

SPRIT OF PATRIOTISM SWEEPS BIG MEETING OF D. A. R. TUESDAY

American Red Cross Official Tells What Service Daughters Can Render in War.

BIG STORE OFFERS ROOM

Every Patriotic Woman in Portland Will Have Her Chance to Do Service for Country.

The spirit of patriotism, loyalty and service were much in evidence at various meetings of the women's organizations of Portland, which were addressed Tuesday by John L. Clymer, director of the Pacific coast division of the American Red Cross.

The meeting was called by Mrs. Henry J. Wilkins and Mrs. Edward Alden Beals, regents of Multnomah and Washington chapters.

Third Arm of Service.

The American Red Cross is now recognized as the third arm of the nation's defense—the humanitarian work of the government.

Entire Floor Offered.

Will Lippman, one of the officers of the Portland branch of the American Red Cross, has offered the entire eighth floor of the Lippman, Wolfe & Co. store for the making of dressings, bandages and other supplies.

The seven chapters of D. A. R. throughout Oregon have all been enlisted to constitute a great Red Cross committee working under the direction of the Portland branch of the American Red Cross.

Memberships Are Sold. Mrs. Patterson is now in the east attending the national meeting of the D. A. R. and while the entire committee will not be completed and all plans will not be made until word is received from her.

THE campus of the Vancouver barracks was lively on Tuesday afternoon. Squads of men were drilling under sergeants, and in many squads men were still in civilian clothes.

WHEN Company B went out early Tuesday morning it was decided to leave "Yutch," the big young dog mascot, behind, but Yutch was on the cars heartily enjoying the change of scene, and endeavoring to stave away in his brain a record of all the new Company B masters he has to look after.

COMPANY E had a recruiting party in Portland all day Tuesday. There were 15 men scattered through the high schools and business colleges soliciting friends and ex-fellow pupils to join on the call of their country.

COMPANY M had 115 men on Tuesday afternoon, and was waiting anxiously for those students to come in and fill up the Salem contingent.

Makes Everything Taste Better

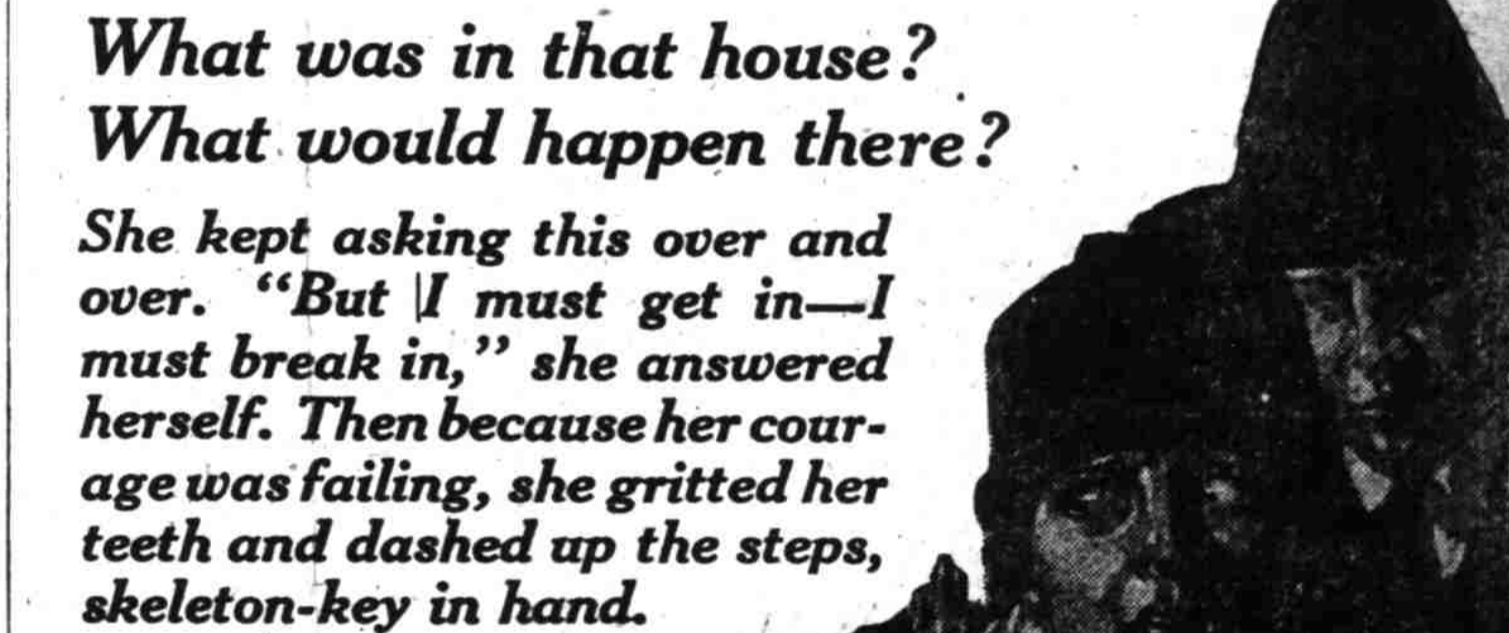

H. P. Sauce is delicious beyond words—and it lends its rare savour to every food it touches.

Its very aroma in your plate makes you hungry.

And it pleases your palate as only choice Oriental fruits and spices, blended in the H. P. way, can please it.

H. P. Sauce is pure and wholesome, and greatly aids digestion. It is so perfectly blended that it does not "settle." You do not have to shake the bottle.

Order a bottle of "the one and only" at your grocer's—25c. Ask for it when dining out.

What was in that house? What would happen there?

She kept asking this over and over. "But I must get in—I must break in," she answered herself. Then because her courage was failing, she gritted her teeth and dashed up the steps, skeleton-key in hand.

HERE'S a Detective Story you can't guess out in advance—a story that offers a genuine puzzle and the rare thrill of real suspense and real surprises.

To steal the "Blue Pear" one of the world's famous diamonds—to get caught—arrested—sent to prison; this was the proposition that Chief Operator Sloan put up to Balmy Rymal. It was a brilliant play for tremendous stakes.

But things don't work out as Sloan or the reader figures them. They seldom do in Arthur Stringer's stories and that is what has made him the most popular writer in his field today.

If you like real mystery—adventure—thrills, read "The Plant of the Blue Pear" in the April Hearst's. It is complete in itself but begins a new series by Mr. Stringer that you won't want to miss one of.
