

AD CLUB ENTERTAINS WINNERS AND LOSERS IN MAYORALTY RACE

Meeting Made Additionally Interesting by Address on Proposed Rate Increase.

"Now, let everyone stand up," commanded S. C. Bratton, president of the Ad club, at the close of the organization's meeting Wednesday.

"Stretch," he directed, when they had stood.

All did so, in the attitudes of men awakening from sleep.

"That," said Mr. Bratton, "is just what Portland is doing—waking up. Let every man here make it his business to join with every other man in doing the big, constructive things that will keep this town awake and that will bring it into its own."

J. B. Kerr, general counsel of the S. P. & S. Co., told the Ad men that the only commodity which has not advanced since the beginning of the war is railroad transportation. Yet, he averred, the Adamson law has increased the wage schedule 25 per cent, the cost of operation, equipment and supplies and the additional obligations arising in connection with plans for national defense make an increase absolutely imperative.

Candidates Are Guests
Therefore, he said, the railroads have appealed to the interstate commerce commission and the railroad commission in each state for authority to make an increase of 15 per cent in freight rates.

Candidates, defeated and successful, appeared before the club. George Garrett announced his candidacy for commissioner two years hence, and expressed suspicion that all who had promised to vote for him went fishing election day. A. L. Barbur promised that in his promotion from auditor to commissioner, he would strive to serve all classes. George Caldwell said he would like to know some time what it feels like to be elected. Emelie Beyer and Archie Mason were followed by F. W. Jobelton, who said: "In the presence of representative citizens a few days ago, Mr. Baker, now elected mayor, promised to adopt some of my theories of municipal government, which are now looked at as novelties."

Franklin Glee Club Sings
William L. Brewster, defeated candidate for commissioner, was received with profuse applause. "I will be your mayor, friend and pal in the days to come as in the past," assured Mayor-elect Baker. E. N. Wheeler professed himself as satisfied with the cleanness of his campaign, and John M. Mann said: "You will find me standing right with George Baker on everything."

The Franklin high school girls' glee club provided several numbers, which were enthusiastically received.

RUSSIAN COUNCIL FOR EARLY PEACE FOR BEST MEANS U. S. CAN USE

"Send an army only if you think it will hasten the end of the war—you must decide yourselves as to the method in which you can best help."

"The revolution is the center of everything to us. We look upon everything in the world from the viewpoint of the revolution."

"Why? Because the revolution has an international meaning. It will help the progress of all the peoples in the world."

"It was unique in the annals of the world because it happened in war time. Now, in order to save the impending blessings which the revolution assured to our downtrodden people, the war must be ended soon. It must be ended on the basis of peace without annexations and without contributions, and the people of small nations must have a voice in their disposition."

"Cannot Americans help Russia by sending locomotives, trains and rails to you?"

"Send them—if you think it will help end the war quickly."

COWBOY ACTOR MEETS HIS PORTLAND FRIENDS

—Gifford & Prentiss Photo.
"Bill" Hart

Portland movie fans Wednesday night saw famous "Bill" Hart, star cowboy screen actor. He is plain "Bill" in private life. He is just what his name implies—unostentatious and unassuming.

Besides being an expert horseman, Hart is a crack shot. He is what is known in the west as a "two-handed gun fighter."

He formerly starred in "The Virginian" and Portlanders saw him in that role about eight years ago.

Miller & Tracey have charge of arrangements.

Lad Drowns While Parents Look On

Milton, Or., June 7.—Covose creek, which empties into the Walla Walla River above Milton was the scene of a fatality when six-year-old Elmer, a year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sleh, who are farming the Sam Vancil place, fell from a foot log across the creek and was swept down the swirling stream, and drowned in the presence of the parents. The body was recovered in a few minutes, but left was extinct.

