference vote of the state and keep it out of the domination of Penrose.

Just as it seemed in a fair way to succeed, Penrose sprung the famous Oliver check affair. It was shown that David B. Oliver, a brother of Senator Oliver, contributed substantially to Brumbaugh when the latter was the party nominee for governor, but that Brumbaugh never reported the money as a campaign contribution.

The governor said he understood it was intended as a gift of personal appreciation. Oliver said it was intended for the campaign only. A letter missing from Brumbaugh's files added to the middle of mystery. Ultimately the storm subsided, but Brumbaugh's fight was weakened, and he obtained less than half of the delegation to Chicago.

Now it is said the Oliver check business is to be revived to make a Penrose holiday. Confident that he will be able to control the legislature, Penrose plans to oust Brumbaugh from the governorship. If he can do this one of his own pattern will become governor, and the repeal of progressive enactments of a few years ago can be undertaken.

It is a bold plan, even for Penrose, but it is cropping out in several places. With the election over, Penrose no longer has reason to conceal his designs. The whole thing hinges on the docility of the Pennsylvania legislature, which is being canvassed in order to decide who holds the high cards.
