

GERMANS FIND COPPER MINES ABANDONED FOR CENTURIES; ORE RICH

Engineer Makes Discovery by Accident of Excavations in Valley of River Nahe.

FIND IS BIG AID IN WAR

Copper Vein Believed to Have Been Worked by Old Romans and Probably by the Romans.

Frankfort, June 25.—In the romantic valley of the River Nahe, between Kreuznach and St. Wendel, German mining engineers have found ancient copper mines, forgotten for centuries. These are now in full operation again and are yielding large quantities of the metal that has become so precious.

Deputy Eugene Abrecht, an engineer of Neustadt, first called attention to the old mines. They had been rediscovered by him accidentally. A commission of experts was sent to make an investigation and ascertained that dozens of copper mines had been operated in this district probably a thousand years ago.

Forgotten Chamber Found In the valley of the Hosenbach, a small tributary to the Nahe, the commission discovered an old mine shaft which had been covered up hundreds of years.

Penetrating into the mountain about 400 feet, the engineers reached a subterranean chamber or hall about 90 feet high and 50 to 50 feet wide—one of the forgotten ancient mines. A heavy examination showed the copper vein worked by the old Romans, and probably also by the Romans, is large and will be able to furnish a large part of the copper needed by Germany for centuries.

The main chamber of the mine presents a wonderful picture, with its bluish-white stalactite and stalagmite formations and green malachites. From this dozens of small shafts are driven deep into the mountains, all leading to rich deposits of copper.

Find Long Kept Secret Evidently the mine had been operated long before blasting powder was known. The tools found seem to have been manufactured between the tenth and the fourteenth centuries.

The report of the commission of experts was so favorable that the government decided to work the mine and several smaller ones in the same district. Preparations took many months. Modern plants were built and exploitation of the mine finally has been started with splendid results.

For military reasons the government has kept this source of its copper supply secret as much as possible, however, and the existence of the mine has only now become generally known.

"Tay Pay" Arrives; Utterances Cryptic

Irish Nationalist Leader Hopes to Meet President Wilson and Has Message for His Friends.

New York, June 25.—(I. N. S.)—Thomas P. O'Connor, leader of the Irish Nationalist party, familiarly known as "Tay Pay," arrived Sunday at an Atlantic port. He came unaccompanied on a British steamship, accompanied by Richard Hasleton, member of parliament for North Galway. He will go to Washington in a day or two.

"I am here to lay before the men of my race," Mr. O'Connor said, "and before the friends of Ireland of whatever race, the real issues that form the opinions of greater Ireland in their relation to this democratic republic of America."

"Regarding the war over there, Britain is more than ever united and hardened for the conflict. She will fight to the finish. "President Wilson's address to congress presented to me the clearest definition of the issues and purposes for which all free men are fighting today, and I believe I echo the sentiments of all true men of my race. It is my hope to know how shameless they were, they drove about with this placard pasted on the windshield of their machine:

San Francisco, June 25.—(I. N. S.)—Five thousand motorists were arrested in San Francisco Sunday. They paid fines that may aggregate more than $4000. Singularly enough, all the "culprits" were proud of the fact that they had been taken into custody. Many of them went out of their way to get "pinched" and just to let everybody know how shameless they were.

I HAVE BEEN ARRESTED and I HAVE PAID MY FINE to the AMERICAN RED CROSS.

Theodore J. Roche, president of the police commission, gave the order for the wholesale arrests of San Francisco auto drivers. Every police traffic officer in the city—they volunteered to work on their day off—was instructed by Roche to stop motorists and compel them to pay a fine on the spot.

Several members of the traffic squad in the downtown district collected hundreds of dollars.

Murderer May Seek To Enlist in Army

Salem, Or., June 25.—George Hohoff, a trusty at the state penitentiary, where he is serving a life sentence for murder, escaped Saturday night from the barn, where he had been employed. He was not missed until about 4 o'clock Sunday morning.

He was sent up for the murder of a woman in Portland in 1914. He was a Russian, 32 years old, and from remarks he dropped the prison officials believe he will endeavor to enlist in the army or navy.

A yellow "slicker" such as convicts wear, led to the apprehension of Hohoff Sunday night at the corner of Fifth and Everett streets, Portland, and he is in the city jail for return to the penitentiary.

Hohoff was sentenced to life on April 1, 1914, after pleading guilty to the murder of Jessie Wilson at 327 Front street, Portland, on January 3 of the same year. At the time of his sentence it was said that he had been aided in the crime by D. Dedoff, another Russian. The police say that one of the men held the woman pinned while the other cut her throat.
