Woman's War Work

BY VELLA WINNER

ELIZABETH FREEMAN FOX, dean of women, University of Oregon, in discussing what war work women can do, says:

"Many women are asking at this time how they can best serve their country. It is one thing to decide to serve; it is quite another to decide along what lines you will prepare for service. Women are being asked to fill positions that have never been open to them before—places left vacant because the men, too, are assuming new responsibilities. There are always those who can step into the positions that make slight demands on one's talent and intellect, but the call now is for those who will fill difficult places and assume new responsibilities. You must prepare yourself to meet the demands of the time. Opportunity is given the young women of Oregon to do so along a number of definite lines at the state university.

"There will be demand for women teachers in the places formerly filled by men; as heads of departments, principals, teachers of science and commercial courses, as well as in all lines formerly filled by them. The school of education is ready to prepare you.

"The school of commerce will help the women who wish to prepare for positions in banks, chambers of commerce, business management, cost accounting, etc. A young woman from this state was one of the first two draft women employed by the Pennsylvania railroad in New York city. There will be exceptional opportunities in the business world for women who are equipped.

"In the field of journalism, reporters, editors, writers for magazines and newspapers, experts in advertising are all wanted and women are filling these positions.

"The school of law gladly opens its doors to women who wish to know their rights and duties as property owners, or who wish to equip themselves with a knowledge of the law to be used in business positions, or who are planning to become lawyers. There are some distinguished and accomplished women lawyers at the present time, and the future will doubtless find more women entering the profession.

"Many women are entering the ranks of active service as nurses—a few as physicians. One of the honor students of last year's class at the University of Oregon medical school was a woman physician.

"The call just now is for preparation for service. Whether it be along the line of household arts, business, social service, teaching, music or in some other direction, the call to prepare oneself for service is sounded. The state university is ready to help many a young woman in her personal preparation."

L. Howard; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. F. Lawson. The auxiliary meets to sew every Tuesday afternoon on the eighth floor at Lipman, Wolfe & Co. All relatives and friends of Company B are welcome.

Oak Grove Women Register.—Ladies of Oak Grove precinct who have not registered will find cards at the post-office with Miss Williams. Cards may be left there or at Red Cross headquarters on Monday.

Westminster Does Bit.—Both the sewing class and the knitting class in Westminster church are active and accomplishing a great amount of work.

Bed Time Tales

Fatty Caterpillar Goes to Sleep

NOON time came. The warm sun shone down on the drowsy garden and all the creatures dozed or slept. All but Fatty Caterpillar. The warmth only made him the more hungry and he started up the side of the second biggest cabbage, eating, eating all the way.

"Soon I will be fat enough," he whispered to himself as he took a bigger bite. "Soon I may spin. Soon my dreams will come true," and he went on eating for good measure.

Up in the tree near by, Billy Robin stirred and blinked his left eye. "What's the use of sleeping all the afternoon?" he asked himself lazily. "I have half a mind to fly over to the cabbage patch and get me a worm." He blinked his other eye, looked up and down and around for company; finding none, he flew leisurely over to the cabbage patch, and there he saw Fatty Caterpillar.

"Hello there! Fatty!" he called derisively, "you still eating?"

"To be sure! Why not?" replied Fatty between bites. "I must eat and eat and eat. Then some day I will fly as you do."

"What a joke," chirped Billy. "I'm so glad I happened to find you. Now I will have something funny to tell Tommy Sparrow when he wakes up from his nap. The very idea of a worm becoming a bird!"

"I'm not a worm!" exclaimed Fatty Caterpillar excitedly. "I'm a caterpillar and that's a very different thing."

"Of course it is!" said Billy Robin quickly, "don't you think I know anything? If you were a worm, you would have nice slick sides and I could eat you up for my afternoon tea. But as you are a caterpillar, I can do nothing of the sort. Why do you arm yourself with such poisonous stickers on your sides? If you are a bird, as you say you are, why not protect yourself as we do by flying away from harm? Why carry poison? That is unsportsmanlike."

"Everyone his own way," replied Fatty Caterpillar patiently; "but I believe I have enough now," he said to himself; and with that he began spinning himself into a soft silky net.

All the rest of the day he worked faithfully, hardly stopping for a bit to eat, so eager was he to be done.

At last his covering was finished and with a thought of the beautiful creature he would some day be, Fatty Caterpillar went to sleep.

Tomorrow—Billy Robin's New Friend.

