Opportunity Given To Beat Germans

United States and Leader of Central Powers to Float Loans at Same Time.

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—"While our boys are at grips with the German soldiers at the front a new phase of the contest is about to begin when the American people at home will compete against the people of Germany," said James K. Lynch, governor of the federal reserve bank Tuesday. By chance, Germany will be floating her greatest war loan at the same time the United States is offering the second Liberty loan of 1917.

"Every American will be spurred by a desire to show Germany that his patriotism is stronger than that of the enemy, and I believe this will bring home to the public the emergency of the next loan in unmistakable fashion."

"It is the solemn duty and obligation of each person in the United States to support the national government, not alone in spirit, but through material aid and such as can be rendered by purchasing Liberty loan bonds to the fullest extent of our present means and future earning capacity."

An Illinois inventor's combination coat and vest has the usual fronts for those garments, but only one back.

The girls of today are leaning dangerously near the eccentric in their selection of clothes. Colors and patterns seem to be of no other importance than to attract attention. Bed Time Tales

BY CLARA INGRAM JUDSON

Tommy is Startled
POOR little Tommy Tittle-mouse! After he found that his best friend, Billy Robin, lived on spiders and that Billy and the wonderful Mr. Spider could never be friends, he was hopelessly puzzled. "How am I to know about this outdoor world?" he asked Mrs. Tommy. "I don't know who can be friends and who are enemies!"

"If I were you," suggested Mrs. Tommy, "I would go right over to Mr. Spider now and ask him to explain himself. He can tell you a great deal. That surely is a good idea," said Tommy thoughtfully, and bidding his little mate goodbye, he started over towards the hedge.

Carefully he crept nearer and nearer him, until the hedge was reached in safety. "I surely am getting braver," Tommy said to himself; "I didn't mind that journey one bit," and then he looked for Mr. Spider.

At first he saw no one, but he looked and he called, "Mr. Spider! Mr. Spider! I am all alone this morning! Won't you come and talk to me?" And then, in a minute, he saw Mr. Spider sticking five of his eyes out from behind a leaf.

He saw Mr. Spider sticking five of his eyes out from behind a leaf.

now, I'm catching flies, so that I will have something to offer my future mate when she selects me."

"Dear me, how funny," said Tommy laughing. "Don't you select her?"

"Oh, no," said the spider, "she selects me, and if I offer her enough and she is pleased, she invites me into her web."

"And if she isn't pleased?" inquired Tommy.

"Then she eats me up," said the spider. Tommy's desire for knowledge vanished and he hurried off home.

Tomorrow—The Lake Breeze Starts a Race.

"I'm all alone," he repeated. "Please come and talk to me."

"Of course, if you are really alone," began Mr. Spider, and Tommy began to creep up. So Mr. Spider crept out and sat on the bottom of the web he had made. Though he appeared to give his whole attention to Tommy, he really kept four of his eyes hard at work watching for danger—it does not pay to take chances!

"Well, good morning, Tommy," he said politely, "may you never have such a scare as you gave me yesterday."

"The same good wish for you," replied Tommy; "and that's what I have come to see you about this morning, see? You see, I didn't know that Billy Robin was likely to eat you up—he's a very good friend of mine and I thought he would like you, too."

"He does," cried Mr. Spider. "But not in the same way he likes you! He likes me to eat. But I will be glad to tell you all about myself that you want to know. Where shall I begin?" suggested Tommy.

"Now?" asked the spider. "Well,

"One Meatless Meal a Day" is a good food slogan for war time, or any time—better make it two meatless meals a day—it would mean health and strength for the nation. But be sure and get the right substitute for meat in a digestible form. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is the ideal substitute for meat. It is 100 per cent whole wheat prepared in a digestible form. Two or three of these little loaves of baked whole wheat make a nourishing, satisfying meal at a cost of a few pennies. Delicious with milk or cream or fruits of any kind. Made in Oakland, California.

High Forester Shot By Fellow Lodgeman

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Jacob Label, editor and publisher of the American Foresters Review, was shot in the back of the head Tuesday night at his home by Joe Lilla, an Italian barber. Lilla then shot himself and fell dead over Label's body. Label has a chance to recover.
