

HEART OF RUSSIA IS SOUND TO THE CORE, SAYS GENERAL SCOTT

Armies Will Fight Desperately to Help Conquer Germany, He Declares.

VICTORY DELIGHTS CHIEF

Russian Armies Selected Scott as Their Mascot—Drive, He Says, Substantiates His Prediction.

By William G. Shepherd. Petrograd, July 12.—(U. P.)—"Tell Americans we have found the heart of Russia sound; we have found the army's heart sound at the core. I believe in new Russia. She will fight desperately to help us conquer Germany."

The words are those of Major General Hugh L. Scott of the American commission to Russia. He spoke them to the United Press correspondent today as a message to be sent "back home" now that the American mission has concluded its visit to the new republic.

General Scott was the happiest member of the American commission today with announcement of the Russian victory at Halicz. He felt he had proved a good mascot to the Russian troops.

American Made Mascot. Exhibiting his pleasure in every gesture and word, the American army chief of staff explained today how Minister of Foreign Affairs Tereshchenko, in bidding him farewell, had notified Scott that the Russian troops on the Halicz front had selected him as their mascot.

The drive started by General Brusiloff substantiates my prediction that the Russians would fight valiantly."

General Scott asserted "in ten days they have taken as prisoners a third as many as the British and French have taken in three months. Also they have broken the enemy's lines. Remember this is the first enemy line broken in a long time."

Russians Advance Rapidly. "The Russians have repeatedly gotten behind the Austrians' cavalry. They are now advancing rapidly."

The whole thing now depends on how strongly and effectively the great Russian offensive breaks the enemy up. Heavy pressure on the breach line must be constant and increasing."

Former Senator Scott's final word from Petrograd to his fellow citizens in the United States:

"Americans—Whoop'er up for Russia!"

All of Petrograd was celebrating capture of Halicz today. The city was decorated and crowds in the Nevski Prospekt paraded and cheered the army. Hundreds of citizens are sending their jewels and money to the "Battalions of July 1"—the troops specially awarded that name by Minister of War Kerensky because they began Brusiloff's great offensive. Nor are other troops now in action being forgotten.

Soldiers Are Rewarded. Minister Kerensky is receiving medals and precious metal to be melted up for the soldiers from all over Russia.

The public is delighted at the communiques. One which caused laughter and cheers for a whole day related how the wind blew back on the German trenches asphyxiating gas released against the Russians. The public slogan nowadays is, "Luck is with us."

Charles Edward Russell's concluding speech was before a group of intellectual Socialists headed by Plekhanoff. He vigorously urged unremitting war activity, and was roundly cheered, the only man not applauding being a certain American pacifist Socialist now here.

All opposition to the war has subsided here, and apparently throughout Russia. Even Nicholas, the pro-German peace enthusiast, has quieted down completely.

MRS. BRADFORD NOMINATED FOR N. E. A. CHIEF

have been mentioned for president were Mrs. Josephine Corlies Preston, state superintendent of education for Washington; Miss Katherine Devereaux Blake of New York, and there were many rumors that Thomas E. Finnegan might be nominated. Mr. Finnegan is from Albany, N. Y., and is representing J. E. Finley, superintendent of the association and president but could not attend the meeting owing to his delay in getting home from Europe. Mr. Finnegan is also treasurer of the association and president of the superintendent's section.

Three Times State Superintendent. It has been understood from the first, however, that the Colorado woman was receiving the most support at the convention.

Mrs. Bradford has been elected state superintendent in Colorado three times, taking the position first in 1912. She has also made herself famous for her work in suffrage campaigns there.

In her work as superintendent, her first important campaign was the standardization of rural schools, which Colorado practices, and includes all of the schools. It covers all such matters as improvement of buildings, teaching staff and the like, and is one of the most important improvements recently made in the field of education in the United States.

She has lately revised the system of school statistics, greatly simplifying them and making them more efficient. One of her improvements has been the publication of a holiday calendar, which contains the various school holidays and program for them.

Her latest work, which she is just starting, is the better provision for the public school income, under which there is greater regulation on the part of the superintendent, so that he can aid the weaker school districts, thus giving all of them their proper income.

State Directors Named. State directors were nominated, as follows:

Alabama—Samuel S. Murphy, superintendent of schools, Mobile. Arizona—C. O. Case, state superintendent of public instruction, Phoenix. Arkansas—George B. Cook, former state superintendent of public instruction, Little Rock.

M'NARY WILL BACK UP PRESIDENT IN LIQUOR STAND, HE DECLARES

Oregon Senator Announces He Thinks Wilson's Judgment Should Control.

Washington, July 12.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL).—The following statement of his position on the prohibition question is made by Senator McNary:

"On every occasion, as a member of the United States senate, I shall support and vote for national prohibition. My views on the necessity of food control are well known, and I am employing every effort that I possess to assist in the speedy enactment of a drastic food measure.

