COLUMBIA HIGHWAY

Forest Hall

Forest Hall is distinctive and is in a class by itself. It is to Oregon what the Mission Inn is to Southern California. Forest Hall seeks to cater to persons of culture, refinement and discrimination. Built after the style of the old-time mansions in the South, it radiates the spirit of Southern hospitality. You will be charmed by the old Colonial silver and the crotch-mahogany that came from England to Virginia and Kentucky more than a century ago. You will enjoy the cooking, which in the old time was so universally found in the homes of aristocracy of intellect in the South. The Southern beaten-biscuits, fried chicken, salads, jelly-pie, and Dixie nut-wafers served at Forest Hall are not to be found elsewhere on the Columbia Highway. A breakfast, luncheon, afternoon tea or dinner at Forest Hall will add the ultimate touch of pleasure and satisfaction to your trip over the Columbia River Highway. Phone in advance so that we may make adequate preparation for your comfort and pleasure.