"You a butterfly?" cried Billy Robin. "Where did you ever get such an idea?"

Blind Pianist Will Appear

A CHANCE for Portland to show her interest in a home-grown musician and to give him a "boost" that in future years may be a source of pride, is afforded in the appearance of Francis Richter, the blind pianist, in two recitals at the Heilig theatre, tonight and Saturday afternoon. If Portland turns out in sufficiently large numbers to hear the young pianist who has cultivated his talents in her midst, and the artistic results of the concert warrant, Paul Derringer, manager, will introduce Mr. Richter in a wider field, namely, New York. The blind artist plays by music scores, as does any other musician, and not by ear, as has so often been reported. He reads by means of the raised letters used by those to whom the world is eternally dark, then, memorizes each note, each bar.

Good Bill at Hippodrome

Old lady monkeys wheeling little baby monkeys, musical apes playing banjos, drunk and naughty monkeys hauled away in a patrol wagon drawn by dogs—dogs that could talk and understand, in fact, monkeys and dogs doing almost everything humans do, is the first number on the new Hippodrome bill started Thursday afternoon. And Millie DuBois, who directed the animals that should have been dumb but weren't, got many a shrill giggle and laugh from the children and their "grown-ups." But for good old Irish, the fighting kind, and comedy, clean and wholesome, Marie Du-Four and company made the hit of the afternoon. "A Clean Knockout" has just enough plot to form a desirable background for Patsy Kelly's mother, who, with her sincerity and motherliness, found a friendly spot in the heart of each man and woman in the audience. The Two Pearsons put on a rather unusual stunt composed entirely of eccentrique dancing, according to the program's label. But if the Two Pearsons, young chaps dressed exactly alike in faultless street attire, did "eccentrique dancing" then Portlanders like it for they got more than generous applause. And they in turn were generous with their queer stiff legged dancing, which sometimes bordered on a jig and sometimes was grace itself. Steward and Ball, a man and woman who did a dancing and singing act interspersed with comedy, had a vehicle for their jokes and arts that had more continuity than does the average act of this type. Ebner and Reusch, who did a similar turn, were not so fortunate in that respect, but what they lost in continuity they made up with truly good voices which the audience evidently appreciated. Blanche Alfred and her Symphony Girls also put on some high-grade music by vocalists, violin and piano player.

Highway Pictures at Liberty

Beverly B. Dobbs' Columbia river highway pictures are attracting much favorable comment from patrons of the Liberty, where they will be shown in conjunction with Bessie Love's interesting photodrama, "Polly Ann," until Sunday.

Northwest Amusements

Fair at Woodland

Woodland, Wash., Sept. 21. — A bright, sunshiny fall day marked the opening of the Cowlits County Fair association's seventh annual exhibition Wednesday. The showing in farm products exceeds the fondest hopes of the management, as it was not expected a good showing would be made on account of the unprecedented 73 days' drouth that prevailed the past summer. The showing in fruit also exceeds expectations. A. L. Bozorth, president, and E. C. Swart, secretary, of the association, are untiring in their efforts. A. Youngstrom and Robert Robbins are in charge of live-stock; Louis Smith of the O-W. R. & N. has the agricultural and horticultural department; Mrs. Luci Jenkins, county superintendent of schools, assisted by Miss Burke, is in charge of the school department; Mrs. R. E. McNeal and Mrs. John Bogart in the art and fancy department, and Mrs. R. B. Behymer and Mrs. Chris Sigel are attending to the home economic and household display.

Jackson Fair Open

Medford, Or., Sept. 21. — Jackson county fair opened yesterday with a large attendance, the barbecue attracting people from all parts of the valley. It is estimated that 2500 people enjoyed the barbecue feast.

Fruit and mineral exhibits are unusually extensive, and excellent stock exhibits are not yet complete. So far they are only medium in extent and quality. The canned and preserved fruit exhibits are the best ever seen in Southern Oregon, increased quantity being especially noticeable.

Stimulating effect of war preparedness is emphasized in many exhibits. Weather is ideal.

Douglas Prizes Awarded

Roseburg, Or., Sept. 21. — At the Douglas county fair, now in session, the Melrose grange was awarded the first premium for the best collective exhibit, while the South Deer Creek grange was awarded second premium. Professor W. L. Powers of O. A. C. acted as judge of the agricultural department.

