

FIRES COST OREGON $6.69 PER MINUTE IN LAST FIVE YEARS

State Fire Marshal Issues a Bulletin in Book Form to Teach Greater Caution.

MANY HINTS ARE GIVEN

Further Issues of Pamphlet Will Contain Additional Warnings as Needs Arise.

Salem, Or., July 17.—"Fire Marshal's Bulletin" is the title of a neat little folder which has just been issued by the state fire marshal department. It is to be issued at irregular intervals as State Fire Marshal Wells deems there is need for it.

In the initial number the state fire marshal points out the need of cooperation between his department and local fire chiefs.

"During the last five years the approximate fire loss in the state of Oregon was $17,895,909.13," says the bulletin. "The amount of property destroyed, of which no record was ever made, we are unable to ascertain. Available statistics show the aggregate loss in the last five years to have been more than $6.69 a minute. Not only in the loss of property, but in the loss of lives, as well, we have paid a stupendous toll by reason of our carelessness, inattention and neglect."

A lot of pointers about fire prevention are contained in a column, the first letter of each paragraph of which, when read together, spell "How to Make Oregon Fireproof."

Exemption Query Sprung
Salem, Or., July 17.—A number of state employees are subject to the selective draft and the question has been raised by LeRoy D. Leedy, assistant secretary of the Oregon public service commission, whether it will be necessary for state employees to report to the exemption boards in their home counties.

He has addressed a letter to Adjutant General White on the subject. He has maintained his legal residence at Canyon City, in Grant county, and when the war registration was required he sent his registration to his home city.

As he has a wife and small child dependent upon him, if selected he expects to claim exemption and he wants to know if it will be necessary for him to return to Canyon City to do so. He suggests in his letter that he might appear before the Marion county exemption board for the required physical examination and the exemption affidavits could be forwarded to the Grant county exemption board.

Railroad Asks Time
Salem, Or., July 17.—A. B. Wood, vice president and general manager of the Oregon, Pacific & Eastern Railway company of Cottage Grove has asked the public service commission to postpone for 60 days the date of hearing the company's application for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates. This will give the company time to determine its policy as to whether it wishes to withdraw its request for an increase, pointed out Mr. Wood.

Parking Charge at Fair
Salem, Or., July 17.—At this year's state fair automobiles and vehicles used for pleasure will be admitted free to the fair grounds, but a charge of $1 a day or $5 a week will be made for parking privileges along the racing course for five passenger cars or less and $1.50 a day or $7.50 a week for cars of not more than seven passenger capacity, according to announcement made by Secretary Lea.

Road Bond Bids Sought
Salem, Or., July 17.—Advertisement for bids for $500,000 of the $6,000,000 Oregon road bond issue were telegraphed Monday night to eastern financial journals. The bid will be opened on August 7, which is the same day the state board of control will open bids for the $400,000 of bonds to be issued to match the federal allotment for forest and post roads.

3 Services Daily At Camp Meeting

The camp meeting at Thirty-third and Mason streets under the auspices of the Oregon State Holiness association, an interdenominational organization, will hold services every morning, afternoon and evening, until Sunday. The camp has two large tabernacles and 150 tents, with 60 more ordered.

The programs consist of songs and addresses. Joseph Smith of Redlands, Cal., and Mr. Babcock of Los Angeles are the special evangelists for the meeting. President O. E. Tiffany of Seattle Pacific college gave an address Sunday morning. Other speakers will be present at the various meetings.

O. A. C. WILL TRAIN ITS STUDENTS NEXT TERM IN WAR WAYS

Special Courses of Military Application Are Planned in All Departments of School.

Corvallis, Or., July 17.—Practically every technical department is planning to cooperate with the military department at the Oregon Agricultural college the coming year. Courses are being planned whereby each department will give work which may be taken as a part of the college military training.

The physics department is giving a course in signaling and wireless, and is planning to take over the radio wireless station which has been asked for in the requisition to the government. The school of commerce gives a one credit course in military business methods and accounting, and is putting out bulletins that are of distinct value to the entire military organization. Both time and thought are given in the logging engineering department to the handling of heavy mobile artillery and to railroad work immediately behind the firing line. Effective steps are now being taken to carry on practical work in ordnance by the mechanical engineering department.

The physical education department offers one course for men and women leading to a Red Cross certificate and another for men only in rapid muscular development. The new building development is much like that given in the soldiers' training camps in Canada, and include such work as scaling walls, jumping trenches, and sword and bayonet fencing.

