

COLLECTOR MILLER SAYS TAX OPERATES SAME AS IN PAST

Only Change in Income Tax Is in Amount Reached; Reports to Be Made Later.

CIGAR MEN MUST PAY

Single Men Must Pay on Incomes Above $1000—Exemption for Married Men up to $2000.

The income tax law in the revenue act passed last Wednesday will operate identically as in the past, save the change in income exemption.

In a statement issued Saturday afternoon, Milton A. Miller, collector of internal revenue, explains the situation, calling attention to the fact that a press dispatch from Washington, published in Portland Saturday morning, was misleading, giving the impression that the income tax provisions were now in effect and that persons affected should make returns immediately.

Single Men Pay Above $1000 The changes in the income exemptions are understood to be from $2000 to $1000 in the case of the unmarried man and from $4000 to $2000 in the case of the married man.

It is also the understanding that the new act provides for the same rate as in the old law, which was 2 per cent, in the cases of the $1000 and $2000 exemptions, the tax to be figured on the excess of these amounts.

Stamp Tax Not Yet Ready "Corporations will unquestionably make their returns for income tax as heretofore, either after the close of the calendar year or of their fiscal year, if one has been established.

"I wish to assure the newspapers of Portland and of the state in general that I cordially appreciate their interest in this tax measure, as without this means many taxpayers who are affected by its provisions would not be promptly advised.

LIEUTENANT FORSTER KILLED WHEN MOTOR OVERTURNS IN RIVER

Young Officer Well Known Here Crushed Beneath Car on Long Island.

HIS COMPANION UNHURT

Was Driving at Night When Car Left Road and Crashed Through a Fence into the Water.

New York, Oct. 6.—Lieutenant Frederick Forster of the national army camp at Camp Upton was killed last night when an automobile in which he and Lieutenant Robert Morgan were returning to the camp after a visit to Islip, Long Island, where Morgan's home is, plunged into Great river. Forster was appointed to the army from Massachusetts.

The car was going east along the south country road bound for Patchogue, at which point it would have turned off to the camp. At the head of Great river there is a rather sharp turn on a hillside and the water comes up close to the side of the road, which is protected only by a fence. In making the curve something apparently went wrong and the car left the road, crashed through the fence and turned over. Morgan was thrown clear and escaped injury beyond a shaking-up. Forster was caught under the car and killed. There was no apparent injury and it was supposed at first he was suffering from immersion, but subsequent examination showed he had not been drowned.

A telegram received Saturday by Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett told of the accidental death of Lieutenant Forster but gave no details. Mr. Forster, who was a member of a family socially prominent in New York, had spent four years here as assistant to Robert H. Strong, manager of the Corbett estate. He was a member of the University and Waverly clubs, and was popular with a wide circle of friends. He was a classmate of State Representative Hamilton F. Corbett at Harvard and after his graduation came west with Mr. Corbett and made his home in Portland until 18 months ago, when he returned to New York and became associated with W. R. Grace & Co. He was commissioned in the national army at the Plattsburg training camp last summer. Mr. Forster leaves a mother and several sisters in the east and two brothers who are in France, one in the army and one in the American ambulance field service.

EARLY SETTLER OF OREGON PASSES ON

George Ackles

Among the early settlers who came to Oregon before many of our cities and towns started along the route of progress was George Ackles, who died in his home in this city September 21. His body was sent to La Grande, where it was placed at rest on the old family homestead.

George Ackles was born in Clairmont county, Ohio, May 30, 1832, and crossed the plains in the early summer of 1855. He settled on a farm in Union county, where he was very successful in that pursuit. He was also in the banking business in La Grande, but when the bank broke up, due to the theft of its capital by the cashier, Mr. Ackles' health failed and he and his family came to Portland in 1909. He had been a reader of The Journal for the past 15 years, and in the latter years of his life he was never happier than when he received the evening copy of The Journal and retired to his room to read.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maggie L. Ackles, one daughter, Mrs. Viva A. Little of Toppish, Wash., and one son, Nevi L. Ackles, who resides in this city at 1021 East Twenty-fourth street. The aged pioneer also leaves four grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

INSTITUTE ORGANIZED TO TEACH RED CROSS CIVILIAN RELIEF WORK

Constantly Growing Need Is Felt for Workers to Care for Families of Soldiers.

A home service institute, the purpose of which will be to train young men and women for service in the civilian relief branch of the Red Cross, and which is to be affiliated with Reed college, will be opened in Portland on October 22.

This announcement was made by Chairman Victor Johnson of the civilian relief committee, who stated that preliminary arrangements for the institute were already complete and that the authorization from Washington to proceed, received Saturday, will enable those in charge to begin assembling the first home service class at once.

The institute will be affiliated with Reed college, said Mr. Johnson, "and the work will be under the direction of Professor T. H. Douglas of the Reed college staff. The organization of these institutes by the American Red Cross is to meet the constantly growing demand for trained workers needed for investigation and advisory help in the civilian relief branch of the service, which is concerned with helping families of the men serving in the army and navy, aiding them to solve the many problems confronting them, and assisting them in meeting the exigencies of war times. The workers will serve in an advisory capacity to the families assigned them, straightening out business tangles and helping in every way possible.

The cost of the course will be a $3 registration fee. All those taking the course must pledge themselves to give half their time for this work for 12 months, or for the duration of the war, in the civilian relief branch of the service. The course must be completed by the end of the war. Applications must be made to Professor T. H. Douglas, at Red Cross headquarters, 204 Corbett building, between 11 and 12 each morning for one week, beginning Monday.

War Risk Rates Go Down to 5 Per Cent

Washington, Oct. 6.—(U. P.)—The havoc wrought by Germany's ruthless U-warfare is waning.

This was officially confirmed tonight when the bureau of war risk insurance of the treasury department reduced its rates on all American steamers and cargoes traversing the war zones from 6 1/2 to 5 per cent. The insurance rates of the government bureau is a sure index of the effectiveness of the submarine warfare. When the United States entered the war six months ago, the rate was 3 per cent. By May 1, it was 5 and on July 21 it was 6 1/2—the record figure.
