"In certain parts of Russia a beautiful Easter custom prevails. At the beginning of the day, when the sun is just rising, the people go about the streets and highways greeting each other with the words, 'Christ is risen.' One wonders whether there are any in stricken Russia who will have the heart to observe the custom this year. When people are glad they want to tell others. Joy is social. Nothing charms like joy. The world is sad, but all the world wants joy. This message, 'Christ is risen,' should be often repeated for it contains the secret of Christian joy."
