AIM OF RETREAT OF GERMANS TO PREVENT BIG ALLIED OFFENSIVE

Official Explanation Is That Entente Plans For Spring Drive Are Destroyed.

PREDICT VICTORY IN END

Positions to Be Taken by Germans, It Is Said, Embody Newest Lessons of War; Miles From Present Line.

By John Grandens.

Berlin, Via Wireless to the United Press, March 21.—(U. P.)—Germany is retreating to a victory; another master stroke has been achieved by Field Marshal von Hindenburg and the entente's plans for a great spring offensive have been destroyed.

This, in brief, is the official explanation given for the first time today to the United Press, of Germany's retirement on the western front.

Germany is retreating to a victory because her armies are taking their places in new positions, long prepared.

Those positions embody the newest lessons of the war. They will force the enemy to learn their trade all over again. They would astound tacticians if their full details were revealed, according to German officials.

They may effect a transformation of the entire character of the war.

Means of Communication Effaced.

In the meantime Germany has been clearing the whole country in front of these new positions. They are miles back of the present line. The whole country intervening between the old German line and the new one has by necessity of war and necessity of the new German plans been made a wilderness. Roads have been destroyed; the whole terrain has been made difficult of passage. All means of communication have been effaced. Some villages have utterly disappeared. Some have been only partially wrecked. Not only has a free zone of fire been obtained by such a procedure, but the enemy must come forward slowly over a ground so hazardous.

In their new positions the German forces will face an enemy either hurriedly brought up over this difficult wilderness and, because of this hurry, insufficiently supplied, or an enemy which has come forward very slowly because of necessity of building up the country.

Guns Carefully Ranged.

In either event, it is said, the enemy will be at a disadvantage. Months of toil by a million German soldiers have been expended in perfecting the new German line. The German forces will be entrenched in the strongest possible defenses, protected by forests of barbed wire entanglements. A free fire zone in front will give them clear view of the enemy. Guns have been carefully ranged over all this forefield. The enemy must come up; must dig itself in; must arrange transport of millions of tons of ammunition, of food and of supplies over the wilderness left behind by the Germans in their retreat. The allies will face German forces prepared for every contingency and protected as an army was never protected before by long preparations.

It has been impossible to carry out this program of a retreat leaving behind a wilderness without severe hardship to the French civilian inhabitants. But the move is demanded.

Natural Advantages Utilized.

Officials also point out that the new line selected by the German army chiefs is not one picked haphazard. It was not one where the fortunes of battle have forced digging in and a consequent strengthening such as the old line. The battle of the Marne, which was unfavorable to Germany, forced German troops to make their stand wherever they could, irrespective of natural advantages. They had to withstand many months of pressure by entente troops since that time. Therefore, the old line was not taken up because of special strategic advantages.

The new line is. It lies in the position where engineers and strategical experts have chosen every feature of topography as an aid. All natural advantages have been utilized and developed.

Will Intercept Offensive.

All this change comes at the very point where Germany's enemies had planned a new spring offensive—and an offensive backed this time with redoubled power. The French and British had planned to take the initiative from the old positions, which they had perfected.

The German withdrawal secures for Germany the initiative for the fighting, while putting her enemies at a disadvantage because they will lack prepared positions.

As officials here express it—the entente troops must now go forward over deserted fields into uncertainty, facing, unknowing, the sinister possibilities of the latest master stroke of Hindenburg.

Enormous Sacrifice Predicted.

German experts think weeks and months will pass before the entente can strike at the real bulwarks of the new German system. Even before this strike they will be compelled to make enormous sacrifices.

German soldiers have labored like ants to change the face of the country.

Not only will Germany have the advantage of a carefully prepared line in her new move, but army officers pointed out today through shortening her front, Germany can save her offensive power. That saving may be of decisive importance in future operations to follow very soon.

The shortened line will free a large number of troops. Not only will Germany have these men—but the victorious army which conquered Roumania is likewise free.

British Reorganize Plans.

London, March 21.—(U. P.)—Warning that the day will come when the Germans will make another stand, bringing terrible losses to the British, was voiced yesterday by Sir Neville Chamberlain, director of national service, in a speech before the Associated Chambers of Commerce.

