potatoes here for speculative purposes, because, they say, the mayor knows absolutely nothing regarding conditions.

Investigation made during the day shows that less than 40 carloads of potatoes are held in this city's warehouses, and only 20 carloads all told are owned by Portland wholesalers or speculators. The figures compiled as to the total supply in the city do not include 20 to 25 carloads held and owned by Geotge Shima, the Japanese potato king of California. These potatoes are being held here by Mr. Shima for the same region that he annually holds a similar amount here—to protect himself against the few of the acreage already planted interior by some of the millers these. 2131 233 940 227

Chicago wheat also touched a new high rec-ord during the morning, due to the foreign ness men.

The fact of the matter is that 35 carloads of potatoes have been shipped within two days from Willamette valley points to outside markets. At the rate these supplies are going out, total holdings in the valley will be entirely exhausted within a few days. Portland stocks on hand at this time—slock owned by the trade here—are so nominal as to be scarcely several services.

The fact of the matter is that 35 carloads crop damage and the buying by various foreign by both the fishermen and packers. This includes all sizes of Chinock. Front street, instead of being a booster of potato prices, has actually been selling supplies in small lots to retailers up to a week vanced $1 a ton at $40. Rolled barley was piles in small lots to retailers up to a week ago at less money than the wholesalers would be able to secure in carload lots from the east and from Callfornia. Were it not for the fact that some of the Front street men had the vision to see the real shortage and retained some of their supplies instead of selling them broadcast through the country, there would searcely be a sack remaining here, and barrel.
