THE FLAG GOES BY

HATS off!
Along the street there comes A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums, A flash of color beneath the sky. Hats off! The flag is passing by!

Blue, and crimson, and white it shines, Over the steel-tipped, ordered lines. Hats off! The colors before us fly;

But more than the flag is passing by.

Sea fights and land fights, grim and great, Fought to make and to save the state; Weary marches and sinking ships: Cheers of victory on dying lips;

Days of plenty, and years of peace, March of a strong land's swift increase; Equal justice, right and law, Stately honor and reverend awe;

Sign of a Nation, great and strong. To ward her people from foreign wrong; Pride, and glory, and honor, all Live in the colors to stand or fall.

Hats off! Along the street there comes A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums; And loyal hearts are beating high. Hats off! The flag is passing by Sir Thomas was returning from his periodical inspection of his tea plantations. At Bombay, India, a number of officers of the British army were added to the passenger list of the P. & O. boat. Maloja, the ill-fated vessel which was later sunk in the Mediterranean by a German submarine. WA were a day or two out of Aden, Arabin, where the coaling of the boat had been performed by a motley, hilarious lot of Arabs and Somali men The afternoon, was one of indescribable beauty; the Red sea was smooth and we nearing that part of it where, according to biblical history, the waters were opened by a strong wind and the bed made dry so that the children of israel could make their way, dry shod, out of Egypt. The discussion among the passengers as to whether the waters could have been swept by the wind had been indulged in until the subject was exhausted. It was the heory of some of them that a strong, steady and continuous wind, blowing from the east could have piled up the waters and made the bed dry long enough for the hosts to have passed. Under the awning to the aft of the smoke room sat Sir Thomas, a number of British army officers and other passengers. The talk passed from one subject to another until it reached that point when a history ancient countries of the world came into review. Sir Thomas, imma-ulately attired in white, with his yach! ing cap set well back upon his head turned to the little group of military men that sat about him and said: "Let me make a prediction, and want you all to remember shall say. Within six years from now every country in Europe will be a republic.

The British army officers regarded him for a moment in astonishment. Then they arose as one man and left. Sir Thomas chuckled at the reception his prophecy had met, turning to me he said in his rich Irish
