FURNITURE FACTORY INSTALLS MACHINES TO INCREASE OUTPUT

Doernbecher Manufacturing Co. Builds Engine House for Equipment.

BUSINESS DEMANDS PLANT

Sufficient Power Can Be Generated to Operate Chair Unit to Be Added Next Spring.

The demand for Portland-made furniture is an increasing item, as is indicated in the growth and expansion of the Doernbecher Manufacturing company's furniture plant at Twenty-eighth street and the O-W. R. & N. tracks.

The latest addition to the factory is the installation of a new engine and generator at a total cost of about $20,000, which not only will increase the capacity of the present plant, but also will provide enough power to operate the large chair factory which F. S. Doernbecher intends to erect next spring.

The equipment now being installed consists of a 600 kilowatt generator to replace the old one which furnished 450 kilowatts of power. The mechanical additions will cost $12,000. An engine house is being erected to house the new machinery, and this addition will cost about $2500. Installation charges and wiring will bring the total cost to about $20,000.

The fact that this mechanical equipment provides for the operation of the proposed chair factory gives assurances that this unit of the plant will be erected early in the spring. Jacobberger & Smith, local architects, are now drawing plans that provide for the chair factory unit, which will be 85 by 250 feet in dimensions. The building will be three stories high, of concrete. Provision will be made for the addition of three more stories when demand requires.

With this factory unit, the maximum capacity in value of chairs per year will be $500,000. When the three additional stories are added to the unit, making a six-story building, the possible maximum value of the output will amount to $1,500,000 per year.

The proposed additions were necessitated by the unprecedented business of the plant. F. S. Doernbecher states that he expects the year's run to amount to $850,000, which is $225,000, or 36 per cent, increase over last year.

The Doernbecher plant is rated as the second largest case goods factory in the world in value of output, and third largest in volume of output.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, just try this pleasant tasting home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Thus prepared, you have a pint of really remarkable cough remedy—one that can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief at all times.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and is noted for its speed in overcoming severe cough, throat and chest colds. Its additions of enthusiastic users have made it famous the world over.

There are many worthless imitations of this noted mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

PRESIDENT WILSON TAKES INITIATIVE IN PEACE MOVE

that to Germany indicated by parenthesis, is as follows:

Actual Text of Note.

"Department of State, Washington, Dec. 18, 1916.—The Secretary of State to Ambassador W. H. Page (J. W. Gerard):

"The president directs me to send you the following communication to be presented immediately to the minister of foreign affairs of the government to which you are accredited.

"The president of the United States has instructed me to suggest to his majesty's government (imperial German government) a course of action with regard to the present war which he hopes that the British government (imperial German government) will take under consideration as suggested in the most friendly spirit and as coming not only from a friend, but also coming from the representative of a neutral nation whose interests have been most seriously affected by the war and whose concern for its early conclusion arises out of a manifest necessity to determine how best to safeguard these interests if the war is to continue.

Move Fully Independent.

"The suggestion which I am instructed to make the president has long had in mind to offer. He is somewhat embarrassed to offer it at this particular time because it may now seem to have been prompted by the recent overtures of the central powers (in the German note, 'Prompted by a desire to play a part in connection with the recent overtures of the central powers').

"It is in fact in no way associated with them in its origin and the president would have delayed offering it until those overtures had been answered (in the German note 'It has in fact been in no way suggested by them in its origin and the president would have delayed offering it until those overtures have been independently answered') but for the fact that it also concerns the question of peace and may best be considered in connection with other proposals which have the same end in view.

"The president can only beg that his suggestion be considered entirely on its own merits and as if it had been made in other circumstances.

Views of All Asked.

"The president suggests that an early occasion be sought to call out from all the nations now at war such an avowal of their respective views as to the terms upon which the war might be concluded and the arrangements which would be deemed satisfactory as guarantee against its renewal or the kindling of any similar conflict in the future as would make it possible frankly to compare them.

"He is indifferent as to the means taken to accomplish this. He would be happy himself to serve or even to take the initiative in its accomplishment in any way that might prove acceptable but he has no desire to determine the method or the instrumentality. One way would be as acceptable as another if only the great object he has in mind be attained.

Aims Considered Similar.

"He takes the liberty of calling attention to the fact that the objects which the statesmen of the belligerents on both sides have in mind in this war are virtually the same, as stated in general terms to their own people and to the world. Each side desires to make the rights and privileges of weak peoples and small states as secure against aggression or denial in the future as the rights and privileges of the great and powerful states now at war.

"Each wishes itself to be made secure in the future, along with all other nations and peoples against the recurrence of wars like this and against aggression or selfish interference of any kind.

"Each would be jealous of the formation of any more rival leagues to preserve an uncertain balance of power amidst multiplying suspicions, but each is ready to consider the formation of a league of nations to insure peace and justice throughout the world.

