Divorce Complaint Motive for Killing

Wife-Murder and Suicide in Pendleton Believed to Have Been Caused by Woman's Contemplated Suit.

At the inquest, a friend of Mrs. Bowman testified that Bowman had told her that before he would be divorced, he would shoot his wife. She also testified that Mrs. Bowman had told her several times that she believed her husband was growing weak-minded.

Bed Time Tales

BY CLARA INGRAM JUDSON

The Story of a Grain of Sand

WAGON load of sand was hauled away from the beach.

"Oh, dear," cried a little grain of sand, "I don't want to be hauled away. I want to stay right here at the beach where I can see everything. Please! I don't want to be hauled away!"

But who pays any attention to what a grain of sand says? Or who knows what they say even if they try to understand?

The little grain of sand cried in vain. It was hauled away, away from the beach.

"Now I will never have a good time again!" he cried. "I'll never see anything—never know anything—never!"

"Dear me," interrupted a pleasant voice, maybe it won't be as bad as that!"

"Much you know about it," muttered the grain of sand, "who are you, anyway?"

"I'm a grain of sand," replied the voice.

"A grain of sand?" (in surprise), "that's what I am!"

"I know it," replied the cheerful grain of sand, "that's the reason I started talking to you. I've been taken away from the ocean before and it is very interesting I assure you. You can't help but like to travel."

But the dismal grain of sand continued to complain, till the load of sand was dumped from the wagon into a car and hauled away on the train.

"I don't know but this may be interesting after all," he said to himself, "oh! I must watch carefully so I don't miss anything that happens."

He got so busy watching the wonderful things that occurred all about him,

The sand liked that too that he forgot to be cross. It's very hard to watch wonderful sights and be complaining at the same time. I hope you've never tried to do it!

He saw that the sand was shoveled out of the car in which it had traveled and put again into just such a wagon as had carried it from the beach.

In his wagon it was hauled to a great factory.

And there it was washed free from all the dirt and dirt that might be in it.

"I believe I like to be washed so nice and clean," said the grain of sand, "but I can't see what will happen next!"

He had not long to wait. As soon as the sand was dry, buckets of it were taken upstairs into the factory. There it was used to cut glass with. Down over the edge of the glass to be cut and beveled, a fine stream of this clean white sand was run. And through the sand an emery wheel cut its way.

"This is quite as interesting as the ocean," decided the grain of sand, for he had time to watch the doing in the factory between whiles.

Then, one day the factory was shut up and the sand lay idle.

"Oh, dear, I wish I had something to do!" sighed the grain of sand.

And at that very minute, two little children cried, "Oh, dear, I wish we had something to do!"

"I'll get you something to do," said their father. "I'll bring you some sand from the factory and you can play with that." And he did.

The sand liked that, too. "I'm so thankful I was taken away from the ocean," he said. "I'll never complain again, for things that start bad, sometimes turn out good!"

Tomorrow—Tippy Cottonball's New Home.

Relief of Sinaloa Delayed

Marshallfield, Or., July 6.—The steamer Phoenix, bringing from San Francisco wrecking gear for salvaging the stranded steamer Sinaloa, at Cape Blanco, has been detained because of heavy northwest winds. The ship was passed by the steamer Adeline Smith 165 miles north of San Francisco, where the Phoenix had anchored awaiting more favorable weather. Captain Cutler, representing the marine underwriters, with a crew of expert wreckers, is on the Sinaloa waiting for the rigging to arrive. In her present position it is hoped will have favorable weather to save the big freighter.
