portation of Prisoners on Same Basis as the Insane.

SAVING MORE THAN HALF

Sheriffs of State Are Opposed to Beform, But Author Believes Lobby Could Be Beaten.

Salem, Or., Feb. 13.—Ten days ago bill, providing for the transportation of prisoners from the county of their commitment to the penitentiary, by guards sent after them by the warden of the penitentiary, to the ways and means committee of the house. It carried a small appropriation, and under the rules of the house was required to be sent there. It is still there.

The ways and means committee has been a pretty busy body of men, and it has been considering institutional needs, so it has had some reason for not taking up the Stott bill. But with five days of the session remaining and the bill not yet passed by the house. it is rapidly drifting near the danger line beyond which no house bill may safely go and live through the maei-strom of the closing hours of the would save a great deal of money to the state were it to be enacted into law, just as the enactment of the statute which changed the old system of transporting patients to the asylum has saved thousands of dollars annually at that institution.

The sheriffs of the state are against the Stott bill, and so is Warden Murphy. He contends that the present cumbersome and expensive system, by which the sheriffs bring prisoners to the penitentiary, keeps these officials in closer touch with the penitentiary than would be the case were penitentiary guards to be sent after convited

Under the system now in effect at the asylum, which the Stott bill would | put into effect at the penitentiary, it cost the asylum during the past two years an average of $6.10 per capita to bring insane patients from the point of commitment to the asylum. Convicts Cost Double.

During the same period of time the average cost of transporting convicts to the penitentiary under the old system of personally conducted trips by the sheriffs of the state was $15.26.

Representative Stott is now trying to get his bill passed upon by the ways and means committee, and reported out to the house where it can be considered upon its merits. In view of the great showing of economy made by the asylum in transporting patients over the showing made by that institution under the old system, and by the penitentiary which is still using the old
