Club Activities

BY VELLA WINNER

ONE OF the best meetings yet held by the Hoffman association was that of Friday afternoon. The attendance was large and an inspiring address was given by Mrs. J. F. Chapman on the work of the Franklin high school Mrs. Frederick Goss and Miss Winifred Goss gave a piano duet and Edwin Coffin gave a cornet solo. Informal addresses were made by three visitors, Mrs. J. D. Zurcher, president of Clinton Kelly association; Mrs. Fisher of eastern Oregon, and Mrs. J. J. Handsacker, chairman of the program committee of Arleta association. Refreshments were served. There were 40 present.

Woman's Club Meets.—The Portland Woman's club program Friday afternoon was distinguished for interesting discussions of the "Tenure of Office Law," and the proposed amendments to this teacher's tenure law given by Professor E. H. Whitney of Ockley Green school and Dr. Alan Welch Smith, school director. Dr. Smith exposed what he considered weak points in the present law. Professor Whitney defended the teacher's tenure law and declared it to be an important factor in achieving interest and efficiency on the part of educators. Both speakers spoke in authoritative fashion and gave many points for careful thought on the part of their hearers.

Mrs. J. D. Spencer, representing the literature department of the club, talked upon the Bronte sisters, their life, their work, and their unique position in literature. Mrs. Spencer was thoroughly in sympathy with her subject and brought out many interesting facts concerning these authors. Club business, with Mrs. C. B. Simmons in the chair, and parliamentary drill, under direction of Mrs. Grace Watt Ross, constituted a part of the afternoon's proceedings.

Albina Homestead Association.—The Albina Homestead Parent-Teacher association held an interesting meeting Friday afternoon.

A "cowboy drill" by the boys was given in true cowboy style; this, together with a "Goodnight" song and drill by the girls, was enjoyed by all and showed careful training by their teacher, Miss Segal.

Mrs. Edna A. Bell told of and illustrated some of the latest methods of educating the child in music in the most efficient way. J. R. Purcell, teacher of English from Jefferson high, gave a talk on "The Importance of Speaking the English Language Correctly," and emphasized the need of this being done in the home. He advised increasing the childs' vocabulary by giving them a new word to express their thought, also suggested that parents correct the grammatical errors of their children by taking a word at a time for a week or more. The association decided to act on this and for the next month will make an effort to have their chidren replace "can I" with "may I."

A "silver tea" will be held at the home of Mrs. W. G. Wharton, 782 Cleveland avenue, January 26, from 2 to 5 o'clock. The entertainment committee decided on February 20 as the date for an entertainment to be given.

Ockley Green Has Busy Meeting.—The Ockley Green Parent-Teacher association was addressed Thursday by Miss Grace De Graff, her subject being "The Tenure of Office Law." At the conclusion of her address the association voted to stand by the law as it now exists. Helen Pfeifer gave a recitation. Flavia Gustafson gave a piano solo. The association made a Christmas present of five dollars to the school to purchase Victrola records, and these were played Friday to the enjoyment of all present. Mrs. Matthew, chairman of the social service committee, made a report of the work done by her committee during the holidays: 23 garments were cleaned, mended and distributed among the needy and many baskets of food were sent out. Under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Williams refreshments were served. The attendance was unusually large, the assembly hall being filled.

Mount Tabor Has Social Meeting.—Dr. E. Olin Eldridge, who was to have addressed the Mount Tabor Parent-Teacher association Thursday, was detained on account of illness and the meeting was made a social affair and served as an excellent means of getting acquainted. The children gave piano numbers and recitations.

Highland Association Meets.—The attendance was not large at the meeting of the Highland Parent-Teacher association held Friday afternoon, but those present heard an excellent address by Miss Pauline Pease on the high cost of living. Mrs. Ross Miller gave a reading and there was music. In response to an invitation to the mothers to visit the library with their children, the association voted to pay a visit to the North Albina branch next Friday when there will be a story hour for the children.

Tuesday Afternoon Club.—The Tuesday Afternoon club met on January 9 at the home of Mrs. E. H. Whitney, 1384 Missouri street. After the business meeting, the club took up the study of the French critic, Boileau. Mrs. George L. Boynton gave a paper on his life and literary achievements, and Mrs. H. F. Travis gave selected readings from his writings. Mrs. J. C. Cooper and Mrs. Powell were guests of the club.

The Tuesday Afternoon club will hold its next meeting on January 16 at the home of Mrs. J. B. Laber, 955 First street, at 2 o'clock.