Mack Butner of Roseburg and Burton Hutton of Garden Valley and Misses Constance Hendrickson and Faye Geddes of Roseburg were winners in the school industrial department and will go to the state fair to represent this county in that department.

Tygh Valley Fair

The Dalles, Or., Sept. 21.—The Fifth Annual Southern Wasco County fair, which opened Tuesday at Tygh Valley, is drawing many visitors from this city. A school children's industrial exhibit is being held in connection with the fair, under the supervision of County Superintendent Bonney. Folda's band of The Dalles is furnishing the music and northwestern shows are providing entertainment. Races and other attractions are being held.

THEN IT'S TIME When you arrive at the point that an invitation from your best friend stretches your endurance to breaking; when afternoon tea, luncheon or party seems to you like an utter barbarity; when your evening clothes fairly scowl at you from out your clothes-press; when the telephone seems like an implement of the Inquisition; when you almost forget how to be civil to those whom you best love—it is time for the summer vacation.

It is then that, if you are a genuine lover of nature, the great out-of-doors must take you to itself with balm and healing. Wild, growing things must replace those made with hands, the murmur of streams must supplant the hum of traffic, the wooded mountain heights must fill your vision instead of the thirteen-story buildings. A refocusing of the exterior eyes, a readjustment to the far, green spaces and the clear blue of the open sky will readjust your mental vision and, even though your journey to nature may be but brief, you will return to the turnmoil of city life, enabled to go on once more—to again resume your role of burden-bearer. Once more will you be able to feel that even a telephone invitation to dine or sup, to motor or to beach, to shop or to club, is not intended as an affront. Once more will you be able to listen attentively to the other person's worries, once more key yourself in attune with humanity and its sadly-beating heart, doing your small share toward alleviating its anxieties.

And, unless you can do this, I judge that you are fit only for hermitage in some vast wilderness.

ICE CREAM Put 1 pint of milk in double boiler to scald. Mix ½ cup of sugar and pinch of salt, 1 rounding teaspoon of flour together, add to milk, then add 1 beaten egg. Stir often and cook until it begins to thicken or coats the spoon. Strain and cool. When ready to freeze add 1 or use ½ cup whipped cream sweetened a little and flavor to suit taste. Pour a part of it into a baking powder can (put the remainder in a cool place until next day), place the can in a lard pail and surround with finely chopped ice and salt. Cover the pail and as mixture begins to harden scrape from sides and bottom, and beat until smooth. Continue beating until the desired consistency.

EGGS AND TOMATOES Choose large, smooth tomatoes. Cut off top, but do not remove the skin. Scoop out the inside and break into each tomato an egg. Season, stew with crumbs, put a bit of butter on top of each one and bake for 8 or 10 minutes in a very hot oven. The pulp may be stewed and used as a gravy if desired. Delicious and very handy in the summer if a guest drops in unexpectedly.

THE NEWEST PATCHWORK The newest patchwork has a wonderful charm of its own. Quilts, cushions and the like made of it should sell well at one of the many charity bazaars which will soon be the vogue. You take, say, for a child's coverlet, a square of quilted muslin, white for preference, and apply to it a wreath of flowers or fruit that you have cut out in washing silk or linen. The flowers, fruit and leaves must be of bright colors and cut out deftly with a pair of sharp scissors and basted onto the square of muslin before they are neatly sewn round.

A brown basket design filled with little oranges and lemons and grapes is handsome on a green or purple silk cushion. Cherries with their leaves are charming on pale green linen. Serge and other woolen materials for foundation and appliques may be pressed, of course, into the service. Really the quaint and pretty possibilities that lie in the art of the new patchwork are endless. How glad one is that a fresh turn has been given to the dear old handicraft.

TO CLEAN SUEDE BOOTS Dabbing and gentle rubbing with a cloth saturated in benzine ought to remove a grease mark from the suede boot. If this is not successful, methylated spirit might be tried. If a flattened patch is left after the treatment, the pile may be raised again by very gentle rubbing with sandpaper.

Let Cuticura Care for Baby's Skin

It's really wonderful how quickly a hot bath with Cuticura Soap followed by a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment relieves skin irritations which keep baby wakeful and restless, permits sleep for infant and rest for mother, and points to speedy healment in most cases when it seems nothing would do any good. This is only one of the many things Cuticura does for the skin when used for every-day toilet purposes, the Soap to cleanse the pores, the Ointment to soothe the first signs of irritation, redness and roughness. It will be hard to find anything superior to these fragrant, super-creamy emollients.
