City to Give Party For the Soldier Boys

By Nona Lawler

CHRISTMAS day looms first and fore-most on the social calendar for this week. Usually devoted exclusively to the home and family gatherings, this year there will be in addition, a huge city party, a city-wide effort to em-brace in the day's celebration all of the several thousand soldiers who will be in the city on leave from Camp Lewis, Fort Stevens and Vancouver Barracks. Mayor Baker is the presiding genius over the function and assisting him will be a long list of prominent society and college women headed by Mrs. Alice Benson Beach, all of whom will help to make the day merry for the visitors. The Auditorium has been chosen as the only place large enough to stage the huge affair and hundreds of Portland homes will relinquish their daughters from the family circle for the afternoon or evening, so that they may help greet the city's many guests and furnish dancing partners for them. There will be a continuous round of merriment from 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon until 1 o'clock in the morning. with 12 hours' continuous dancing. Four bands have been engaged and each will play three hours. The vaudeville houses have promised to lend their most entertaining features for program numbers to be interspersed between dances, and all in all a gala day is scheduled.

The Honor Guard girls will assist on the floor committee and an especial card of invitation is extended to all women of the war auxiliary organizations in the city to attend sometime during the 12 hours of entertainment planned. The 25 officers of the aviation corps will assist the Honor Guard girls on the floor committee. All the women included in these committees and war auxiliaries are invited either to act as hostesses or if they wish to dance to communicate with Mrs. Beach on their must provide herself with a little Ameritended to their wives, sisters and sweethearts to accompany them.

MISS WINNIFRED HUBER and Holt Welson Cookingham were married Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock with a simple home ceremony at the resi-dence of the bride's father, Oskar F. Huber, in North Twenty-first street. Dr. A. A. Morrison read the ceremony and Miss Elizabeth Huber and Prescott Cookingham, sister and brother of the bride and bridegroom, were their only attendants. The wedding was charming in its absolute simplicity. The bride came in on the arm of her father, at the appointed hour, 4 o'clock. She was the appointed hour, 4 o'clock. a picture of girlish beauty in her wedding robe of white satin unadorned except for a few sprays of orange blossoms and tulle in the sleeves and about the bodice. The dress was made in full skirted drapes in short round length. Her veil of tulle was deeply bordered with point applique lace and was fashioned with a coronet of the lace banding her hair and stayed with sprays of orange blossoms and bows of silver ribbon. The veil was then draped with the bon. The veil was then draped with the corners, the lace falling in deep points. Her bouquet was of orchids, sweet peas and bouvardis. Miss Elizabeth Huber was most charmingly gowned in white chiffon and carried a shower bouquet of the deep pink Ophelia rosebuds. The drawing room, where the ceremony was read, was arranged in a floral bower of white chrysanthemums and greenery, an improvised altar being effected in a window recess before which the couple plighted their vows. The ceremony was witnessed by the relatives and a very few of the bride's most intimate friends. A buffet supper was served after the ceremony and the dining room was prettily decorated with Christmas suggestions of scarlet poinsettia and holly.

A feature of the ceremony was the white satin kneeling cushions which have associations dear to the couple. They were made by Mrs. B. G. Whitehouse, grandmother of Mr. Cookingham, for the marriage of her daughter and Edward Cookingham. Later, Mrs. Cookingham lent them to Miss Emma Sherlock for her marriage to Oskar E. Huber.