Capitol Hill to Have Entertainment.—At the meeting of Capitol Hill Parent-Teacher association held Thursday evening a number of matters of business were attended to. Plans were made for an entertainment to be given soon, the money to be used to help finance the bills of the Parent-Teacher council. Plans were also made for the observance of Child Labor day.

St. Johns Association Meets.—Seventy-five mothers and teachers attended the meeting of St. Johns Parent-Teacher association held Thursday afternoon. Mr. Van Tine told of the great N. E. There was a large audience.

Bed Time Tales

BY CLARA INGRAM JUDSON

A Bad Start.

NOW maybe you think that it was very foolish for Father Beaver to think something dreadful had happened to Redhead just because he didn't hear him call his cheerful "rap-ap-ap-ap" along with the other birds. Maybe you would call that "jumping at conclusions" too easily.

Well, you are right. He should not have been so ready to believe that something had gone wrong; he should have believed that everything was right and then hunted up his friend. But you mustn't blame Father Beaver too much. You see, in the woods things are very different. So many dreadful things happen suddenly and without a mite of warning that friends can hardly help being a big anxious. And when Father Beaver failed to hear Redhead call as usual, he supposed Redhead was killed or at least was in dire trouble and, of course, he was anxious.

Bushy Beaver saw his father sitting so still and looking so sad, and he came up and spoke to him. "What's bothering you so, Father Beaver," he said, "can I help?"

"I think something has happened to Redhead," sighed Father Beaver, "and I was wishing I could go and hunt for him."

"Is he so far away?" asked Bushy eagerly.

"He must be," replied Father Beaver, "because if he were nearer, we would have heard his call, I'm sure he would! It will be a long, long search that will find him; a hard, hard quest and I feel that I should not leave my home so long."

"What's bothering you so, Father Beaver," he said,, "can I help?"

Bushy pricked up his damp ears and sat very straight. "Can't I go?" he asked. "I've always wanted to do something big! Do let me go!"

Father Beaver looked at Bushy. "It may take you far from home," he said.

"And it may not," added Bushy, who didn't want his father to think it was too big a task, lest he would not allow his son to start. "Have you thought of asking Wizzy, the owl, about Redhead? Maybe he could tell you something that would stop your worrying."

"An owl!" exclaimed Father Beaver. "Pooh! I guess I know what I'm talking about! Something dreadful's happened to Redhead; I don't need a sleepy owl to tell me that!" And Father Beaver got so angry at the very idea of his being wrong that he made up his mind then and there to let Bushy go on the quest for Redhead. And right then was when he made a mistake. Never make up your mind when you are angry—you'll be wrong every time.

Monday—Bushy's Quest.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night. (Adv.)

DESPISED GRAY FISH NOW BEING CANNED IN LARGE QUANTITIES

Government Bureau Declares Fish Will Some Day Be Highly Prized Food Article.

Once heartily despised and cordially feared by the fishermen of the Pacific coast, the ferocious grayfish is now coming into its own as a food for the masses. A bulletin just issued by the bureau of fisheries of the United States department of commerce indicates that the fish some day will become as highly prized as its cousins of more savory repute.

"A canning concern on Puget sound is putting up 10,000 cases (480,000 cans) of grayfish of its own motion and risk, using for this purpose the plant and machinery devoted to canning salmon but which at this season of the year is idle," the bulletin says. "The canners have found that the mechanical apparatus used in canning salmon which reduces hand labor to a minimum is applicable to the canning of grayfish.

"A supply of grayfish is at this season of the year available on the west coast, lasting until just before the salmon begin to run. The grayfish are not found in the winter on the Atlantic coast but are present there during the summer. The result of this arrangement is that a winter pack can be made upon the Pacific and a summer pack upon the Atlantic. Specimens of the Pacific product have been submitted to and approved by the bureau of fisheries which will do its best to make the product known.

"The demand for grayfish is already far in excess of the present supply but with the new Pacific product and the resumption of work in the spring upon the Atlantic product, a larger pack will be made than has heretofore been possible."

Ohio Suffragists Oppose Picketing

Eastern Idea of Getting Votes for Women, Inaugurated at White House, Is Frowned Upon in Buckeye State.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 13.—(I. N. S.)—Ohio suffragists have refused to adopt the eastern idea of picketing the White House. The proposal was made to them several days ago, with announcement of a plan for picketing all state capitols where suffrage to women is not granted. The Ohio suffragists said the move was unwise. They have a bill pending by which they hope to get from the legislature a law to allow them to vote in presidential elections.

WHAT LABOR IS DOING

Labor Will Be Represented at Salem to Work With Farmers.