Coos and Curry Red Cross Board Active

Marshfield, Or., June 7.—The executive committee having the Red Cross work in charge will start at once to raise within the next two weeks $18,000 in Coos and Curry counties. L. G. Nichols, the Oregon Red Cross manager, will be here and hold meetings in every city in the county. Several benefits have been arranged to help raise the funds and it is expected the amount appropriated to the county will be subscribed in the time specified.

Medical Reserve Gets Doctor of City

Dr. George S. Whiteside, who has practiced his profession in Portland for 15 years, will leave tonight to enter the medical reserve service of the navy as assistant surgeon. Dr. Whiteside's definite appointment was received Wednesday night, but they do not permit announcement of his post of duty. During the absence of Dr. Whiteside in the country's service, his practice will be attended by his associate, Dr. H. W. Howard, in their offices in The Journal building.

Quarterly Meeting Begins
Quarterly meeting services commence at the Central Free Methodist church this evening, and continue over Sunday. District quarterly conference will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. F. L. Burns will be in charge at all of the meetings. Other ministers from the district will be present.

"Give me 75 SUITS at $12.50 for my Friday Sale"—Said King Cotton

"Suits at $12.50! Why! My dear fellow, we think we're fortunate, in these times, to be able to buy good suits from the manufacturers at $12.50," replied the garment chief.

—Then came a long argument—one emphasizing the increased costs and the scarcity of good materials—the other bringing out the importance of keeping enthusiasm at a high pitch.

—The argument ended just where it began—and then—

—King Cotton took things into his own hands and picked out 75 smartly tailored wool suits and priced them $12.50—

—Just imagine suits like the pictures at $12.50—and if you can imagine them, just imagine fifteen or twenty other styles equally as attractive—all of them of splendid all-wool serges—gabardines—Poirot twills—poplins and velours, in all the shades that women want suits in!

—Some of the jackets are lined with plain silks—others have fancy linings!

—"Women who come early will find all sizes," said King Cotton—"those who come late will probably find no suits at all."

—Remember, the store opens at 9 o'clock.

German silver BAG MOUNTINGS $1.75—$2.50

—And these prices are way low for these different kinds of mountings—the kind women use for bead, crochet, and silk bags. These are both bright and grey finish in all sizes and shapes.

Fifth Floor—Lipman, Wolfe & Co.

"Let's sell 700 yards of Cretonne and Chintz for 28c a yard!"

—said the good King. There are such beautiful designs in such heavy quality of materials, that the 700 yards will scarcely last all day. There are wonderful art decorator's patterns that will set the town a-guessing as to where we got them.

Curtain Stretchers 98c

—King Cotton's well known partiality for housewives was in evidence again when he marked these strong, full-size, adjustable curtain stretchers at only 98c.

Fifth Floor—Lipman, Wolfe & Co.

"They're fit for a queen! these UNDERMUSLINS at 89c"

—That's just what King Cotton said about the special lot we've decided to put forth for Friday's selling! There are night gowns, petticoats and envelope chemise in this lot—all as fresh and daintily perfect in each exquisite particular as you'd expect to find in garments priced at much more than 89c.

Dainty night gowns 89c

—that you'll adore for their plainness and unusualness. Some have colored stitching and baby waists with kimono sleeves.

New White Skirts 89c

—They're deep embroidery flouncings—with the serviceable dust ruffle underneath.

Envelope Chemise 89c

—They're the kind of envelope chemise you'll be proud to have! Dainty lace and embroidery trimming.

Fourth Floor—Lipman, Wolfe & Co.

King Cotton says—

"Sell all parasols at half price!"

—and so on Friday—you can take your choice of any parasol in our stocks at exactly half price!

BILL HART WOLF LOWRY

Hart's "Wolf Lowry" is laid in those Western domains, fenced by the far horizon and rising and setting sun. The story concerns "Wolf" Lowry, past master with the shooting-irons (incidentally cattle king) and little Mary Davis (squatter), whose capital consisted of brown eyes, black curls and a boundless courage. It will rank, we believe, with Hart's greatest Westerns.
