

HEATLESS MONDAYS TO BE ABOLISHED

Fuel Administrator Says That With Aid of Weather Its Object Is Accomplished.

Washington, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Fuel Administrator Garfield today prepared an order abolishing the six remaining heatless Mondays. Because today, as Lincoln's birthday, is generally observed as a holiday in many states, he will defer making the formal announcement until late tonight or Wednesday. Dr. Garfield feels that the purpose of the workless Mondays, aided by the change to favorable weather conditions, already has been accomplished. The fuel administrator confers today with Railways Director McAdoo, urging the continuance of the embargo now in effect. It is expected that Monday McAdoo will consent to this course, but that the embargo will be lifted before the end of the month. Reports received today at the offices of the fuel and railway administrations are more encouraging than at any time during the past month. With the absence of storm conditions for the first time, movements and distribution of coal are reported almost normal and there has been a marked improvement in the placing of empty cars at the mines.

Curb on Non-War Finances Proposed

Secretary McAdoo Tells Senators Bill Is Not Intended to Prevent Use of Capital, but to Push War Industries. Washington, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—America must conserve its financial resources for war work, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo Monday told the senate finance committee, explaining the proposed war finance corporation bill. "It is our duty to the nation to restrict the use of capital to war uses," Secretary McAdoo said. "The power of license which is given in the bill over the issue of securities is not intended to be arbitrary power. It is not to prevent the use of capital, but rather to give preference in the use of capital to war industries. "The intent is to put a restraining influence upon unnecessary expenditures of capital by private interests." He declared there was no intention of restricting the issue of securities by municipalities and states.
