Beauty Chat

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL

Quacking.

BEAUTY is perfect only just so far as it is healthy. The desire for beauty is praiseworthy, and should and would be rewarded, were her laws abided by to the letter. The law is, first of all, cleanliness. That covers every meaning of the word—"Free from blemish, morelly pure and ceremonially clean"—a state that cannot be acquired in the drug stores.

There are rules of diet and exercise which have the beautifying effects so much desired and expressed in the complexion, brightness of the eyes and lightness of carriage. They have but to be followed carefully to insure beauty of person.

Nothing is gained or retained without some effort, spiritually or physically. Bright eyes cannot be purchased at a chemist's. There are some concoctions which give an artificial luster to the eyes temporarily, but the effect is soon lost, and with it the sight. A woman writes that she had long lashes and clear eyes until she used a salve which she purchased at a drug store for rubbing on the eyes or lids at night to enhance the beauty of the eyes and lashes. The salve cost but 25 cents, but it cost her her lashes—almost her eyesight. She has granulated eyelids and cannot see at all in a bright light, but suffers pain in her eyes, and they water so freely that she cannot keep them open. When will women learn not to quack themselves? It is pitiful to see the effects of such a practice. All that young woman had to do, if she had nice eyes and nice lashes, was to keep them clean, free from dirt and dust. There are also all sorts of preparations on the market to entice and snare thoughtless women. There is little beauty wrapped up in packages to be sold across the counter. Above all, beware of the cheap beautifiers.

It costs more than a quarter to purchase beautiful eyes and lashes. Generally, the ingredients which cause the lashes to grow, even the simple petroleum products like vaseline, will injure the eyes if they come in contact with them.

There are many women who desire to remove superfluous flesh by outside applications and still expect the flesh to remain healthy and smooth. There is an iodine preparation for reducing flesh on the market which is as dangerous to the body as the eye salve which ruined the lashes and eyes of the woman in distress who wrote and wanted me to send her a formula that would cure her at once.

This iodine treatment has in many cases I know of left the skin of the body in a sore, rough condition that caused painful irritations and ended in nervous prostration. How much easier, healthier and more attractive would have been the reducing effect of exercise. The same number of minutes spent in rubbing this dreadful concoction onto the body might have been spent in briskly walking around the block, in inhaling the fresh air and limbering up the muscles—all of which would have had a reducing effect together with the effect of health and beauty.

So long as women will persist in quacking themselves will diseases of all kinds grow. Granulated eyelids should be seriously treated by a physician. Obesity is a disease brought on by neglect and should be treated by a physician and he will prescribe just as I do for its cure. Cleanliness, exercise and diet are all that is needed. Nothing that you can buy in a drug store will alter your shape, brighten your eyes with health nor digest an overabundance of food.

You must get out into God's pure air and take large doses of that for brightness of the eyes, symmetrical lines and good digestion. Such treatment enhances, if it does not absolutely make beauty.

FURTHER EFFORTS TO RESTRAIN HIGH PRICE OF FOODS TO BE MADE

Pursuing Plan to Reduce Cost of Living Parent-Teacher Council Gives Schedule.

Following is the list of foods offered at special prices on Thursday by merchants who are cooperating with the Portland Parent-Teacher council in its effort to reduce living expenses:

Graham flour, 10 lb. sack, 45c; whole wheat flour, 10 lb. sack, 45c; pearl tapioca, 2 lb. sack, 15c; pure cocoa, 22c a lb.

Yellow corn meal, 9 lb. sack, 35c.
White beans, 8c a lb.
Dill pickles, 17½c a doz.
Pot roast at 15c a lb.
Round steak at 16c a lb.; sirloin steak at 14c a lb.; picnic ham at 15c a lb.
Olympic flour, 49 lb. sack, $1.95; Wessons cooking oil at 23c.
Sirloin steak at 12½c a lb.; picnic ham at 15c a lb.; lard, No. 5 pail, 90c.
Prunes at 7c a lb.
White beans, 3 lbs. for 25c.
Sirloin steak, 15c and 18c a lb.

