Today's Forecast

Portland and vicinity—Tonight and Thursday rain; moderate southerly winds. Oregon and Washington—Tonight and Thurs-day rain; moderate southerly winds, increasing along the coast. Weather Conditions

The storm area, central over southern Sas katchewan yesterday, has moved eastward some-what, and this morning is central over Man-itoba and the northern portion of North Da-kota; it was attended by warmer weather in those states and in the upper portion of the Mississippi valley, also by raius in Montana Minnesota and the Dakotas. It is being fol lowed by an area of high pressure now central over the northern Rocky Mountain region, which is attended by much lower temperatures in Montana, Wyoming and southern Idaho. The pressure has fallen in the extreme northwest, accompanied by light showers and some-what warmer weather. East of the Mississippi river the pressure is high, accompanied by clear skies. Temperatures this morning are below normal in the eastern half of the country and in parts of Idaho, Oregon and Nevada; elsewhere they are above normal. ALFRED H. THIESSEN,

Style Tips Points of Interest in Suits. Long jackets, some measuring 30 inches, a few slightly longer, prevail. Jackets are more closely fitted in at the waistline, not drawn in tight, but not loose fitted, as formerly. A slight flared movement is noticed in some of the jacket models. Many of the jackets fasten beginning at the neck. Skirts are narrower.

The noveltry trimming note on suits and dresses is woolen embroidery in a melange of colors.
