NON-PARTISANS CALLED BOLSHIEVIK OF UNITED STATES

Mark T. McKee, Secretary of National Council of Defense, Says Leaders Are Disloyal.

INVESTIGATE LEAGUE'S WORK

Speaker From Detroit Addresses Joint Meeting of Realty Board and City Club; Growth Rapid.

Charging that the fight against the Non-Partisan League is a fight to prevent the shattering of national unity, and is being waged against the forces of disloyalty, discontent and communism, Mark T. McKee of Detroit, secretary of the National Council of the Federation of the United States, addressed a joint meeting of the Realty Board and the City club at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Mr. McKee was sent three years ago to investigate the workings of the Non-Partisan Political League, then being organized in South Dakota, and to determine its purposes. Since that time he has followed the development of the movement into a nation-wide organization, which, according to his charge, is sinister in its meaning and promise.

Mr. McKee, however, did not charge that the mass of the rank and file of the Non-Partisan League was disloyal, but he contended that the "Big Five" who controlled its operations, were, by their utterances, their propaganda and their efforts to array "class against class, to convince the farmers that they are not getting a square deal, in appealing to the spirit of discontent and disloyalty."

Discontent Is Capitalized In opening his address Mr. McKee told of the sudden growth of the league from a small beginning until it is now a majority of the houses in its states which are being augmented at the rate of 4000 to 5000 per week.

"Five men in South Dakota," Mr. McKee said, "are the real brains of the league, conceived the idea of capitalizing the unrest of the people there, and of taking over the political control of the state."

The speaker related the secret manner in which the farmers were banded together and charged that the candidates for office who were supported by the league were hand-picked in secret by the "Big Five" of the league.

Samuel Hill, who has just returned from a conference at Washington of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Hill represented the Chamber of Commerce and Commercial club.

MUNICIPAL COURT IS OF OPINION RECEIPTS MUST BE TENDERED

Judge Rossman, However, Withholds Decision in 6-Cent Carfare Test Case.

A car conductor of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company should give 6-cent fare receipts without being asked for them by the passengers. This was the opinion of Municipal Judge Rossman in a test case in which five conductors had been served with warrants for not tendering receipts without being requested. Final decision will be handed down later.

The case came up this morning with J. F. Logan appearing for the following conductors, who were charged with violating the ordinance: Wm. W. P. Sareghant, J. E. Stewart, D. Carey and R. J. Phillips.

The warrants were obtained by Police Officer Walter Miller after they had failed to get receipts without asking for them.

Judge Rossman declared his belief that the word "give" in the ordinance, referring to the issuing of receipts, implied that the receipts were to be proffered without the asking.

ITINERARY A PROTEST, BUT NOT REMEDY FOR 6-CENT FARE

Judge McGinn Greeted by Enthusiastic Audience of South Portland Citizens Last Night.

SPEAKER'S WORDS INDORSED

Portland Council Declared Responsible for Six-Cent Fare Being Put Into Effect.

The people over in South Portland have not forgotten how to yell. They proved it Friday night at the Falling school when Judge Henry E. McGinn talked to them about the 6-cent fare, about the repeal of the public service commission and about the city council and Mayor Baker.

"The Portland Railway, Light & Power company will find that there are 280,000 red-blooded American citizens in this town who cannot be handled by it," Judge McGinn told the big audience that had gathered to hear him, and stood like a yell-leader at a football rally, submerged in oceanic applause.

"Franklin T. Griffith may be able to fix the legislature, the council and the public service commission," the judge continued, "but he will find that he cannot fix the 6-cent fare of Portland whose coppers he is taking away, and he had to pause again."

"Good Laws Won't Save Us" "The boys around the company's office have been smiling and saying 'Frank has put another one over on 'em,' but this 6-cent fare outrage is the last one that he will ever put over here," Judge McGinn prophesied, and some stamped their feet in the hall.

"I have voted the best laws in the world," Judge McGinn continued, "but good laws won't save us. If you have a pirate captain and a pirate crew they will scuttle the ship. That's what the matter is with us. We have got a pirate captain in the city hall and a pirate crew, and they let the Portland Railway, Light & Power company and the public service commission scuttle our ship."

Need Seattle Spirit Here "Have you heard anything about a six cent fare in Seattle?" Judge McGinn asked. "You haven't, and you never will. They are hauling the school children out of the city and are even the conductors on the cars are against a six cent fare."

"If they had a bunch of galeots on the Pacific coast, the reason in Seattle who would attempt to put over a six cent fare on that town the people would take them out and throw them in Puget sound. That's what's the matter with Portland. It's a big town here Seattle got started, but they've got the Seattle spirit up there, and down here we've got the Portland grovel."