Stack Will Represent Labor.—E. J. Stack, secretary of the Central Labor council and of the State Federation of Labor, will be sent to Salem to represent the forces of organized labor before the legislature, and to work in harmony with the representatives of the Farmers' union, the grange and the railroad brotherhoods. It was thought that these representatives in the lobby and the members friendly to the Oregon system of direct legislation in the body of the legislature will be sufficient to prevent any overt attacks being successful on the initiative, referendum and recall.

Smith Declines Reelection.—The Central Labor council Thursday night met with a large turnout of delegates, among them being four ladies. E. E. Smith announced that he would not accept an election as president. A number of nominations were made for officers, and the election will be held on Thursday night, January 25.

Will Defend Boycott and Picketing.—A committee of five, consisting of E. E. Smith, E. J. Stack, Oscar Horne, T. H. Burchard and Frank Hannon, was instructed to draw up a circular letter, to be sent to each member of the legislature, setting forth the views of organized labor on the inalienable right of boycott and picketing.

Did Not Present Credentials.—Delegates appointed to attend the Rose Culture and Experiment conference, held last week, reported that they did not present their credentials, owing to the fact that C. M. Rynerson had forgotten to mail them. The delegates reported, however, that the gathering and its objects did not appear to them to be in the line of activities marked out for the Central Labor council, and therefore the delegates were discharged.

Want Portland Brooms.—The purchasing committee reported that an effort would be made to secure an order for 5000 house brooms, and hoped that they would be all made in Portland by a Portland firm.

Referred to State Federation.—The proposed amendments to the mining and the laborers' lien law were referred to the State Federation of Labor, to meet in Salem on January 22.

Want the Cooks.—The waiters reported that they were endeavoring to interest the cooks in hotels and restaurants in the movement to unite in one culinary union.

Discussed Boycotts.—A great deal of the time of the session was taken up with reports on various boycotts and altercations with employers that are being adjusted.

Many Homestead Filings.

Condon, Or., Jan. 13.—The county clerk's office has been besieged for the last few days by persons filing on homesteads. Under the new 640-acre homestead law every foot of range land in Gilliam county will be taken up and filed on in the next few days.

FRATERNAL NOTES

The jewels are emblematic of the order and set on gold medalions inscribed with the name of the receiver.

The following were the veterans receiving them: E. J. Sprague, C. H. Mensdorffer, A. B. Crossman, L. E. Shorno, G. P. Fuller, Stevenson Harkins, James A. Mott, Fred D. Mathews, James O. And then Mrs. Nelson was brought before the throne. A handsome upholstered rocking chair was presented to the Nelsons with stern admonitions that both occupy it at once on the royal dais which they did amid the cheers and applause of the audience.

Dancing followed the conclusion of the elaborate and beautiful configurations of the brigands under command of Mokanna H. A. Groocock and Captain Fred P. Holm. Refreshments of cider, coffee and doughnuts were served in the banquet hall to all comers.

WHY MEN LEAVE HOME

One of the causes of unhappiness in many homes is the tendency of the husband to be away from home at night. For a few years after marriage all is serene. Then the husband starts to go out at night, leaving the wife at home alone. At first his absences are infrequent and of short duration but they gradually increase in length and frequency until he is out nearly all evening of nearly every night.

"Of course, sometimes there is another woman in the case; or again the husband desires the associations of the club or saloon; but more frequently the blame lies at the door of the wife.

"The husband goes outside the home to find the congenial mental companionship that he ought to find in his own home and in his wife. After a hard day's work, either mental or physical, the husband wishes in the evening to have mental recreation. He wants to talk over the questions of the day, events that are discussed in the leading newspapers and magazines—the European war, the Mexican question, the administration's defense program, the presidential campaign, matters of international, national, state and local interest.

"The wife is an excellent cook, a splendid housekeeper and the husband loves her devotedly, but his mind craves intellectual companionship. This she does not give him. Her time is so taken up with household duties that she does little or no reading. Consequently she has no comprehensive knowledge of current events and the husband finds that he cannot discuss these things with his wife. If he tries it, he finds that it is merely a monologue on his part, for she is not even an intelligent listener. It is not the keen meeting of well-informed mind with well-informed mind that is so full of delight to the normal man. Thus the husband is compelled to spend his evenings away from home or have his intellectual life dwarfed.

"Wives, no matter how busy you are with household affairs, 20, 30 minutes or an hour will accomplish wonders toward making you the intellectual companion as well as the physical mate of your husband. Remember, he did not ask you to be his wife merely to get a housekeeper."

Rather tough on the missus, many of you will agree with me. She probably is so busy cooking and scrubbing and mending for her husband and her family that she finds it impossible to keep well informed even if she had the inclination.