"Before that final step can be taken, however, each deems it necessary first to settle the issues of the present war upon terms which will certainly safeguard the independence, the territorial integrity and the political and commercial freedom of the nations involved.

America Vitally Interested.

"In the measure to be taken to secure the future peace of the world, the people and government of the United States are as vitally and as directly interested as the governments now at war. Their interest, moreover, in the means to be adopted to relieve the smaller and weaker peoples of the world of the peril of wrong and violence is as quick and ardent as that of any other people or government. They stand ready and even eager to cooperate in the accomplishment of these ends when the war is over with every influence and resource at their command.

Terms Not Suggested.

"But the war must first be concluded. The terms upon which it is to be concluded they are not at liberty to suggest, but the president does feel that it is his right and his duty to point out their intimate interest in its conclusion, lest it should presently be too late to accomplish the greater things which lie beyond its conclusion, lest the situation of neutral nations, now exceedingly hard to endure, be rendered altogether intolerable and lest, more than all, an injury be done civilization itself which can never be atoned for or repaired.

Suggestion Felt Justified.

"The president therefore feels altogether justified in suggesting an immediate opportunity for a comparison of views as to the terms which must precede the ultimate arrangements for the peace of the world which all desire and in which the neutral nations as well as those at war are ready to play their full responsible part.

"If the contest must continue to proceed towards undefined ends by slow attrition until the one group of belligerents or the other is exhausted, if million after million of human lives must continue to be offered up until on the one side or the other there are no more to offer, if resentments be kindled that can never cool and despairs engendered from which there can be no recovery, hopes of peace and of the willing concert of free people will be rendered vain and idle.

Entire World Affected.

"The life of the entire world has been profoundly affected. Every part of the great family of mankind has felt the burden and the terror of this unprecedented contest of arms. No nation in the civilized world can be said in truth to stand outside its influence or to be safe against its disturbing effects. And yet the concrete objects for which it is being waged have never been definitely stated.

"The leaders of the several belligerents have, as has been said, stated those objects in general terms.

"But stated in general terms, they seem the same on both sides.

Precise Objects Not Avowed.

"Never yet have the authoritative spokesmen of either side avowed the precise objects which would, if attained, satisfy them and their people that the war had been fought. The world has been left to conjecture what definitive results, what actual exchange of guarantees, what political or territorial changes or readjustments, what stage of military success even, would bring the war to an end.

"It may be that peace is nearer than we know, that the terms which the belligerents on the one side and on the other would deem it necessary to insist upon are not so irreconcilable as some have feared, and an interchange of views would clear the way at least for conference and make the permanent concord of the nations a hope of the immediate future, a concert of nations immediately practicable.

Not Even Offering Mediation.

"The president is not proposing peace; he is not even offering mediation. He is merely proposing that soundings be taken in order that we may learn, the neutral nations with the belligerents, how near the haven of peace may be for which all mankind longs with an intense and increasing longing. The spirit in which he speaks and the objects which he seeks will be understood by all concerned, and he confidently hopes for a response which will bring a new light into the affairs of the world.

(Signed) "LANSING."

Bryan Indorses Note.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 21.—(U. P.)—"Hearty indorsement" of President Wilson's note to the belligerent nations was made here today by William Jennings Bryan, former secretary of state.

"The president has rendered a distinct service in throwing the great influence of this country into the balance on the side of peace," he said.

Senator Borah Would Wait.

Washington, Dec. 21.—(U. P.)—Senator Hitchcock, Nebraska, presented a resolution today indorsing President Wilson's note to the warring powers and asked immediate consideration of it. Senator Borah, (Idaho) opposed immediate adoption of the resolution.

The resolution was introduced before news of Secretary Lansing's "exploratory statement" had reached the capitol.

Borah said that while the president's offer evidently was made with the best intentions, he felt a resolution by the senate should be withheld at this time, and suggested that a more effective plan for bringing about peace may later present itself.

The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations. It follows:

"That the senate strongly endorses and approves that action taken by the president in sending diplomatic notes under date of December 16 to the nations now engaged in war, suggesting and recommending the first steps in possible negotiations to arrange the terms of peace.

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the senate that this action of the president represents the overwhelming public sentiment and earnest desires of the people of the United States."

Today Is Shortest Day of Year 1916

Daylight Came Later and Will Go Later—Only Nine Hours to Do Daylight Shopping.

Today is the shortest day of the year.

No, that's wrong. Today is the day with the shortest daylight period of the year.

It has 24 hours like any other day, but the least daylight.

Daylight came later this morning, and night will fall earlier this afternoon, than on any other day in the whole year. The period of daylight will be approximately nine hours. Those who wish to pick out Christmas gifts by daylight should shop early in the day.

From now on, the days will gradually get longer and longer until June 21, which is the longest day in the year.

Strangely enough, too, although it seems like spring, today is the beginning of winter.

Most anyone will admit this is a very important day, as far as the seasons are concerned.
