Roll Call Response 'In Business Reports

All Reports Optimistic With Exception of Cemetery Superintendent and Foreclosure Office.

"Business better, 20 per cent."
"Business is many times greater than last year."
"Business has improved 50 per cent."

Thus the answers came as the Rotary roll call proceeded up and down the tables at the club's luncheon Tuesday noon. Each of the members in either the owner or manager of a line of business different from his fellows and the whole constitutes representation from practically every important enterprise in the city.

Railroads, shipbuilders, merchants, factory heads all made optimistic reports.

Then came a shock. "My business is dead," said one. The laughter was uproarious when the Rotarian added as his classification, "cemetery superintendent."

"My business is not what it was a year or so ago," said another. "For the sake of the city I am glad of it," he concluded, amid applause. He administers the affairs of defunct mercantile concerns.

"We are doing our bit for the government. We have turned over our oil to the government and are going out of business," said a third, who is a manufacturer of crude oil burners.

"Business in all lines shows substantial gains" according to our reports, affirmed William Young, manager of R. G. Dun & Co.

"The I. W. W. has added materially to our business," said the head of the Pinkerton Detective agency.

"We get more dough for less dough than ever ago," smilingly stated H. F. Rittman, the Rotary baker.

An English inventor of a new wireless telephone claims that it is compact enough for a man to carry the entire apparatus.

ALLEN EATON, EUGENE, DELEGATE TO PEACE COUNCIL, SENDS WORD

Gives His Version of Chicago Convention Suppressed by Governor Lowden.

By Allen Eaton
(Member Oregon State Legislature from Lane County)

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Delegates to the Peoples Council for Democracy and Peace are today leaving for their several states confident that in time the people of the country will know the truth about the organization and the methods used to prevent the members from meeting.

The two meetings which have been held, together with the work of the executive committee, were sufficient to perfect a permanent organization. It was necessary for the executive committee to meet twice.

Much greater than the issues involved in the refusal of the governor of Illinois to permit the citizens to assemble and speak. None of the officers or members of the organization were ever permitted to place the case before the people as the first condition to permit the citizens to assemble and speak. While the convention might be peaceable enough, no doubt mobs would incite riots.

At the meeting held at the governor was rushing hundreds of soldiers to Chicago and securing guns and ammunition, not a single district in the state was without men on guard at the hall seemed unnecessary. Resolutions were passed by the council to accept the president's reply to the pope as the first condition to permit the citizens to assemble and speak. The council also made definite statement of the war attitude of this country and asked that the allied nations do likewise and that we do not demand a larger measure of democracy for Germany than we allow to ourselves.

"How about the toothache?" suggested the mere man.

Beauty Chat

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL

The Poison of Fear
Fear is a passion which debases and degrades man as much as its opposite passion courage can exalt and elevate him above human nature.

To teach children not to fear ought to be one of the first principles of education, for fear robs man of power, reflection, judgment, resolution—in fact of all the qualities which the human mind enjoys. To allow a child to fear darkness or thunder is to destroy its tranquility and happiness. It is very easy to explain both of these elemental conditions.

The period of night, which, by its obscurity, is so wisely destined for sweet repose, is not the signal for painful uneasiness. While others enjoy peaceful sleep, the fearful child listens with trembling and dismay to the smallest sound—the sweat of horror breaks forth from every pore of his body and he is more fatigued in the morning than when he went to bed.

Teaching children to fear animals or the big, good-natured policeman fill them with terror and dread until they grow large enough to discover why their parents have had to be so.

One may easily comprehend what distinctive influence such continual misery must have on the duration of life. It is the incessant contraction of the smaller vessels, the skin grows cold and perspiration is completely checked. The blood is collected in the larger arteries, the pulsation becomes irregular, the heart is overcharged and cannot move with freedom. The important business of the smallest organs is arrested. The digestive organs are cramped and retarded. All the muscular power is paralyzed. Fear has all the effects which are produced by a mortal poison and its consequences are equally pernicious in shortening life. New to find the antidote for this poison.

