The grandest operations, both in nature and in grace, are the most silent and unobtrusive. The storm rages and alarms, but the operator who deploys the fog, and the effect is partial and soon remedied; but the dew, though gentle and unobtrusive, is so universal, so all-pervading, that it is the cause of large portions of the earth's—Ocell.

THE INTERNED

FROM an important bank position at Tillamook to a detention camp for the period of the war is the change that befel Hermann Salaro.

And after the war is over, what? Disloyalty to America is the taint which caused Salaro to be interned, and disloyalty to America in her time of need will be a taint that will cling to him after the war is over.

America was kind to this man Salaro. America was a haven to him from which he escaped service in the German army and possible death in the German trenches.

But in spite of it all, he was disloyal to America and loyal to the Kaiser. He spurned the land that gave him hospitality, spurned the people who gave him food and drink.

THE necessity of financing the war has had the good effect of encouraging the habit of saving among the American people. The accumulation of savings banks and postal savings is outstripping the financial demands of the national government.

While exact figures are not yet available it is known that postal savings deposits have steadily gained, notably since the first Liberty loan was floated.

WHY A THIRD LIBERTY LOAN?

ESIDES scores of minor ones, there are five premier reasons for a third Liberty loan. 1-The spirit of Germany in this war is reflected in the utterances of her leaders.

The military masters of Germany look upon war as the means by which Prussianism will gradually extend over and control the world. A German writer boldly declared that Germany's next successful war must be for establishing a greater Germany "on other continents."

By extending their territory through war, by subjugating annexed peoples, by training them for future wars and by constantly pursuing their policy of military efficiency through mechanical resources, the military masters of Germany are convinced that the whole world will ultimately fall under their dominion.

This makes the issue in this war a question of whether self government shall continue in the world or whether it shall be superseded by a military despotism operating from a throne in Berlin.

A third Liberty loan is therefore needed by the United States as a means of defense with which to protect the right of her people to govern themselves.

2-We must, with the aid of our allies, defeat Germany now, or later face the alternative of fighting her alone. In the pan-German propaganda, there is a declaration by a well known German writer that after building up a greater Germany in central Europe with which they can "hold their own" against the masses "in the United States," they must build up a "greater Germany on other continents."

3-We cannot fight without money. This is not a war of mere armies, but a war of nations and national resources. Lloyd George said "the last $300,000,000 may win this war."

This is a war of industrial plants, a war of coal and iron mines, of copper and oil mines. It is a war of men and women working in ammunition factories, in airplane factories, in automobile factories, of men and women working in the forests and in the fields.

4-There is no other way to raise enough money. We have laid a heavy tribute on incomes and excess profits. More than half the income of many Americans is paid into the treasury in war tax.

The richest men pay 63 per cent of their incomes into the United States internal revenue offices as war tax. Some of the corporations which manufacture war material pay more than half their war profits over to the government for support of the war.

5-It is better to fight the war as far as it can be fought with money. The more money we use the fewer lives we shall have to sacrifice.

Stories From Everywhere Eclipsed Made in Germany ON THE evening before a solar eclipse the colonel of a German regiment of infantry sent for all his sergeants, says the Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph, and said to them:

"There will be an eclipse of the sun tomorrow. The regiment will meet on the parade ground, where the colonel will come and superintend the eclipse in person. If the sky is cloudy the eclipse will take place in the drill shed."

Force of Habit "They sent the marine reporter in the absence of the society editor to write up the wedding of the heiress to a foreign nobleman and how do you suppose he reacted?" "How?" "Tied Up to Her Peer."

The New Way to Eat I used to pick a restaurant with very thoughtful care. And with discriminating eye peruse the bill of fare. I liked to let the waiter stand in deferential attitude while I decided what I'd like and what I'd care to pay.

Nothing the Matter With Portland By H. S. Harcourt This is not Dittmer & Briggs, but Dittmer and Briggs, for the latter is Henry Dittmer and Henry L. Briggs, though occupying the same building at 259 East Sixth street, are not partners, and they conduct entirely separate industries.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY Copyright, 1917, by J. Keasop. "THE CALL OF THE JOB"—Women folk in many families from which men have been sent to war will now have to earn their living. This has been a distressing fact for some of the private and officers to reconnoiter the most beneficent necessities which these women have ever faced.
