Scope of Work in Wartime Is Discussed and Portland Way of Teaching Praised.

The School Garden Association of America closed its annual meeting in Portland Thursday with the election of the following officers: Van Evrie Kilpatrick, New York city, president; Ruth Pyrtle, Lincoln, Neb., secretary; John L. Randall, Washington, D. C., treasurer; S. B. McCready, Guelph, Ontario, and Miss Alice V. Joyce of Portland, vice presidents. N. C. Maris was chosen state director for Oregon.

Says Too Much Ego A National Menace

Professor Henson Declares That the Schools Have Done Their Share in Fostering of National Ego. Discussing "National Education and World Policy," Edward O. Sisson, state commissioner of education of Boise, Idaho, at the N. E. A. convention said:

"Play that again!" Good music never grows old, never gets stale, never loses its charm or mystery, never ceases to soothe or to stimulate according to its nature. One never wearies of the music produced by

Lot of Country School Teachers Hard Young Woman Tells of Her Experience

Trials and tribulations of the country school teacher who is compelled to walk two miles from her home to the schoolhouse, rain or shine, have been the lot of Miss Bertha Overstreet, aged 18, who is one of the visitors at the Portland N. E. A. convention. Miss Overstreet says she could write a book upon her experiences in the wilds of Malheur county. Her schoolhouse stood 10 miles from the nearest railroad when she first tackled the educational work at Creston. So far out of the way was she that for an entire year she did not have the advantage of a visit from the county superintendent.

Total Attendance 15 The school house served 15 pupils, boys and girls, ranging from the primary pupils to those 13 years of age. One evidence of the modern tendencies of the district, however, was the fact that the board served hot chocolate and soup to the students. The

Need of Trained Men Seen in War Times

United States Surgeon Tells Convention Delegates That Men Trained to Think Scientifically Count. Views of J. A. B. Sinclair, surgeon in the United States Army, were given to the N. E. A. convention delegates on the subject "War as a Highly Organized Science." "We need men who are trained to think scientifically and to apply their scientific knowledge to their tasks. As sudden as was the act of an unknown youth, whose leap exploded the European powder mine, was the stroke of the German military establishment, and the rapidly with the most amazing feature of a cataclysm, the full horrors of which only posterity will know.

Expert in Manual Training Speaker

More Practical Instruction Is Needed in Opinion of Professor Jensen of Stockton, Cal. Need of the practical instruction in connection with manual training was emphasized in an address before the N. E. A. convention by George H. Jensen, director of the department of mechanical arts and design at Stockton, Cal. He said:

"More must be added to our earlier conception and content of manual training. It has been our experience that boys come to the high school without knowing the names of more than one or two of the tools which have to be used, and have no idea of their material value. A study of stains should also be made and every boy should have a simple vocabulary of woods. There is immense possibility for development along the lines of concrete pottery. Every school should have a print shop, which will do more with less effort in written English, spelling, punctuation and construction than anything I know.

President Foster of Portland Is Speaker

American People as a Whole Are Content to Remain in the Mediocrity, Declares Educator. "The Claims of Scholarship Upon the Normal School," was the subject of an address by Dr. William T. Foster, president of Reed college, at the N. E. A. He said:

"The war has brought out in sharp relief the characteristic shortcomings of the schools of the United States. Our people, as a whole, are prone to contentment with mediocrity and avoidance of the discipline of prompt, honest and exact assessment. In these respects the schools of the United States reflect the people. "Our schools, as a rule, do not make necessary the prompt and complete performance of duty; they do not cultivate the habit of 'being there.' As challenges to the powers of the majority of the girls and boys of the United States, they are absurdly inadequate. The high school diploma is no guarantee to the employer or to the college that the graduate has ever been required to do his best at anything. In this respect a college degree is no better. Indeed it may stand for four years of irresponsible and head-long pursuit of the joys of college life, during which the youth has formed the habit of getting by with a minimum of effort."

Coast Artillerymen To Have Mess Fund

People of Coos Bay Are Raising Money to Help Boys Along Who Will Leave Soon for Service. Marshfield, Or., July 13.—Coos Bay people are raising a mess fund for the "Coast Artillery," which will leave for service this month. A benefit performance at the Noble theatre realized $120 to start the fund. Other ways of raising money for the fund will be resorted to so the company likely will have a good sum with which to buy extras for their mess. There are about 30 members of the company under the command of Captain Fred Gettins. The membership includes many of the prominent young men of the city, some of whom are married and will leave families.

PATRIOTIC FEATURES CLEVERLY PRESENTED IN SELLWOOD PARK

School Children's Pageant Is Offered in Honor of Visiting N. E. A. Delegates.

LITTLE TOTS IN PARADE

Afternoon's Entertainment Shows What Portland Is Doing in the Way of Playground Activities. Patriotic features, clever and unique, were dominant in the second annual school children's pageant of the Sellwood district in Sellwood park Thursday, under the direction of the Parent Teacher association, assisted by the party ladies. Visiting N. E. A. delegates were invited to attend, the event being held a little early this year, to provide an afternoon's entertainment for them, and also to show what is being accomplished in the way of playground activities in local public schools.

Patriotic Features Clever

The parade, which preceded the lawn fetes, was a most interesting event. Hundreds of children, big and small, took part. There were eight divisions, among them being the doll baby section, nursery rhymes, organizations, clowns, merchants' floats, patriotic and babies.

Uncle Sam Is Present

As Uncle Sam Elvin S. Learman, aged 6, and the Goddess of Liberty, Oleen De Long, aged 3, who rode on an attractive little float, were "cute as they could be."

"animals," the pride of the present school boy and girl. The other section was composed of a number of little girls wheeling their gaily decorated baby carriages. Another feature was an automobile load of "live" babies.

The Sellwood Board of Trade was represented by numerous little floats. There was also a "motor" section, little boys riding tricycles and pedal wagons. The Sellwood Queen Eathers were there in great numbers. A section worthy of note was "Fairlyland."

Little Ones Attract Attention Representing agricultural preparedness, Joe Abbott, aged 2 1/2 years, and Bertha Tritts, aged 2 1/2 years, attracted a great deal of attention. Little

Joe, dressed up in overalls, pushed a wheelbarrow loaded with vegetables, while little Bertha, dressed as the farmer's wife, trundled beside him, armed with hoe, rake and spade.

Mrs. H. T. Capell was general chairman of the event, and had as assistants Mrs. W. D. Palmer and Mrs. E. R. Eiselt. Those who had charge of the various sections were: Mrs. S. Z. Watson, Mrs. W. C. Kenworthy, Mrs. Ma'el Williams, Mrs. C. A. Miller, Mrs. F. J. Meindel, H. W. Morgan and F. E. Harrigan.

Following the parade, an address of welcome was given by Professor L. H. Morgan of Sellwood school. He also served as grand marshal. Then followed three groups of folk dances.

railroad, a narrow gauge line running from Fairbanks to Chatsanika, a distance of 40 miles. The material will be sent to Seattle about July 19 on a barge, and from Seattle will go by steamer for the north about August 1.
