PORTLAND, VANCOUVER, HAVE MUCH TO DO TO DEVELOP INDUSTRIES

Big Things Await Action by Big Men and Interests-Will They Respond?

COOPERATION ESSENTIAL

Manufacturers Would Respond Appeal for Efficient Sites for Industrial Enterprises.

By Fred Lockley.

Vancouver, Wash., April 7,-"You are just as big as the things you do, just as small as the things you leave undone," said President Wilson in a recent address. There is a whole ser mon in that text for Portland and the other ports of the Columbia river Looking forward is more prof-Itable than looking backward, and yet, occasionally, a community must in-dulge in a little introspection and retrospection to see where they have fallen short of the goal so as to avoid similar mistakes in the future. Both Portland and Vancouver have left undone much that would have advanced the prosperity and the wellbeing of their citizens. Too many of the leaders in both communities have forgotten that the American ideal is service, service to one's own community and service to their fellowman. It is a short-sighted policy to work entirely for your own upbuilding. You will find no monuments built by the public to the supremely selfish man, nor will you find any monuments in the hearts of the people to the man who has merely piled up wealth without thought of the obligations or duties imposed by riches.

Things to Be Done.

There are big things to be done by the big men of Portland. Will they measure up to their opportunities? Will they help with their energy and their capital to solve some of the problems that are now facing Portland and the other communities in the Columbia river basin?

Ship building is one of the big opportunities for Portland and Van-The securing of oriental trade by Five German to the state. to a large extent we have not earned through our own efforts, but that has been made for us by the growth of Portland and the west, for the upbuild ing of our community?"

How Would It Work?

Suppose some one of the number suggested the purchase of land along the water front at Portland or on the Oregon shore of the Columbia for the upbuilding of an industrial district. Let's see how it would work out. To-

Suppose a careful survey were made attorney general for opinion. prior to the erection of these factory buildings as to the number of factories now operating in Portland.

Suppose an analysis should be made of their conditions showing the cost of rent, danger of fire, cost of insurance, cost of trucking, bad lighting conditions, cost of elevator service, loss of time in making freight shipments and receiving freight, cost of power, heat, light and all the other overhead ex-

Now suppose the Greater Portland Terminal and Industrial association should be able to supply roomy, wellventilated, well-lighted factory space with power, water, fire protection, cartage and all other service at a less cost than they were now paying for illventilated, ill-lighted, inconveniently located firetraps. Doesn't it stand to reason that practically every factory would move to the new quarters? Could Increase Output.

They would realize that they could not compete with the factories more favorably located unless they did so. They would realize that with their cartage bill eliminated by having the car spotted at the door of the terminal building and their freight, both incoming and outgoing, handled by the force employed by the terminal company; that they could begin to figure on increasing their output. They would realize that the Terminal company buying both power and light wholesale, could sell it to them much cheaper than they could themselves buy it, and moreover, they would have no minimum charges to pay, but would pay for exactly what

Fire insurance would be cut to the minimum, since the reinforced steel building, in which they were located was practically fireproof and had a sprinkler system installed.

With a rental lower than they could secure elsewhere, with dividends made possible by savings on every hand, how soon would it be till such an enterprise attracted many new manufacturing enterprises to Portland?

Not only would our present manufacturing and industrial enterprises show steady growth and increasing prosperity, but many new firms would be attracted to Portland and the in-

IMPETUS GIVEN RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

The news will inspire the 20,000 membership committee of the Portland chapter to renewed interest, for it is not intended that any city of the Pacific coast shall excel Portland in the generosity with which the "Third Arm of the Service" is enabled to serve its mission of rescue and healing for the boys of the army and

At a meeting Friday evening a new executive board of the Portland Red Cross was elected as follows: Ralph Hahn, Robert Strong, Elliott Corbett, Forest Fisher and Dr. Fred Kiehle. It was said that Dr. K. A. J. Mackenzie today would appoint the subcommittees that are to be in charge of various phases of the 20,000 membership campaign. For the latter part of next week a series of district meetings in aid of the local campaign are to be held in various districts of the city and Memberships in the Portland Chapter of the American Red Cross are $1 to $100 a year, optional with the subscriber. Remittances should be addressed to Elliott Corbett, treasurer, First National bank; Theodore B. Brown, secretary, Lewis building; or Dr. K. A. J. Mackenzie, president, Corbett building.

Others Will Pollow.

When Portland had demonstrated the success of the plan, Vancouver, Astoria, The Dalles and other communities could, on a smaller scale, centralize their industries along the river front and help to bring prosperty to their communities.

This would help in more ways than are apparent at a casual glance. It would help furnish a market for the products of the man on the land. It would increase the pay roll al along the line.

It would help to keep down the excessive cost of many articles by using the raw material here to be converted into the finished product in place of as at present paying freight on the hides eastward and paying freight on the shoes westward, or paying freight on the wool to the Atlantic seaboard and paying return freight on the suits made in the east from Oregon and Washington wool,

Isn't it time to think in a large way of these civic problems? Who Should Do It?

Haven't we the strength, the vision the courage and the energy to do the things that we know will bring earned prosperity to all the people and make life more worth while? The question is, should such a thing be done by private wealth or should it be done by the municipality concerned, with borrowed money, obtained from such wealthy individuals and estate, who are thus enabled to thrive upon interest with a minimum of time, announcement was made that work and risk and a maximum of safety and ease?