"We owe it to them to take them by the seat of their pants and the back of their necks and send them out of office. And once more the speaker was stopped in the middle of his sentence while the audience yelled its approval at his suggestion.

Says Council Neglected Duty Judge McGinn told of the contract that existed between the Portland Railway, Light & Power company and the city by which it agreed to charge no more than a five cent fare. He explained that in 1915 and how he helped the Portland Railway, Light & Power company to rob the people of Portland, after they had elected him.

"I said that this is the word," Judge McGinn said. "What is the difference between the man who meets you on the street and, at the point of a gun takes your money from you, and the man who meets you at the entrance of the crime of 1915 and how he helped the Portland Railway, Light & Power company to rob the people of Portland, after they had elected him."

Terms 6 Cent Fare Robbery "If I have at any time said anything about George L. Baker that is not true," he said, "I ought to be in jail and ought to be hanged for it. It is libelous. But what chance did Baker have to represent the people of Portland? What chance did he have to uphold his oath of office that he would uphold the constitution and the laws of the state? It should never be forgotten, if he ever comes before the people again, and if he does I am at the service of the people to remind them of the crime of 1915 and how he helped the Portland Railway, Light & Power company to rob the people of Portland, after they had elected him."

Waste Brings Tears to Wife Most of the military and civilians that have come to Portland to talk war have heard that the wife of a soldier, awake to the terrible gravity of the European struggle. Captain Pequegnat said: "The West seems to be more awake than the East. The American Lake cantonment is the very finest I have seen in this country. I have seen a good deal of food wasted. My wife, who is with me, and who has experienced air raids in the old country, thinks that the people of the United States and Canada, and particularly of the United States, ought to pinch more. She is big-boned, knowing the great need for wheat at the front. She eats but two meals a day. I have found her crying at the spectacle of food waste, and her vivid realization of what are absolutely the vital needs at the scene of war."

Local Division Board No. 1 has notified nine registrants of the quota of 16 apportioned by the adjutant general's office to be ready for entrainment for Camp Lewis not later than March 29. The case was prosecuted by the Oregon fish and game commission. The arrest was made by Deputy Wardens E. H. Clark and J. J. Craig.

Oregon Hotels Are Conserving Food

Reports Received at Office of State Food Administration Show That Most Public Eating Places Doing Splendidly. Hotels and other public eating places throughout Oregon are cooperating with the food administration in a laudable manner, according to reports received by Arthur Churchill of the Oregon food conservation office. Ben A. Bellamy, a traveling man, mentions two hotels which are doing excellent work. The Hotel Enterprise is serving a war bread made as follows: One fifth rice flour, one fifth wheat flour, one fifth oatmeal, one fifth graham, one fifth rye flour. They are made from straight rice flour and cakes from a combination of rice flour and other substitutes, including one fifth wheat flour.

The Sunset hotel of Condon serves 100 meals a day and the total amount of white flour used in January was only 194 pounds. This hotel serves war bread of Roman meal, bran and other ingredients. No wheat flour is used. Baked and boiled potatoes are used instead of fried spuds in order to conserve fats.

SALVATION ARMY TO END DRIVE TONIGHT AT HOTEL PORTLAND

Executive Committee, Officers and Workers to Turn in Reports at 7:30 o'Clock.

"Over the top at 7:30 this evening in the headquarters at Hotel Portland," was the message issued this morning by William Wallace Youngson, general of the Salvation Army war service drive, who expressed the hope that every member of the executive committee, officers, workers and helpers will be present to hear the final returns.

A feature of the closing day is the sale of flowers by the women's teams. The follow-up of the collectors at the Lincoln high school, where Dr. Youngson spoke Wednesday, resulted in $108 from teachers and pupils.

"I have just been waiting for you," said one man who was approached for a subscription, "for what I have to give goes to the Salvation Army. Those people picked me up out of the gutter in 1915 and I was drunk and dirty. They cleaned me up, sobered me up and got me a job and I have tried to go straight ever since, so here's a check for $100."

And woman employed in a laundry, bent and wrinkled with age and hard work, gave the solicitor 75 cents and added: "This is all I have, but I want you to go to the office and get what I have earned this week; I don't know how much it will be, because I work by the piece, but the cashier will give it to you." This the solicitor refused to do, thanking the woman, but telling her the 75 cents was quite enough for her to contribute. Mr. Younger, manager of the Hazelwood, took up a collection among the employees, which will be turned in today. Harriet Leach, the Portland singer who has just returned from a vaudeville tour, offered her service $30, and in two hours collected $150 in the entrance to the Oregon building.