Following is the typical menu which includes a number of the foods offered at low prices:

BREAKFAST.
Coddled Apples
Codfish Balls Toast
Coffee or Milk

LUNCHEON.
Creamed Chipped Beef on Toast
Prune Nut Salad
Bread and Butter Tea or Cocoa

DINNER.
Vegetarian Broth
Veal Stew with Vegetables
Rice Border
Cabbage Salad with Peanut Butter Dressing
Cottage Pudding Prune Sauce

At this season apples need special tratment to develop and retain their flavor. Cooking them slowly in syrup and seasoning with cinnamon stick or lemon rind brings out an unsuspected spiciness.

Codfish bought in brick form is very easily prepared since all bones have been removed, and it is very inexpensive when one considers the amount of food value it provides.

A happy combination is the prune salad, prunes being obtainable at special prices. Soak the Italian prunes over night, cook in same water, drain, remove seeds, arrange on lettuce leaves, sprinkle with chopped nut meats and serve with boiled or mayonnaise dressing. The nuts may be omitted if stricter economy is necessary.

A brown stew with tender vegetables, onions, carrots and potatoes, served with a border of well cooked and seasoned rice, is a nutritious and palatable dish. The rice water may be used as a soup foundation.

Shredded cabbage dressed with peanut butter thinned with cream and seasoned with salt and vinegar or lemon juice makes an appetizing and quickly made salad.

A recipe for cottage pudding is given below. The sauce is made from the juice of the prunes used at luncheon.

Cottage Pudding.

¼ cup fat (oleomargarine or crisco), 2-3 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 2¼ cups flour, 4 teaspoonfuls baking powder. Cream fat, add sugar gradually and egg well beaten, mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt, add alternately with milk to first mixture, turn into greased cake pan, bake 35 minutes or steam one hour and serve warm with heated and sweetened prune juice.

Eugene Boy Paroled To Aunt in Portland

Eugene, Or., Feb. 21.—Arthur Shirey, aged 19 years, arrested here several weeks ago on the charge of perjury in signing another's name for a shipment of liquor, was sentenced by Judge G. F. Skipworth of the circuit court to a term in the penitentiary of from 2 to 5 years, but was paroled to his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Byers of Portland, who took him to that city on the next train.

Harley Ham, arrested in Oakland, Cal., a short time ago on the charge of white slavery, the charge later being changed to larceny in a dwelling, was indicted Tuesday by the grand jury on the latter charge, also on the charge of larceny.

ABOUT STEAK Once upon a time there was a woman who put her steak on a cold frying pan, lighted the fire and left the steak to its own devices until her husband came home. This might be held up as a good reason why men leave home or, rather, forget to come home and enjoy a hot, juicy steak down town, where the meat is put on at the customer's order and cooked just long enough to make it hot through.

Your cut of steak will depend on your pocketbook and the number of persons to be served. An ordinary family can not afford to have steak every day in the year, but an occasional steak is a real treat when well cooked, and if the end and bone are used for a next-day stew, it is not such an extravagance as the first cost seems.

If you have a good butcher, and you yourself are rather uncertain on the cut of steaks, it is safer to ask for a good steak, and you usually will get it. Many butchers take pride in the trust that regular customers give them and know that one good steak is followed by a request for "one like you gave me last week."

Meat should be rather dark than light in color, as the darker meat is better aged. The odor should never be strong, but many persons prefer a steak that has "hung" long enough to give it a "game flavor."

Steak is always better if cooked by a flame that comes down upon it. This draws the juices to the top, instead of drying them out on a skillet, but a steak can be well cooked with less fuel on a skillet. An electric or gas broiler usually has a broiling pan to fit the oven. The gas flame should not touch the meat, but the steak can be put quite close to an electric element.