Without education humans grow as weeds in the garden of intelligence. They have strength and power, but their strength and power is of the destructive kind rather than the helpful kind. Never deny children any education they crave. Take the time to explain all their problems in a simple and convincing manner. There can be no fear where there is knowledge. The brave little child who proudly says, "I know it is true because my mamma told me so," says a tribute to his mamma which she must live up to.

If thunder and lightning is explained to children they grow to love it and watch its wonders without fear. It is only fear that prevents people from accomplishing anything they desire to do. What stops the students from going through their examinations at the last moment? What causes stage fright? What stops the ambition to succeed our flag? Nothing but fear—the real people know that death on a battlefield is a sure way to reach life and heaven. But these are the educated ones. The uneducated are but by observation and proper explanation.

There is nothing to fear if people are taught to understand their mind; that all they feel and do is entirely mental, and that they cannot do anything without the mind directing all their actions. Our life is a demonstration of mind.

If we let fear poison our thoughts and limit our work, we have a disaster on our hands. Nothing but a simple common sense tells us that all we do and say is the expression of our thoughts, and fortunately we have the power to control our spoken words and physical actions. Therefore, what is there to fear but a weakness of mind? Drive out the limited, fearful thoughts and with clear conscience and faith do what you know to be right without the fear of consequences. Do not fear anything but fear.

MOBILIZATION CAMP

Sergeant, Discharged Because of Dependents, Eager to Return.

Sergeant Wants to Get Back.—L. F. Fink, ex-quartermaster sergeant of Battery A, Oregon field artillery, would like to get back into the service. After 18 years service with the battery he was honorably discharged on account of dependent relatives. He is in hopes that he can have arrangements made to enable him to return. A gold watch was presented to Sergeant Fink by his comrades.

Major Parks Visits Clackamas.—Major Richard Parks, U. S. A., of the inspector general's office, was a visitor to Clackamas Tuesday, accompanied by Colonel C. E. Dentler. He met most of the commissioned officers in a brief council.

Two New Recruits.—Two recruits for Battery B have come in, and one of them, James Gardner, has from Fort Lawson, where full clothing allowances were issued to him. His wealth of apparel is the admiration of the battery. William Vance, the other recruit, chose Battery B, enlisting in Vancouver recently, because he wanted artillery service and wanted to be a Webfoot. There are supposed to be 10 other recruits for B at Vancouver.

Some Fly Trap.—The officers' mess of the Third Oregon was in need of a new trap and Lieutenant Colonel Abrams, having recently returned from the United States School of Fire at Fort Sill, Kan., was detailed to construct the same. It has been in operation four days and has caught 14 flies and four wasps. Major Gilbert, chaplain of the regiment and custodian of the mess fund, refused to allow the 80-cent traps unless it catches at least 20 flies a day.

Health Good.—Battery A has two men at the hospital in Vancouver. Richard Kennedy has been in the hospital two weeks with fever, but is recovering. Sam Morrow went to Vancouver Sunday for a minor operation. The second shot of prophylactic for the prevention of typhoid was given last Friday and is beginning to work off. Otherwise the battery men are in excellent health.

Pay Day Expected.—The first pay day of the battery and cavalry is expected Wednesday. There is also a general sense of expected orders to move on the part of officers and men of these units. The number of visitors is large.

Strikes Uniform Required.—Orders to the members of the cavalry squadron are to wear blouses when on leave and not to wear neckties. Canvas leggings and tan shoes must be worn also. Some of the cavalrymen have been exhibiting individual variations from the regulation uniform when away from camp.

Training Begins.—James W. W. Orndorff, chief squadron bugler with the cavalry, has been training seven buglers from the four different troops and as a precautionary measure takes them out to the target pits where they cannot be shot.

Guard to Battery B.—The mother of Sergeant L. P. Wright has presented Battery B with a guard who now fights from its staff at the head of the battery street at Clackamas.

Members Appreciated.—The members of Battery A, field artillery, are confident that Levi Hiatt, battery sergeant, is the best artist of his tribe in camp, while Battery B is equally confident that Charles A. Lacking would register 100 points in a contest.
