

HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

MRS. CLARE WALTER WOODWARD (CORNELIA STANLEY) AND BUSHNELL

Miss Stanley Is Wedded to Lt. Woodward

By Nona Lawler
 MISS CORNELIA STANLEY became the bride of Lieutenant Clare Wallace Woodward, 14th Infantry U. S. A., at a beautifully appointed home wedding last evening which took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. O'Brien in North Twentieth street, the ceremony being performed at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of the friends of this popular Portland girl and the brother officers of the bridegroom who came down from Camp Lewis and Spokane for the event. Dr. A. Morrison officiated and the bride was attended by Miss Ruth Shull maid of honor and Lieutenant William Burgard was best man. Little Patricia McKenna, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coe A. McKenna was a dainty figure as flower girl.

Spring blossoms and palms transformed the house into a garden of flowers, the Japanese plum and apple blossoms being used in profusion. An orchestra, ensconced in the hallway behind a screen of flowers furnished the music and eight girls friends of the bride led the bridal procession carrying ropes of amilax tied with tulle. They were Miss Rhoda Rumelin, Miss Margaret Ayer, Miss Alberta Blair, Miss Louise Poulson, Miss Laura Blossom, Miss Isabella Clark, Mrs. Coe A. McKenna and Mrs. Ralph Hurlburt. Miss Ruth Shull was bridesmaid, and she was charmingly gowned in a simple frock of a delicate shade of salmon pink satin made with draped skirt and untrimmed except for touches of silver at the neck and in the sleeves. She carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses in the same tones as her gown. Little Patsy McKenna, flower girl, preceded the bride, and she made an adorable picture in her white organdie ruffled frock with big pink bows on the sash, and she carried a basket filled with spring flowers, forget-me-not, mignonette and sweet peas.

The bride came in on the arm of her father, Frederick S. Stanley, and she was a picture of loveliness in her wedding robe of white satin and brocade cloth of silver. The gown was made with the full draped satin skirt and bodice, and train of the silver cloth. The lines were quite unusual, the bodice being cut low in front and made with the Elizabethan high neck in back, from which the long court train of the brocade silver cloth was hung. Her veil was most becoming with a coronet of rare old rose point, circling her head and the tulle bordered with the same lace, inserts of silver ribbon formed panels of the tulle which fall to the hem of her train. She carried a shower bouquet of the white orchids and sweet peas.

The ceremony was read in the living room where an improvised altar of the blossoms made a lovely setting. Several hundred guests were present for the ceremony and reception which followed, and the latter part of the evening dancing was enjoyed. Receiving with the bridal party were Frederick S. Stanley and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. O'Brien, Mrs. O'Brien was handsomely gowned in a black spangled robe fashioned over silver cloth. Punch was served on the veranda, which was adorned with flowers and greenery, and a buffet supper was served in the dining room. Here the table was centered with bridesmaid roses. Mrs. John Shull, Mrs. W. B. Roberson, Mrs. Guy Standifer and Mrs. Aaron Whitmer presided at the table. Lieutenant and Mrs. Woodward will make their home at Spokane after their money at the residence of the bride with only the immediate family present. The tea was most informal, about 25 of Miss Harmon's most intimate friends being bidden. Captain and Mrs. D. C. Oldenberg (Maisie MacMaster) have returned from their trip in California, passing through here Saturday on their way back to Camp Lewis. Captain Oldenberg's orders for a transfer have been revoked and he will remain for the present at Camp Lewis. Mrs. Oldenberg will live at Dupont, where her sister, Mrs. Ireland, is staying. For Miss Shanna Cumming and her fiancé, Lawrence R. Wheeler, a number of informal dinner parties have been given during the last week. Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jewett gave a dinner of 12 covers in their honor. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Carlton Swift gave a luncheon in honor of the bride to be. Messages of sympathy are finding their way to Mrs. F. O. Downing who underwent an operation at St. Vincent's hospital Wednesday morning. The recital of Harold Parish Williams at the Masonic Temple Thursday evening, March 21, will call forth many society folk. This young singer has won a host of warm friends in his short residence in Portland and will be heard in his first large public recital here with much interest.

The annual Easter Monday Tea at Mann home is being arranged this year under the auspices of the women of Trinity Episcopal guild. Each year some church or other organization assumes the office of noisier for this event. For many years Easter Monday has been held sacred to the Mann home for their annual tea and it stands a fixture in the social calendar. A splendid musical program is always an important feature of these teas and the women of the guild will later announce the numbers arranged. All those interested in the home invited to attend.

General and Mrs. James N. Allison, U. S. A., retired, arrived Thursday evening from their home in New York and are guests of Mrs. Allison's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Watson. They probably will pass the summer here, where they will be welcomed by hosts of old-time friends. Mrs. Allison is the daughter of Mrs. J. W. Whalley and a sister of Mrs. Watson. Mrs. Bert C. Ball, Mrs. William T. Muir and Mrs. H. S. Huson.