Clatskanie Shingle Weavers on Strike

Clatskanie, Or., July 17.—The Kratz shingle mills are idle as a result of a strike called by the employees Monday morning. They demand an 8-hour day with 10 hours' pay. The climax came Friday, when one of their number, who was under suspicion of being an I. W. W. agitator, was told by the authorities to leave the city. The shingle weavers are quiet and it is not yet known just how the company will meet their demands.

Pattern Maker Hero; Saves Drowning Boy

Dewey S. Weiss Dives for Lad Who Had Sunk Under Surface and Assists in Resuscitating Him.

Dewey S. Weiss of 288 East Ninth street, a patternmaker for the West Side Pattern Works, at the foot of Stark street, saved Joe Barger of Brooklyn from drowning Monday afternoon in the river near the P. R. L. & P. dock, south of the east approach of the Hawthorne bridge.

Barger was playing in the water with others of his age. He got out beyond his depth and sank from sight. When his companions sent up a cry of alarm, Weiss, who was sitting on the beach with a sweater over his bathing suit, peeled off his sweater, plunged in, and by diving found the boy and dragged him back to land.

The lad was unconscious for 10 minutes after being rescued, but revived under the efforts of Weiss and a workman from the tug John McCracken.

Farm Hand in Hospital
Ralph Hobling, 18 years old, farm hand of Berlinfield, Or., is at the Good Samaritan hospital, suffering from contusions of the skull, resulting from being caught under an overturned hay wagon, Monday afternoon.

MARSHFIELD STRIKE ALL SETTLED; WAS NOT DUE TO I. W. W.

R. P. Bonham, of Federal Labor Bureau, Gets Employees and Millmen to Confer.

Recent strike troubles at Marshfield were not due to the I. W. W., according to R. P. Bonham of the immigration service, who has returned from a trip to Coos Bay, where he went as commissioner of conciliation, an office to which he has just been appointed by the government.

"The situation there now is generally good," said Mr. Bonham. "While there are a few I. W. W. at Marshfield, they are not in any way responsible for the strike troubles at the Smith plant."

"The principal contention was that the millworkers thought the mill owners were discharging men because of their activities in the union. The mill owners offered to hold a conference to go into the case of each man discharged, but this did not meet with approval."

"The troubles were finally straightened out. Then the workers wanted an increase in pay and wanted the company to go under the Oregon compensation act and install sanitary drinking appliances. To these wishes the company acceded. In five days practically all the men were back at work again."

"A good many of the millworkers are members of the Coast Artillery corps."

Lioness Kills Dog In Furious Battle

Monticello, Ill., July 17.—(U. N. S.) A lioness which has been terrorizing this section fought a furious battle with a dog near here Monday afternoon. Two men witnessed the fight, which began and ended so quickly that no time was had to get a shot at the lioness. The dog was killed but tore the lioness' throat before it died. Many experienced woodsmen are patrolling the Allerton estate, where recently the lioness attacked a man. About 100 are in the party.

NAVAL BOAT BURNS AT RADIO STATION AND LOSS IS $1200

Wireless Crew From Cape
Blanco Has Arrived at the New Depot at Marshfield.

Marshfield, Or., July 17.—A gasoline boat, 40 feet long, owned by the United States navy, and brought here for use at the new naval radio station, caught fire from gasoline and was destroyed. The loss is $1200.

The wireless crew from Cape Blanco arrived at the new Marshfield station, and is in charge.

The Cape Blanco station will be abandoned Tuesday and most of the equipment taken to San Francisco.

Ship Ways Will Be Laid
Marshfield, Or., July 17.—The Coos Bay Shipbuilding company will begin at once construction of ways on ground leased and adjoining the C. A. Smith mill. The company has contracts for building four government vessels. With the aid to be built by Kruse & Banks at North Bend, there will be 10 government vessels under construction on Coos bay.

Sinaloa Will Be Floated
Marshfield, Or., July 17.—It is expected that the Norwegian steamer Sinaloa, stranded at Cape Blanco, will be floated Tuesday. The salving crew has the holes in the hull patched. The vessel may be brought to Coos bay and later will be taken to San Francisco for repairs.

Airplanes Replace Zepps
Lausanne, Switzerland, July 17.—(U. P.)—Germany has abandoned construction of Zeppelins at the great factories at Friedrichshafen and is now turning all efforts there to manufacturing airplanes. Large numbers of these aircraft are produced weekly.

Baker Pioneer Dies
Baker, Or., July 17.—Mrs. Ida Mayes, 45, the wife of W. H. Mayes, a prominent Haines resident, died in a hospital here Monday. She was a native of Illinois and had lived here 13 years. She leaves four sons, two in the army and two at home.