In lamb or mutton, rib or loin chops, are a matter of taste. But the rib chop seems really more economical. English chops are loin chops cut about three ordinary chops thick, and cost three times as much. But they are really more like a mutton steak, and may be carved to serve two.

Of course, the thickness of a chop or steak does make a difference in the juiciness, but a thin piece of meat may be well cooked, and come out tender and juicy. Sirloin tips, which are very thin, are delicious when quickly broiled or even fried on a hot pan.

It is quite against all tradition to flour steak and chops before broiling, but it is an almost sure method of keeping the juice in, and it has absolutely no effect on the flavor. The meal also will keep better if some member of the family is late.

STEAMED CABBAGE Cut cabbage the same as for sauerkraut. Three slices fat bacon, cut up into small pieces, fried out nice and brown. Add to cabbage, put in frying pan, add ¼ cup vinegar, cover with water, season with salt and pepper to taste, cover closely in frying pan and cook slowly, 1¼ hours or until cooked.

MOCK BISQUE SOUP One-half can of tomatoes, 1 quart of milk, ½ cup of butter, 1 tablespoon corn starch, 1 teaspoon of salt, ½ saltspoon of white pepper. Stew tomatoes until soft enough to strain easily. Boil milk in a double boiler. Cook 1 tablespoon of butter and the corn starch together in saucepan, adding enough hot milk to make it pour easily. Stir this carefully into the boiling milk and boil 10 minutes. Add rest of butter and stir until melted. Add salt, pepper and strained tomatoes, being sure to first add ½ saltspoon of soda to tomatoes. Serve very hot.

BEAUTY COMES HIGH Dorothy Gray, a New York beauty expert, who uses her fingers in an attempt to make new millionaire's wives out of old ones, has insured her fingers for $50,000, her press agent declared here today. It is learned from the same source that Miss Gray has developed velvety little mounds of flesh on the tips of her fingers and that is what makes her price prohibitive to every one but the very wealthy.

Singer Has Novel Act.

MILLIE MILNE, the movie singer, with films made especially for her as a setting, presents a pretty and novel act in the new bill which opened at the Strand theatre this afternoon. This attractive act is one of a quartet of features that score. Beauclair and Robinson cover the full range of elements that appeal to an audience in the line of singing. Both operatic and popular selections are included in their repertory. Hawaii continues to be to the fore in vaudeville popularity and the Wright Hawaiians have an Hawaiian offering with all the frills and novelties necessary to make it a rightful claimant for the popularity that the American people are giving this type of entertainment at this time. Something that makes a hit with the younger generation and gives elders also an excuse for slipping off to the theatre with the kiddies is the Fisher Society circus, with brand new and sparkling equipment of trained dogs and ponies. The motion picture feature of the film is the Bluebird presentation of "The Saintly Sinner."

Fashion Shows to Resume.

Beginning next Monday night the Columbia theatre in cooperation with the Eastern Outfitting company will resume the fashion shows which were so popular early last fall. These shows give the women patrons ideas in advance not alone as to what styles will prevail but also how the different garments would look on themselves.

Entertainment Is Pronounced Success

One of the most successful entertainments in Camera club history was given in the club rooms in the Elks' building Tuesday night. There were 150 present. A delightful feature was the showing of color stereopticon views by Fred H. Kiser of northwest scenery, including Glacier National park, Crater Lake, the Columbia, also of wild flowers. Piano selections were rendered by Miss Ethel Barksdale Warner and bagpipe music with Scotch songs by Bill Gray. All present expressed approval of the new club rooms. The Camera club's next outing was announced for the coming Sunday to Oswego lake, leaving Portland about 9 a. m. Next Tuesday the club will arrange for a "get-to-quainted" evening in its rooms.

Half Breed Indian Accused of Forgery

Rennie Callahan, half breed Siletz Indian, was brought to Portland last night by Deputy United States Marshal Berry following his arrest on the Siletz reservation, charged with forging indorsement of a money order.
