

PORTLAND GAME AT SEATTLE NOT WORLD'S RECORD

Victoria and New Westminster Played 37 Minutes Overtime in Season of 1912.

ROSEBUDS ARE ALL CUT UP

Harris and Tobin Have Stitches in Domes and Johnsons Kicked by Charley Horse.

Portland's ice hockey team has yet to engage in a world's record overtime contest, according to Pete Muldoon, the Rosebuds' manager.

The Portland-Seattle game was meritorious from a long standpoint, and it lacked but three seconds of going four periods of 20 minutes each, a mark which will doubtless stand for the year.

The real world's record for overtime is claimed by the Victoria and New Westminster teams. The game was played in 1912, the second year of hockey on the coast, and the two teams battled for 37 minutes overtime, beating the record at Seattle by over 17 minutes.

Muldoon says that with any kind of luck, Portland would have won the game in the last half minute of the regular period. Charley Tobin skated down the ice with the puck, "duked" Goalie Fowler and shot the ball at the other side of the net.

Muldoon says all of his fine plans went awry. First he got his men away from here Monday night, figuring on getting into Seattle by 7:30 a. m.

They got in at 12:30. There was no dinner on the train and when they reached Seattle they were suddenly confronted with the fact that it was "meatless Tuesday."

All the Buds had to eat was eggs. The general rule is for hockey players to eat a big steak along about 5 o'clock to give them the greatest amount of strength possible for the grueling contest.

They ate eggs until they can't look a hen in the face, they say. Hereafter, Pete says he will purchase steaks on Monday and, if necessary, feed it raw to the players on Tuesday so that they can be strong for the game.

Pete says the Seattle team is composed of fast players and that the East-ern boys who were on the club last year are not missed. Riley has replaced Jack Foyston as rover and the youngster is playing as good a game as Foyston did last year.

He is a fast skater and has been speeding up the general play of the club. Muldoon will

W. McCredie Has Jinx Down Auto Trip Starts a Shebang

Walter Henery McCredie, new manager of the Salt Lake club, is lucky to be back in Portland with his life, let alone a new suit of dazzling blue tint and the latest in scarfs.

This trip away from Portland has been rather a Jonah for Walt. First, along with the judge, he was kicked out of the Pacific Coast league, and then began a succession of events that finally landed him safe of body and reasonably sound of mind in Portland. He will leave shortly for Salt Lake and believes that he has given the jinx the slip.

It all started in Los Angeles, J. C. Furness, who runs the Continental hotels in San Francisco and Los Angeles, at which the Portland ball club stopped, invited Mack to make an auto trip with him from Los Angeles to San Francisco. Sure Mack would—until he saw two of the fellows who were to make up the party of four.

Slipping Lightly Away Hunting up Furness, McCredie, who doesn't admit that he is superstitious, said: "Now listen—here, Furn, I'm not a bit strong on this superstition bunk, but did you notice those two fellows you invited to go along are cross-eyed? I don't want to break up the party, but I think you better get somebody else. I don't mind being out with one cock-eyed guy, but when you got a pair of them with lamps looking for trouble, then you better count me out."

Furness, who is the most suspicious fellow in San Francisco, when the jinx goes a-roamin', trembled slightly and remarked: "Yankee Manager in Conference New York, Jan. 3.—(I. N. S.)—Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, was expected to arrive here today to confer with President Jacob Ruppert regarding his recent dickerings for Derrill Pratt, of the St. Louis Browns. Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 3.—(U. P.)—Camp Lewis' Ninety-first footballers left here last night for home. They call it that now, and they're gloomy because they are not bringing home the bacon. But as Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion, and the Ninety-first's strongest booster at the game, remarked, "somebody had to lose." However, the boys all would like another crack at the Marines. "Not as an allib, they say, but as a fact, the heat played havoc with their 'pep' and they figured for more speed in cooler weather. All the cripples got away with the team. The team will not disband.

Jones Won $1000 on Papers

Chicago, Jan. 3.—(I. N. S.)—Tom Jones, manager of Bryan Downey, is always willing to risk a big bet on his boy. Tom's gambling instinct enriched him $1000. Shortly after the Downey-Johnny Griffiths match ended in Akron, Ohio, New Year's afternoon Tom walked into Old Man Griff's saloon. There was much discussion as to the winner. Some one suggested to Tom that his boy got an awful licking. Tom was hot under the collar, for while there were fully 3000 people in the hall at $1, $2 and $3, the promoters paid off only $2400. "Bet you $1000 every paper in town (meaning Akron) gave the fight to Downey," came from Jones. The bet was made. An examination of the decisions of the Akron papers showed the Times, Press and Beacon-Journal gave the decision to Downey. Since there were no other papers, Jones cashed. "When the home papers rule against a home boy, it must be pretty good evidence as to who won," said Tom when he pocketed the $2000.
