Aberdeen Wants to Join Pacific Coast International League, Farr Is Coming for Interview With Nick Williams and McCredie Puts O. K. on the Judg's Recruit Ball Players.

By R. A. Cronin

WITH Aberdeen seeking a franchise in the Pacific Coast International league; with F. C. Farr of Spokane scurrying about to keep his manager, Nick Williams, from joining the Portland Shipyards league, and with Walter McCredie giving a glowing report on a flock of youngsters owned by Portland who are training in the Salt Lake camp, things have begun to take on a rosier hue in baseball circles.

Aberdeen has sent out reports that the lumbering town can get into the northern league on the most equitable terms and, in view of the fact that some of the games may be played at Camp Lewis, the citizenry is inclined to view the proposition with much favor. When Aberdeen blew up some years ago, it never paid the ball players, and that is still hanging over the head of that town. Lefthanded President Blewett of the Pacific Coast International league gave Aberdeen notice some time ago that this amount, something like $1500, would have to be paid before the Black Cats could get back into the good graces of the league. Now, however, it is believed that Blewett and the northern magnates have agreed to let Aberdeen come in without cost in order to provide a sixth city.

Members of the Portland Shipyards league are hailing the Aberdeen proposition with high glee, as it would probably remove Vancouver, Wash., from consideration. If Vancouver were admitted into the league it would make harder the problems of the shipbuilders inasmuch as they could not use the Vaughn street grounds of the professionals when the Portland club is away from home. Therefore the shipyarders are all pulling for Aberdeen.

Farr May Lose Right Hand

President Farr of the Spokane club evidently sees the handwriting on the wall in making a trip to Portland to see Nick Williams. Williams was on his way to Spokane to see Farr, but the shipyard people got hold of him, pulled his ear down and poured a lot of golden talk into it.

The St. Helens club wanted to put a club into the league but had nobody to handle it. The citizens and the McCormick shipyard at St. Helens made Nick such a flattering offer that, as Nick himself said, he didn't see the Portland way out. Nick has been surveying the situation at St. Helens and admits that it looks awfully good. Then, too, the blond boss of the Indians was badly up on the subject and didn't know whether Spokane would be in the northern circuit after the schedule meeting of next Wednesday night. There has been some talk of cutting to four clubs and indications point to that many finally making up the league.

Owens Farm Near St. H.

Also, there is this to consider in the case of Williams. In the heyday of his baseball he bought some land in Oregon and that land, be it known, is within shouting distance of St. Helens. Nick figures that if he lands a profitable job with the shipyard people, makes himself valuable and becomes a permanent adjunct to the building business, he can build a home and cultivate his acres there. Heretofore Nick has been too busy for the back to the farm life, but admits he is coming to it.

McCredie Boasts Local Boys

Walter McCredie sent his concise estimation of some of the youngsters who are coming to Portland to Judge McCredie, and it is quite flattering.

Walter says Pitcher Morton is good enough for the Coast league. He has lots of speed and bids fair to be the iron man of the league. Walter says he has changed his opinion of infielder Sands, who worked with the Beavers a while last fall and did not impress McCredie so favorably. Now, however, Mac says he bids fair to be a valuable man to the Portland club. He has been playing regularly with the Yanning team and has crowded out opposition.

Cox Is Versatile Player

Dick Cox, the Pasadena youngster who was signed to a first base contract and given a trial by Salt Lake, is said to be a bearcat anywhere you put him. McCredie has been using him as a catcher and says him a great compliment. Mac says he surely can hit the ball and may make a regular out of him, as he is the best boy he has seen for some time.

Mac says the boys he thinks would make good with a vengeance in the Northwestern league, and who may break into the Salt Lake regulars are outfielders Sullivan from the New York State league; Smith, a Cos.; Turner, a first baseman; Conkwerin, a pitcher; and Arkenburg, pitchers, and Pope, an infielder from the New York

Old Mark Set in 1913 by Joe Driscoll Goes and He Nears Outdoor Mark.

New York, March 21.—(U. P.)—Joe Ray, distance runner, star of the Illinois Athletic club, today is looking for new fields on which to try his world-beating legs. He now possesses the indoor record for the three-quarters of a mile, having reduced the mark by 2-5 seconds.

Ray sped around the track at Madison Square Garden in 2:04.4-5. The old record was 2:07, made in 1913 at Buffalo by Joe Driscoll. Dave Hickman is being tried at third base.

