HUNS SHOW GREAT CAUTION IN DRIVE

Hindenburg Shies at Cornering Slav and Perhaps Changing Tide of War.

By J. W. T. Mason

New York, Feb. 22.-(U. P.)-Von Hindenburg continues to show great caution in his Russian advance and is apparently determined to avoid forcing the Russian armies to fight a major campaign.

The possibilities that center about any large amount of bloodshed are capable of explaining the enormous disparity between the German announcements of Russian guns and men captured. Less than 10,000 Russians have been made prisoners of war since the German movement began, while the guns captured number nearly 1400.

This disproportion is unprecedented in During the recent drive against the Italians, the Teutons captured only about double the guns they have seized in Russia, while the number of Italian prisoners exceeded 200,000. Uncertainty Must Continue

The Russians cannot retreat more precipitately than did the Italians, while the non-mountainous nature of the Russian fighting area makes it possible for the Germans to move forward faster, if they want to, than they did in Italy.

The reason for the essential difference between the Russian and Italian campaigns is undoubtedly Von Hindenberg's fear of driving the Russians into a corner, where they might turn and change the whole complexion of the war. This uncertainty on the part of the militarists must continue, whether Petrograd is captured or not, or even if a paper peace is signed with not yet recovered their morale. But morale is a mental state that may be gained instantly through a number of Weak nerves rob men and women of all the joy of life and quickly reduce the strong and robust to a condition which is pittable in the extreme. This condition is brought about slowly and stealthily in the majority of cases, and the poor sufferer fails to realize what is wrong until faulty memory, in-decision, lack of desire for work or recreation, insemnia or some other was recreation, insomnia or some other unrecreation, insomnia or some other unmistakable symptom indicates weak nerves. It is then that many people make the big mistake of resorting to the use of so-called nerve tonics, alcoholic stimulants or drugs. Nothing could be more harmful or more dangerous. The nerves are weak and exhausted; they need food and nourishment—not drugs that will lash them into temporary activity. Feed your nerves and they will become strong again and your health will improve in consequence. That is the advice of present day physicians and specialists, and the nerve food they recommend is just one 5-gr. tablet of pure bitrophosphate taken during or immediately after every meal. Simple advice, but its excellence has been proved over and over again, and, as a package containing sufficient bitro-phosphate. over again, and, as a package containing sufficient bitro-phosphate tablets for two weeks' treatment can be obtained from any druggist at reasonable cost, the remedy is within the reach of every sufferer from weak nerves. Moreover, the whole risk of the trial is assumed by the manufacturers, for every package of bitro-phosphate tablets is accompanied by a binding guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

Bishop Prendergast In Critical Condition

Philadelphia, Feb. 22.-(U. P.)-Archbishop Prendergast, who has been ill two months at the arch-Episcopal residence here, was reported to be in a very serious condition today. Alarming heart symptoms developed last night. The aged prelate is believed to have little chance for recovery.

Physicians also declare that the epidemic is not the result of food infection, as it is too general in all parts of the city.

That the illness is caused by an intestinal germ infection is the belief of a majority of the physicians. Dr. George Parker, city physician, declared today that the illness is not fatal and its most serious effects will pass away within 48 hours.

Dr. Parker said 500 new cases of the malady had been reported, bringing the total to more than 3000.
