

HETTY GREEN'S SON, COL. E. H. R. GREEN, IS TO BE MARRIED TODAY

Millionaire's Bride Is Miss Mabel E. Harlow, of Highland Park, Ill.

COL. E. H. GREEN.

Chicago, July 10.—(U. P.)—Edward H. Green, Terrell, Kaufman county, Texas, aged 48; Miss Mabel E. Harlow, Highland Park, Lake county, Ill., aged 48 years. That's the way it reads on the marriage license of the most proposed to bachelor in the world, who forsakes bachelorhood this noon. Colonel Green, who came here from New York with his secretary, W. H. Marshall, Sunday, refused yesterday to admit the impending marriage to newspaper men who were "tipped off" from New York. Late yesterday, however, he and Marshall slipped out of town to Waukegan, Ill., where the license was obtained. Last night the colonel "feared up."

he was interested in a real estate deal, 15 years ago. Devoted Time to Charities. Miss Harlow has resided at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Crampton, since the death of her mother, five years ago. While not shunning society, Miss Harlow has devoted much of her time to charities, both in Chicago and New York. The wedding took place at the bride's home. Green and his bride will leave for New York, where they will board his yacht, the United States, for a voyage through the Caribbean. Rev. P. C. Wolcott of Trinity Episcopal church officiated at the ceremony. There were few guests, and the "million-dollar" marriage was more like a birthday party.

'SPIRITUAL BRIDE' TO RETURN SOUL-MATE TO HIS REGULAR WIFE

If Latter Is Sincere, She Declares, She Will "Spiritually Divorce" Wealthy Man.

St. Louis, July 10.—Mrs. Estelle Hamaley, "spiritual bride" of Edward V. Matlack, St. Louis capitalist, stands ready to "spiritually divorce" him. She made this announcement here today on her arrival from Chicago. "I will try to see Mrs. Matlack today to effect a reconciliation," she said. "If she will take him back and promise to be more cheerful, then I will pass up my life forever and our pure love shall die—the child of a dream. "I am doing this for the sake of his child and home. I am doing this because I love him and put my love above selfish interests." Mrs. Matlack has been quoted as saying she will "forgive and forget" if he will leave "Spooky Estelle" and return to her fireside. Matlack returned here with Mrs. Hamaley from Chicago but he would not discuss his plans. "I doubt whether Mrs. Matlack means all she has said about taking him back and forgiving him. I sometimes think she is shamming," says a newspaper notoriety. If when I talk to her today she convinces me she does not mean to take him back then I probably will marry Mr. Matlack according to the conventions. "But if she will promise me to take him back and love and cherish him forever then I will pass out of his life."

J. H. Neustadter, 72, Dies in California

Founder of Firm With Big Branch in Portland Passes After Being Unconscionably Five Days. San Francisco, July 10.—(L. N. S.)—J. H. Neustadter, founder of the firm of Neustadter Bros., dealers in men's furnishing goods, whose only branch is located in Portland, died here this afternoon at the Adler sanitarium here at the age of 72. At the death bed were his widow, his son, Louis W. Neustadter, and daughter, Mrs. Clarence R. Walter, all of San Francisco.

Mr. Neustadter was stricken with cerebral apoplexy at the Concordia club July 4 and was immediately removed to the sanitarium, where he died without regaining consciousness. News of his death was at once wired to the Portland branch, and Clarence S. Jacobson, connected with the firm there, started for San Francisco. He is expected here Tuesday morning or evening. Mr. Neustadter was one of the best known merchants on the Pacific coast, having been engaged in business in San Francisco for about half a century. Mr. Neustadter established the branch factory in Portland in 1877, and until his last visit three years ago was frequently in Portland in connection with his partners. The firm employs several hundred people in its factory here and it never has had any difficulties with them, wages and conditions being settled by friendly conferences. Mr. Neustadter always insisted upon this method of adjusting differences. His employees were his friends.

Business Must Meet Conditions to Arise

H. C. Spillman, manager of the school department, Remington Typewriter company, New York city, addressed the department of business education on the subject, "Adjusting Ourselves to a New Business Era." In substance he said: "In a few months at most the clouds of the world's greatest war will have cleared in the sky and there will have come a new order of things, a new dynasty of kings—monarchs of commerce. "The merchant who measures up to his possibilities in this new era of American commerce will also rise to a view to meet the changed conditions. "We are already beginning to do as well as we know, as we are crossing over from knowledge into habit—we are adjusting our conduct to our principles."

Salem Adopts All Charter Changes

Salem, Or., July 10.—All three amendments to the Salem city charter, submitted to the voters at a special election Monday, were adopted by substantial majorities and the city will now be able to drag itself out of the financial middle into which it was thrown when the supreme court held certain assessments for street paving to be invalid. The amendments empower the council to make re-assessments for street improvements, provide for remonstrances, and provide for foreclosure of delinquent liens.

Mexican Situation Improves Rapidly

Washington, July 10.—(L. N. S.)—The Mexican situation was described by Ambassador Fletcher with Counselor Polk of the state department Monday afternoon. "The Mexican feeling toward the United States has improved since we went to war with Germany," Ambassador Fletcher said after the conference.