The latter two are on their way from Cuba but Manager Hendricks is in doubt as to when Smith will report. The Cards wrapped the Kelly Field aviators to the tune of 7 to 3 yesterday afternoon.

Chicago, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Evidence is being taken here today in a suit to recover $2000 brought against Charles Webb Murphy, former owner of the Cardinals, by William E. Grayson, owner of the Louisville team. Grayson claims the amount is due to settle the contract which the Cubs obtained from Larry Cheney, pitcher, and E. Lennox, in 1911.

Miami, Fla., March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Another of those thrilling exhibition games was on the list for the Braves this afternoon with Big Chief Red Smith's Braves and Sachem John Henry's Seminoles again fighting it out. Yesterday the regulars won 6 to 2.

Waxahatchie, Texas, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Manager Jennings today devoted his personal attention to the coaching of First Baseman Leary, secured from St. Paul, to fill the vacancy left by George Burns. Hughes seemed pleased with results so far. The Yanningans and regulars played a five inning game.

New Orleans, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—The latest arrival at the Cleveland hotel camp is Bob Groom, former Federal leaguer, who today is nursing a sore arm from working too hard yesterday, his first day out. The Yanningans beat the regulars, 7 to 3, in eight innings yesterday.

Pasadena, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Pete Kilduff, second baseman of the Cubs, today is considering exchanging his baseball uniform for the kind worn by Uncle Sam's sailors. He has not reached a definite decision. The Cubs' first practice game will be against the Submarine Base team at San Pedro tomorrow.

of defeat. But his lion heart and determination carried him on until he dropped from sheer exhaustion. For the first time in his life he heard a referee count the fatal 10 over his own private form.

Speaking after the fight Sullivan declared he knew everything that was going on and made every effort to get up. His body responded to his will, but, he said, his legs were practically paralyzed.

As the last count rang out in the tent air that surrounded a new heavyweight champion, Jim Corbett returned from his prostrate foe and received a mighty ovation, but when a second late from the mighty form of John L. Sullivan finally came to a standing posture and reeled to the ropes, the crowd hushed at the rising of his hand.

Crowd Cheers Corbett

"Gentlemen," shouted the gruff voice of the old gladiator. "I'm glad an American beat me. He's a better man than I am."

and with choking throats and throbbing hearts, a loyal boxing crowd roared a cheer that shamed the salvo which had acclaimed Corbett as the new champion.

way from the ring then, day John L. Sullivan wept his grief among his friends. The end finally had come to his invincibility and he realized it. He also realized that was liquor that was to blame—not the fact that he had met his master. He drank a bottle of beer while he dressed in his hotel room, and, gasping at the liquid, he told friends:

"If I had just stuck to that all my life instead of drinking whiskey I wouldn't be here today, grieving over a lost title. I'd still be the champion."

John L. Broken Hearted

Back to New York he went after his bout. A completely broken hearted man. His sister met him at his hotel in New York, and with their arms around each other, they wept tears from their own eyes as they witnessed the pathetic meeting between brother and sister.

San Diego, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—It was Los Angeles-San Diego at the Dreamland Athletic club last night and all the decisions rendered were unpopular with the fans except the finals between Young Fritz of the Angel City and Eddie Shannon, a local boy, who fought four fast rounds to a draw.

Al Grunan of Coronado won from Gene Watson of Los Angeles in the semi-windup.

The preliminaries were as follows: Kid Mendie and Young Gollida drew; Soldier Jack Harvey bested Johnnie Cordova, and Ernie Gozmann beat kid Blackie.

San Francisco, March 21.—(U. P.)—K. O. Krivosky turned his eyes northward today following receipt of an offer of a bout with Mick King at Seattle next week. He says he thinks he'll go because he sees no chance of getting into a scrap around here.

Seattle, March 21.—Chat Neff has been matched to box George Ingie, who recently annexed the coast lightweight from Muff Bronson, to box here next Tuesday night. Marty Farrell, the New York middleweight, will meet Al Nelson of San Francisco. If Farrell disposes of Nelson he will get a chance to box Mick King, the coast champion.

Hold Soldier-Baseballer Did He Hold Up Crap Game

New York, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Sergeant Francis Cole of Cleveland is attached to an armored motor battery at Camp Johnson, Jacksonville, Fla., was brought to New York under arrest today on a charge of robbery. Sergeant Cole, an enthusiast for baseball is responsible for his plight.

Twelve months ago the players in a "crap" game were held up by Steve and robbed of $12,000 in cash and jewelry. The victims told the police they recognized Cole as one of the robbers.