And after all, the man did choose her!

FENWAY FRUIT SALAD

Place in receptacle one layer sliced bananas, one layer sliced oranges, pour over this a can of pineapple cocktail, then cover the whole with above cream. Sprinkle over this ground nut meat and add several maraschino cherries.

BEEF CUTLETS—Put the beef through the chopper (as for hamburg steak), season with sage and pepper, moisten with cream, then mold in cutlet form and boil. Serve with a brown sauce made by browning a slice of onion in two tablespoons of butter, adding a little salt, pepper and two tablespoons of stock. Boil until smooth, then add a hard-boiled egg, chopped in small pieces.

Beauty Chat

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL

Good Looks Depend on Mentality.

ANY human being who is so unfortunate as to live in a state of complete intellectual inanition or emptiness fills the mind of the beholder with pity and disgust.

But that same person with his intellectual powers developed by culture would in time reshape his features to a symmetry and expression that would command respect if not admiration.

Illustrations of the influence of education in modifying the features may be observed every day and in every neighborhood.

The general statement that intellectual culture modifies configuration will rarely call for an expression of dissent.

The difference observable between a highly educated person and one whose intellect has received no special culture are too striking to admit a doubt on that point.

We have daily proofs that the body is molded and controlled by the mind—which gives it a configuration adapted to its own proper manifestations.

The phrenologists have proved clearly enough not only that wherever there is intellectual improvement the head grows, getting larger and better shaped, but that the special cultivation of any particular faculty or class of faculties modifies its form by developing the organs of those faculties in the brain.

The lines of the face and the form of the body are therefore just as inevitably changed by intellectual cultivation, whether general or special, as the shape of the head.

There is a constant relation between the body and the mind. Slavery, vice and ignorance brutalize the features, while virtue, independence and knowledge ennoble them.

How hideous is the countenance of an ignorant, vicious man! How admirable is that of an honest man enlightened by knowledge and science!

One of the most striking effects of intellectual culture on configuration is observed in the gradual change which takes place in the outlines presented in a front view of the head and face.

The expansion of the forehead and the superior and more intellectual portions of the face, and the absolute refining down of the lower parts produce a marked departure from the circular, which is the lower order of form, and an approach more or less near to the perfect oval form.

This alone is a great gain in the direction of beauty — for nothing is fore repugnant to correct taste than rotundity of form and bullet-headedness in a man or a woman, significant as such a confirmation is of predominant amiability.

If we study the face in detail we may observe that there takes place during the process of culture an evident change for the better in the expression of the eye, a softening of the lines of the eyebrows and a lateral expansion of the nose from the bridge downward. The lips find a sweeter expression and become more gracefully arched and firmer. The chin more delicate and clearly defined and the lines of the face, as a whole, more diversified and beautiful.

The higher the culture the more varied will be the expression of the countenance, and the more capable of the highest beauty. Organization and forms are growing more complicated as we rise in the scale of being.

Any face, however, no matter how highly the intellect which informs it may have been cultivated, will fall far short of perfect beauty unless the moral feelings and affections have received due development, and excesses here, as well as in any other direction, produce disproportion and deformity.

Gets Judgment in U. S. Cashier Case

Jury Holds Defendants Must Pay Commission on Sale of Patent Rights to Parties in England.

The jury in Judge Morrow's court in the case of R. A. Hume vs. S. M. Mears, the United States Cashier company and Thomas Bilyeu, returned a verdict for the plaintiff yesterday for $21,500, the total amount sued for as commission due for the sale of patent rights.

It was alleged that the defendants failed to assign their English patent rights to the machines after purchasers were ready and willing to pay $75,000 for the rights; the plaintiff further claimed that the basic patents are held by another party. In defense it was asserted that the patent rights were duly assigned, but that the purchasers failed to pay over the money, as it had been agreed. Arthur Goodby of London, had assigned the claim to Hume.

Perjury Is Charge Against Detective

Peter Stone Arrested Again on Accusation That He Obtained Shipments of Liquor in Various Valley Towns.

Peter Stone, a private detective, was arrested yesterday afternoon at police headquarters by Sheriff W. G. Henderson of Yamhill county on a charge of perjury. It is alleged that Stone on his return from California stopped in McMinnville and four other towns in that locality signing fictitious names to affidavits and receiving liquor.

Stone was first arrested in Portland by Patrolmen Wellbrook and Miller with two suit cases of liquor with him. He was released on his statement that he brought the goods from California for his own consumption. It was while waiting for the return of his liquor that the warrant was served on him by the Yamhill county sheriff.
