

ENTRY INTO WAR OF U. S. MAY MEAN END OF MONROE DOCTRINE

Present Tendency Is Toward Abandonment of Long-Followed Foreign Policy.

WILSON'S WORDS CITED

President Has Taken Firm Stand That United States Can No Longer Hold Aloof From World Affairs.

Washington, July 5.—(I. N. S.)—The question of whether or not the United States is to abandon the Monroe doctrine is coming sharply to the fore as a result of the entrance of this nation into the general European war. President Wilson, Secretary of State Lansing and all other principal officers of the government are vitally concerned with the problem, and consider that the American people have come to the verge of a new era in the history of the world.

The sharp division has come on the question of whether or not the United States is to follow up its action in sending an expeditionary force to Europe by entering with spirit into the political councils of the entire nation and taking a hand in the settlement of the European affairs.

For nearly a century and a half the United States has maintained itself as an independent state, that independence extending further and meaning more to the rest of the world than the independence of any other nation in history save Rome and Great Britain.

This special sort of independence has meant that the people of the United States consistently held aloof from the wars which have embroiled Europe and at the same time have prevented any encroachments of foreign nations upon the entire American continent.

In practically all his principal communications and utterances on the state of the world, President Wilson has firmly taken the stand that the United States no longer can hold aloof from world affairs but must be one of a concert of nations and must extend its arm to any point where the influence of this nation can assist in establishing constitutional liberty or aid in keeping the world safe for democracy.

Specifically, President Wilson has declared that this nation has very definite objects as to the destinies of such nations as Poland and the fate of oppressed peoples generally, whether or not they are entitled to the protection of the United States under the Monroe doctrine.

Students and economists have come to the conclusion that the trade isolation of the United States cannot longer endure. In fact, the nation is now feverishly organizing for a vastly extended foreign trade. New legislation, notably the export control law, opens new avenues for American domination of world trade. The question of world political policies, walking hand in hand as it must with trade, comes sharply forward and is forcing the opinion here that the Monroe doctrine must now be abandoned.

The business interests of the country are being taught by the government to expand their trade into strange ports. Farsighted statesmen here now decree the rapidly approaching period when American merchants will insist that the government espouse a policy which will dictate the extension of a strong hand over the whole world for the protection of American interests in every sea and in every land.

Albanian Developments Watched. More imminent is the position the United States takes in the peace conference at the end of the present war. Politicians, scornful of America's delay in entering the war, have declared European powers will not listen to the voice of the American people at the conference. At Washington the soundness of this assumption is doubted.

Already there is a strong tendency on the part of this government to take a hand in European diplomatic concerns. For instance, the state department has viewed with especial interest and reserved opinion the action of Italy in establishing a protectorate over Albania. On the surface this appears a matter too remote from American concerns to be seriously regarded. Such is not the case, however. At this juncture the Albanian situation cannot be freely discussed but it is known that the matter is held open.

On this independence day the future political, economical and military policy of the United States is in the balance.

Fourteen Frenchmen Submerged in June

Paris, July 5.—(I. N. S.)—Forty-two German submarines were attacked by the French land and sea forces during the month of June, according to statistics of the ministry of marine. French patrol boats fought 31 battles, seaplanes eight and shore batteries three. During the month 13 merchantmen were sunk by torpedoes and two by shellfire. Seven others attacked by torpedoes and 13 by shellfire escaped.

HISTORICAL PAGEANT FEATURE OF BAKER'S CELEBRATION OF DAY

"Humbug Carnival" at Night Nets Large Sum for Fund to Be Given Red Cross.

THREE BANDS ARE HEARD

Record Breaking Crowd, From Nearby Communities Sees Events Staged for Entertainment.

Baker, Or., July 5.—Patriotism marked Baker's celebration of the Fourth, which was the best ever staged here. It was attended by a record-breaking crowd, visitors from all parts of the county and eastern Oregon participating. The street parade was in the nature of a historical and patriotic pageant, and was most elaborate, covering 11 blocks. Patriotic, business and special floats competed in several classes, three cash prizes being awarded in each division. Police, North Tower and Haines bands assisted the local band in furnishing music for all attractions. At baseball Baker defeated LaGrande 7 to 3.

The evening feature was the "humbug carnival" for the benefit of the Red Cross. In the Forty-Niners' row, roulette wheels, "21" and "stud" were in full play, while cowgirls danced with visitors and lead them to the bar for "kicks." Probably $2500 or more will accrue to the Red Cross from this feature.

Parade at Pendleton. Pendleton, Or., July 5.—Ten thousand people surged through Pendleton's streets Wednesday, in celebration of the Fourth of July. Merchants and the city council combined in giving a big entertainment to townspeople and hundreds of country people who came in for the day.

The morning celebration was featured by a parade and exercises at Happy Canyon, at which Justice Henry L. Benson was speaker. In the afternoon for two hours the crowd was entertained at Roundup park with horse races and miscellaneous events, followed by an exciting water fight on Main street between two hose companies.

In the evening a reproduction of the battle of San Juan hill was given at Roundup park with guardsmen of Company M representing the United States army. This was followed by a spectacular display of fireworks.

Hillsboro Has Big Time. Hillsboro, Or., July 5.—Fully 10,000 people celebrated the fourth at Hillsboro. The weather was ideal and no accident marred the occasion. There was a big Liberty parade in the morning. At 11 o'clock a large audience listened to Hon. Gus Moser delivering a stirring patriotic address. Russell Morgan read the Declaration of Independence. A constabulary band of 30 pieces furnished music. Rev. Bernard D. Shaw opened the exercises with an invocation and the vast audience sang "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner." A feature of the music was the numbers by the old soldiers' fife and drum corps.

Ralph Hanson, aviator, made two flights at Hillsboro defeated Columbia park in a fast ball game. For Hillsboro Jansen batted two home runs and Schulerich one.

Eugene Program Varied. Eugene, Or., July 5.—Eugene entertained one of the largest Fourth of July crowds in its history. The parade this forenoon was the longest seen here in many years, and the exercises were more of the patriotic order than ever before. Dr. Luther Dyott, pastor of the First Congregational church of Portland, delivered the oration. The afternoon's program included horse racing, motorcycle racing and minor sports.

Only one accident marred the pleasure of the day, Mrs. E. M. Harvey, wife of a Eugene doctor, being run down by an auto. Her injuries, while severe, are not believed to be serious.

I. W. W. Agitator Is Pursued by Throng

Baker Folk Have Suspicions Roused by Simultaneous Accidents in Mills and Chase Orator Away.

Baker, Or., July 5.—A man announcing himself as an I. W. W. attempted Wednesday to make a speech in a soft drink establishment and was chased out by those present, narrowly making his escape as he was followed several blocks before he dodged down a side street and hid. It is said that the simultaneous accidents at local mills Tuesday might be explained by I. W. W. activity. The Eccles Lumber company, Oregon Lumber company and Stoddard Brothers' mill here, and the Eccles mill at Austin all had slight accidents at about the same hour.

None was serious except that the Oregon mill here, where a cylinder head blew out, did some damage. One man was slightly hurt in an accident to the log carriage at the Eccles mill. A few I. W. W. were here recently and one plot to dynamite a mill was unearthed, but the labor trouble never amounted to anything and was quickly adjusted.
