

BEAVERS DROP TWO; LOS ANGELES RISES TO SECOND RUNNING

Portland Gives Poor Exhibit of Baseball at Sunday's Double Header in South.

CRIPPLES GET ONE GAME

Seven Errors in Two Games May Be Offered as Excuse for Some of the Angels' Runs.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 30.—(I. N. S.)—Killer and his Angel band closed their home stay of four weeks with a noisy and joyous celebration consisting chiefly of two victories over the matinee, held the Beavers well in hand until he had a reasonably good lead. He let down in the eighth and the Portlanders secured four markers in the bottom of the inning. They made five of the wildest errors ever seen on a ball field, and these blunders, combined with Penner's wildness and 12 solid blows, gave the champs 14 runs.

In the morning game Fincher and Hogg opposed one another. The champs scored two in the first and one in the second. Hogg pitched great ball outside of the fifth, when three hits produced two runs for Portland. The champs made the game soft pickings by coming four hits with a boot in the seventh for four runs. Cincinnati, July 30.—(I. N. S.)—Cravath's two base drive into the left field wall in the fourth inning and the Comiskey hired hands. They are playing at home, and apparently have reached the top of their stride. They just finished a clean sweep of five victories over the Browns, while the White Sox were stopped three times in a row by the Red Sox.

Cincinnati and St. Louis Are Proving No Flash in the Pan in Race.

New York, July 30.—(I. N. S.)—The shadow of the west is casting a dark shadow over the Giants' pennant chances. The sport of the Reds and Cardinals has proven no "flash in the pan." The teams are playing the best ball in the National league. Inch by inch, they are crawling up on the New York bunch. The Giants have started their western campaign very badly. They have been beaten in two out of three starts by the Cubs, and have had their lead of nine and a half games cut to seven games.

Leading Teams Joust Today
New York, July 30.—(U. P.)—The war of the White Sox and the red of the crimson hoed athletes of Boston will be blended today in the "crucial" of the "crucial" series. The slump of the Phillies has almost put them out of the running.

DAVE BANCROFT
AND MARANVILLE
ARE OPPOSITES

But Each Star Shortstop Gets
Results If in Different Ways.

As form stylists, the work of Benny Bancroft and Rabbit Maranville offers an interesting study from real life, says the Philadelphia Evening Ledger. As shortstop interpreters, both are headliners, but their way of going about things may be said to be opposing. Benny has the accepted form and gets the results, and Rabbit gets the results without the form stuff. The local shark operates according to Hoyle, but the Boston mentor conforms to Mr. Maranville's well-known lack of system.

Bancroft moves with the ease of a bounding deer. His action appeals grace, and finish is written all over his efforts. And his throw is as graceful and stylish as are his general movements. He brings every part of his body into harmonious union, as the form artists say.

The diminutive Boston shortstop moves with speed and apparent ease, but not with grace. He doesn't glide along like one dancing, not at all. He doesn't glide at all. He jumps with an uneven motion, just like his celebrated namesake. He throws apparently with only the lower part of his arm, and he seems to catch a fly ball between his knees just after he has finally decided to let it hit the ground. You feel that he is going to fool you every time and let the ground try for the putout.

But both get the results, and that's what counts in the box score and in the salary slip. And working together they almost compel a study in contrasts.