Last June Cole enlisted in a motor truck division in Cleveland. At one time he had been given a tryout as a shortstop on the Chicago Americans, but his arm gave out. After his enlistment, Cole organized a baseball team and last Sunday his club played in a game at Jacksonville at which $10,000 was taken in and turned over to the Red Cross.

Recently Cole wrote to Clarence Rowland, manager of the Chicago Americans, informing him that he intended taking an examination for a lieutenancy next month. This paragraph got into the papers and led to his arrest.

LIFE AND BATTLES OF JOHN L. SULLIVAN

By H. C. Hamilton (Copyright, 1918, by the United Press)

CHAPTER XXVI

It required 21 rounds for Corbett to whip Sullivan. And, during those 21 rounds there was not a time when Sullivan was able to land a solid blow on his youthful, speedy opponent. As for Corbett, he contented himself with speeding about the ring, ducking inside occasionally to rip home a long left that finally closed Sullivan's eyes and cut his face to ribbons. Sullivan, fat and slow, could neither catch Corbett to hit him, nor could he protect himself from the blows that, deadly in precision, ripped home one after the other.

Saw End Coming

Sullivan believed the end was coming. With tears in his eyes, he told his seconds he couldn't hit the tall, rangy fellow from the west. He knew that his ways of living had brought him to the threshold

WILLARD AND FULTON HAVE NO MORE WORRY AFTER SIGNING PAPERS

Promoters Must Secure Site for Holding Heavyweight Battle and Bliss, Okla., May Get It; Willard to Train at Lawrence Home, While Fulton Will Hop Around.

CHICAGO, March 21.—(I. N. S.)—Batteries of photographers are being massed today for action when Jess Willard and Fred Fulton meet here next Tuesday to "sign the papers" that will bind them to battle for the heavyweight championship of the world. Signing of the papers, it was declared today, is the only little detail yet to be arranged.

Of course, the place of holding the fight and the referee, not to mention a few other details, are not settled as yet, but these are matters the promoters and managers will have to worry about. Willard and Fulton will have nothing on their minds after they have inked the contracts, but their training.

Willard plans to go into training at once and will do most of his preparation at his new home in Lawrence, Kan. Fulton will do some of his training here, some in Milwaukee and finish his work at some place near the scene of the battle.

Open to Highest Bidder

Just where the fight will be held is a matter of time, for it is now open to the highest bidder, but the promoter who gets it will have to go higher than $125,000. This bid was made today by I. H. Herk, local theatrical man and sportsman, who promoted the Gotch-Hackenschmidt and other big wrestling contests here. Herk has purchased a half interest in Mike Collins' Minneapolis club and plans to stage a big open air arena there. When informed his bid had been declined, he intimated he would raise it, possibly to $150,000.

"I can't get more than $125,000 for this match I'll take it on my ranch in Oklahoma and put it on there. I feel I can get the governor to allow us to stage it there. We have 150 men of wealth in that section, men who would pay $1000 a seat for the fight," said Miller. "I'm for holding the match at Bliss, Okla., Miller's ranch," said Collins, "but if we can't stage it there, I'd like to see Minneapolis get it. It's a great fight town and would draw a tremendous house."

Golfers Have Laugh on Fan S. F. "Booze Cage" Is Taxed

The San Francisco golfers, it is said, are laughing gleefully at the San Francisco baseball fans, and thereby hangs a thirist.

When Uncle Sam barred foreign liquor from these shores the golfer was in a blue funk. He couldn't have his favorite swig of Haig & Haig, or Mountain Dew at the end of 15 holes, and he was in a blue funk.

Now it appears that the "booze cage," at the San Francisco ball park is doomed by this same particular uncle.

The "booze cage" at the San Francisco ball park was one of the few if not the only remaining thirist emporium in the country. A 25 cent ticket permitted the camel necked one to glide into the cage, which is right behind the umpire on the ground floor, and guaranteed him three glasses of beer. The booze-hounds flocked to it in large and profitable numbers.

Now, it seems, a hiring of Uncle Sam charged with collecting war revenue, looked into the big book and came to the conclusion that the "booze cage" should come under the classification of cabaret, thus demanding an additional three cents revenue per inhabitant. The ball park people say they can't make any profit on the beer and are threatening to close down the cage. It's a sad world, mates, when you can't fill your tummy and roast the umpire. And it's sadder when they look on baseball as cabaret stuff, though at times they may be right, at that.
