

BANK STOCKHOLDERS NOT LIABLE IF THEY BOUGHT BEFORE 1912

Minnesota Court Decides in Bank Failure Such Owners Cannot Be Made to Pay, DECISION WILL BE FINAL

State Bank Superintendent Sargent Says No Appeal to Supreme Court Will Be Made.

Salem, Or., Nov. 18.—The constitutional amendment which provides that state bank stockholders shall be liable for double the amount of their stock in most retroactive. Stockholders who acquire their holdings prior to the enactment of the amendment in November, 1912, are exempt, the supreme court of Minnesota has held in the case of Yopelita State Bank against Lena Gemmill.

State Bank Superintendent Sargent said Friday that the case would probably not be taken to the United States supreme court. Suit was filed in Minnesota because the stockholders involved reside there.

No Fatal Accidents Reported.

Salem, Or., Nov. 18.—There were reported to the state industrial accidents commission during the week ending

LUMBER CONDITIONS STUDIED BY A PARTY FROM EAST AND SOUTH

Washington and Oregon Interests Receive Visitors and Discuss Situation.

CAR SHORTAGE DISCUSSED

Rail Transportation Facilities Declared Decidedly Short in Every Producing District Represented.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 18.—To meet and confer with the party of leading eastern and southern lumbermen, now touring the Pacific coast, representatives of 120 Washington and Oregon sawmills and woodworking factories were hosts to the visitors here Thursday at a dinner at the Commercial club. Following the dinner, there was a meeting under the auspices of the West Coast Lumbermen's association.

The eastern lumbermen, in whose honor the meeting was held, consisted of R. H. Downman of New Orleans, president of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association; Charles Keith of Kansas City, president of the Southern Pine association; R. B. Goodman of Goodman, Wis.; F. E. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul, head of the great Weyerhaeuser corporation; A. N. Turnbull of Norfolk, Va., president of the North Carolina Pine association, and Warren E. Bullock of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association, Chicago.

Let Us All Consider How We Can Best Serve Ourselves

BY H. S. HARCOURT.

What is a constructive citizen, anyway? He is that one who thinks. He is that one who considers conditions around him, and if they are unsatisfactory he studies how he can do his part toward their betterment.

He never goes into a mental stupor, lies down in the harness and declares that "it can't be done!"

The "constructive" citizen constructs! He wouldn't be enumerated in the class if he didn't.

There is no such thing as "you can't do it" in his vocabulary. He has no use for the expression.

The non-thinker and the "don't give a whooper" is the bane of the constructor, and is the citizen who clogs the wheels of progress. His departure from the community would not be to its injury.

HOW THEY ACT.

The constructive man is ever alert. He is watching out for opportunities. In the business world his influence is felt. It is apparent in the immediate neighborhood of his operations, and often shines out to distant states. But it is sometimes mighty discouraging for the "live" citizen to be shackled to a corpse. And there are patches of country in which there are "animated anatomies" done up in bundles which do no good to any body but themselves. Their own appetites appeased, and they are contented. Fatten their purses, no matter the source or origin of the stuffing, and they will be happy. Garland them with attractive apparel, and they wear smiling countenances.

These are they who supply themselves with their worldly necessities irrespective of their place of manufacture, and who wouldn't leave a sigh if every factory in the community were taken into the hands of the sheriff. They are in the world for what they can individually get out of it, and mistakenly believe the course they are pursuing is the proper one to achieve their ends.

IT DOESN'T WORK OUT.

But it doesn't work out.

The constructive citizen is not continually cogitating on the size of his own bank account. He gives thought to that of his neighbor and the community as well. It is his ambition to assist in the upbuilding and prosperity of his district and its surroundings. He wants that prosperity, like the lava of an active crater, to cover a widespread area, knowing that if this shall be accomplished it will compass his private wealth and increase his wealth, for no considerable community can receive the blessing of plenty and be spotted with poverty as well.

And what makes for universal prosperity, contentment and happiness? A unity of effort. There must be a coalition between the spirits of the people, as well as a union of purpose, and this can and ought to be accomplished in Portland.

MUST PULL TOGETHER.

Manufacturers and the populace should pull together. There ought to be—and there must be—co-operation between them. Heads of all families in the municipality should feel personally interested in the city's manufacturers and the products of their factories. So far as consistent with good business principles and methods, citizens of Portland should spend their money for those things which are made in Portland. In justice to themselves they ought to demand them from their dealers. If this principle of buying were universal in this city, payrolls would be augmented by thousands of names, the extravagant sums of money dispatched to other cities for their manufactures would remain at home, irretrievably in all lines would be benefited and the cry of "dullness" in business would be heard no more.

But this never will be until there is an awakening of the public conscience and individual realization of the importance of loyalty to our own industries. And this will be accomplished when our people will pause in their pellmell scramble to serve their own interests long enough to think and become convinced of the fact that they can best do this by keeping their money in circulation in their own communities. And it "can be done!"

Mr. Linn's remarks on Tuesday at the Ad club were right. Portland people, from the $10,000,000 man will not invest their money in manufacturing industries. There are many reasons for this. Arrangements are well under way to hold public meetings in Portland, among other things, to find out what this reason is. We are going to ask Mr. Linn, with many others, to compare the reasons, as we must have payrolls.