"It was my intention to support the house food bill which prohibits the use of foodstuffs for beverage purposes, until President Wilson made an appeal to congress to make an exception in the case of light beverages at the present time. At the time I was appointed to the office of United States senator, I publicly stated that I would follow the president in every legitimate effort successfully to prosecute the war, to the end that an early and honorable peace may be declared among the warring nations. Therefore, in connection with a number of the leading prohibition senators, I believe it becomes my patriotic duty to yield to the president's desire and permit his judgment to control at this time. This the president thinks is necessary as a present war emergency, and inasmuch as I have supported him in his crisis in the belief that in a centralization of authority responsibility can be located, I think this the proper course for me to pursue.

"Should the president's judgment prove faulty, then I shall vote to prohibit the use of food products in the manufacture of all beverages. I hope that this action upon my part will meet with approval, but in any event it is based upon thoughtful consideration of the principles involved and what I believe to be my present duty to the commander in chief of our army, Mr. Wilson."

Washington—Elmer L. Cave, superintendent of schools, Bellvue. West Virginia—M. P. Shawkey, state superintendent of schools, Charleston.

Wisconsin—J. W. Crabtree, president, State normal school, River Falls. Wyoming—J. E. Burch, superintendent of schools, Kemmerer.

Alaska—L. D. Henderson, commissioner of education. Hawaii—Vaughn MacCaughy, professor of botany, College of Hawaii, Honolulu.

Philippine Islands—Walter W. Marquardt, director of education, Manila. Porto Rico—Ralph S. Garwood, dean, College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts, University of Porto Rico, Mayaguez.

Robert J. Alay, retiring president. The state directors are the officers in charge of the work of the association in their various home states, every state being represented. In several cases the nominees for state directors are for reelection. It is very likely that in the case of the vice presidents and state directors will be chosen just as nominated by the committee. In the case of the president, however, it has happened that the committee has been overruled, as in the election of Mrs. Ella Flegg Young.

SPECIAL TRAINING IS ESSENTIAL IN TEACHER IN VOCATIONAL WORK

Frank H. Shepherd of O. A. C. Also Declares Federal Officials Should Supervise.

No man should be permitted to teach in a vocational school who has not had special training and practical experience in teaching.

The educational system of the United States should be administered and supervised by the national government.

These were two outstanding points in an address before the department of vocational education and practical arts by Frank H. Shepherd, associate professor of industrial education of the state agricultural college at Corvallis, this afternoon at the First Methodist church.

The teacher in a vocational school should have broad education as well as trade skill or technic, said the speaker. No matter how skilled a workman may be, he should not be eligible to teach until he has also had preparation in the trade of teaching.

Qualities Are Compatible. "Recognition of these truths will quiet the confusion and clarify the atmosphere between the army which champions cultural education and the camp of those who are waging a great offensive in behalf of practical work and vocational training," said Professor Shepherd. "Upon closer acquaintance, and with clearer vision the two armies will find culture and technic fully compatible."

Mrs. Anna Y. Reed of Seattle discussed vocational guidance, and problems in connection with organization and administration.

Her analysis of the various forms of vocational guidance in vogue and the problems of each was based on her three years of research in Seattle and her present year of travel through other cities.

The theme of her address, which was delivered this afternoon also, was the relation of vocational guidance to vocational education as provided for by the Smith-Hughes bill.

Between Two Fires. The serious difficulties of organizing vocational guidance under school systems can all be traced to one fact—the character of public education contrasted with the character of business life. Vocational directors are between two fires. The forces of tradition pull one way, the forces of progress the other. Business men think and act quickly and they expect vocational directors to do the same.

Roseburg Woman Hurt. Roseburg, Or., July 12.—Mrs. Douglas Dyer of Myrtle Creek was injured Wednesday when the automobile driven by her husband turned over on the Grave Creek hill, south of Glendale.

Mr. Dyer killed his engine and the car backed off the grade, the fall fracturing Mrs. Dyer's arm. She is now in the Glendale hospital.

When lovely woman stoops to folly And Finds too late that men betray, What charm can soothe her melancholy? What art can wash her guilt away?

PICNIC OF STATES AT WASHINGTON PARK IS DRAWING DELEGATES

Twenty Booths Represent as Many States and Badges Introduce the Visitors.

Resting a few hours and playing several as a mid-week break in the "going to school by school teachers," which is just what the N. E. A. convention is, some thousands of the educators became "just people" Wednesday afternoon and journeyed to Washington park for the jolliest social affair of the whole convention, the picnic of states.

There were 20 states with booths, several societies, and many who formed reception committees "at large" to welcome the stranger, if there should be any such, but there didn't seem to be, for the badges made for a big sisterhood and brotherhood that needed no further introduction.

The booths were decorated with flowers and bunting, each state's power being secured for decorations where it was possible, Nevada appearing decked with sagebrush, and Kansas with sunflowers. The Missouri booth was ornamented by a mule. All the booths had roses galore and things to eat and Phil Loganberry juke.

The municipal band, under the direction of Percy A. Campbell, played throughout the afternoon with a massed throng in attendance, and Mrs. Fred Olson sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

"Ceres and Persephone," an open-air play, given by a group of fancifully attired children, under the direction of Miss Fay Armstrong and Dean Hunter.

Women Educators To Be Honor Guests. Deans of women and other prominent women educators who are attending the N. E.