"It's a long way from Bapaume to Berlin," he declared. "When the Germans make their stand we will have heavy fighting and we could not hope to fight without heavy casualties. Terrible as it is going to be, there's no use of our hiding our heads in the sand. We've got to see it out."

Dog Scared Burglars Away.

When would-be burglars moved a dog kennel preparatory to entering the home of R. M. McKerne, 208 Fourteenth street, Sunday night, the dog began barking, which aroused the inmates of the house, and frightened the intruders away. The kennel was pushed under a window and was found in that position by Mr. McKerne. The window was opened and footprints were found on the lower casing, but nothing was missed from the house.

Red Cross Prepares For Fund Campaign

San Francisco Plans to Raise $50,000 to Provide Hospitals for Army and Navy—Los Angeles to Aid.

San Francisco, March 21.—(P. N. S.) The local chapter of the American Red Cross will meet this afternoon to organize a committee to conduct a campaign for a fund of $50,000 to provide materials and equipment for two base hospitals.

A request that the chapter contribute to this extent to the war preparations of the Red Cross was received in a wire from headquarters in Washington.

An organization for the making of supplies in the event af war has been formed already, in response to general orders issued to Red Cross chapters.

The fund to be raised here will be used for an army hospital of 500 beds and a navy hospital of 250 beds. Los Angeles has been asked to provide a navy hospital of the same size.

DRIVE IN MACEDONIA AIMED AT TURNING OF TEUTON RIGHT FLANK

Berlin Critics, However, Feel Certain Lines Will Be Held Despite Pressure.

Berlin, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—The determined French offensive on the Macedonian front has for its object the turning of the right flank of the German and Bulgarian armies.

German military critics, in reviewing the Balkan situation today, declared that the attacks of the French between Presba and Ochrida lakes and on the heights north of Monastir have all been directed toward crumpling up the Bulgarian and Teutonic lines and compelling a retreat of the German allies toward Prilep and the Orient railway.

There are Austro-Hungarian troops in southern Albania. If the French could turn the right wing of the German allies they would be able also to get between the Austro-Hungarians and the Bulgar-German troops.

The British have been attacking along the center in an evident effort to divert the attention of the Teutonic allies.

Despite the general pressure, however, confidence is felt here that the lines of the German allies, lying across strongly fortified mountains, would be able to hold, and that the allies' offensive in Macedonia will prove a failure.

Germans Say Offense Fails.

Berlin, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Via Sayville Wireless.—The French offensive against the German and Bulgarian forces between Ochrida and Presba and on the heights north of Monastir has now entered its tenth day without bringing any success to the attackers, the war office announced yesterday in a statement on Macedonian operations.

The French troops advanced in storming attacks over a broad front. Most of the attacks broke down under the fire of the German allies, it was said, but in some places the fighting came to hand to hand engagements. The war office said that all the attacks failed.

Particular tribute was paid to the bravery of Germany's allies in repulsing the French assaults.

North of Lake Doiran several British companies were dispersed by German artillery fire.

French Take 1200 Prisoners.

Paris, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Fighting their way through a blizzard, French troops in Macedonia have captured by storm Hill No. 1248, the Snegovo monastery and the village of Rashtani, all north of Monastir, the war office announced yesterday.

More than 1200 prisoners, including 11 officers, were taken by the French. Farther east on the Balkan front the British have taken a number of German and Bulgarian prisoners in trench raids.

Naval Station Is Bombarded.

Rome, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Italian aeroplanes yesterday bombarded the great Austro-Hungarian naval station at Pola, dropping explosives on the arsenal. News of the raid was given out officially yesterday. Five Austro-Hungarian aeroplanes that went aloft to give battle were driven off by French airmen, who accompanied the Italians.

Grado, within the Italian lines on the Isonzo front, was shelled by Austro-Hungarian airmen, but little damage was done. The Italians immediately retaliated by attacking Muggia shipyards, near Trieste.

The bureau is a new one, having been opened January 1, and is expected to accomplish much constructive work in the operation of the system. Mr. Lane's studies are directed toward assisting both the Union Pacific lines and their shippers through the scientific solution of traffic problems. On his present trip he is simply going over the territory served by the system, but it is intended to make intensive local studies.
