

PRESIDENT SAYS MOB VIOLENCE IN U. S. MUST STOP

Legislation to Deal With Pro-Hun Activities Proposed as Solution of Serious Menace.

CABINET DISCUSSES MATTER

Present Laws Make It Almost Impossible to Punish Germans Who Seek to Help the Enemy.

Washington, April 6.—(I. N. S.)—Mob violence must be ended. This edict was issued from the White House at the conclusion of the cabinet meeting.

To make it effective, the administration will urge an immediate enactment of the pending legislation which would empower the federal government to deal severely with the several forms of disloyalty.

President Wilson is said to regard the growing tendency of communities to make and execute their own laws to suit the suspicions of the hour as representing a serious menace to the country.

The cause is attributed to existing laws "without teeth" and under which the department of justice has been unable to get convictions in the courts.

The circumstances surrounding the lynching at Collinsville, Ill., of Robert P. Praeger, an alleged pro-German, brought the issue to a head. The incident is declared to be a characteristic example of a disposition by the American people to settle problems in their own way when the laws are inadequate.

The seriousness with which the subject was presented at the cabinet meeting is said to have emphasized the determination of the president to minimize disorders growing out of the exaggerated patriotic impulses such as have developed in various districts recently.

May Ask for New Law
In this connection congress may be asked to enact a statute in addition to the proposed amendments to the espionage act making amenable to the federal government, as well as to the state, all persons who participate in mob violence.

The purpose of the move to amend the espionage law is to suppress the seditious utterances of soap box orators, and make possible the punishment of spies by severe penalties. Newspapers and loyal citizens who have not found the existing law oppressive should have no concern over the desire of the administration for added powers, it was said.

Attorney General Gregory and Postmaster General Burleson remained at the White House with the president for a considerable time after other members of the cabinet had been excused.

On leaving, the attorney general said: "Lynching is not now a violation of any federal statute. The department of justice is prevented in this way from making an example of misguided individuals who blacken the record of the country by organizing mobs and creating disorders."

"Some of the penalties provided in the existing law are absurd. Spies can not be given the punishment such crimes deserve. Only in the most aggravated cases, under the present laws, can the death penalty be invoked for this offense."

Americans Patriotic
Postmaster General Burleson was in entire sympathy with the administration policy. He said:

"Americans are a patriotic people. If they feel the laws are inadequate they will adopt measures of their own. We must take the necessary steps to prevent such disorders before they get beyond bounds. The population of this country is now deeply stirred by war enthusiasm and officers of the law must have authority to prevent this enthusiasm from getting improper direction at times."

"The charge made in the senate Thursday that the pending amendments are intended as a means of infringing on the liberties of the press, are ridiculous."

"I am the authority delegated to administer the present law as it relates to news publication. No complaint of the course I have followed has been sustained in the courts. I have endeavored to be fair and just and the loyal publisher or citizen will have nothing more to fear if the amendments now before congress are passed than exists at the present time."

NEW DODGER OF MILITARY DUTY FOUND

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(I. N. S.)—And now the "slinker" slinks up to take his place alongside the "sneaker" and the "sneaker."

The "slinker," it was said, has appeared in the list of the country proudly attired in uniforms of friendly foreign nations.

As the law covers only unauthorized wearing of United States uniforms, the "slinker" has been able to get by through fostering the impression that he is connected with one of the numerous foreign missions now in this country.

To curb these persons the department of justice, through Senator Chamberlain of Oregon yesterday submitted a bill providing a penalty of $500 and six months imprisonment for any person wearing without authority the uniforms of any nation with which the United States is at peace, or any other regalia designed to deceive.

UNION PACIFIC STARTS SPECIAL DEPARTMENT FOR WOMEN WORKERS

Miss Avis Lobdell Heads Bureau; Will Look After Women's Welfare.

Since the demands of the war have caused a shortage of man power in the offices and shops of the Union Pacific system, President J. D. Farrell has given special attention to the substitution of women in many branches of railway service. To get the best results from the employment of women President Farrell has created a new department, known as the bureau of women's activities. Miss Avis Lobdell has been placed in charge of this department with instructions to investigate the opportunities for congenial, proper and profitable employment for women by the Union Pacific system.

Miss Lobdell has served the Union Pacific system as traveling passenger agent for two years. She was one of the first women passenger agents to be employed in the country. Prior to going into railroad work Miss Lobdell was employed on the editorial staff of The Journal. Her qualifications and excellent record in public especially fit her for handling the work of the new department.

The field covered by the activities of Miss Lobdell's bureau embraces the lines of the Union Pacific system in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. She will look after the interests of the 200 women employed in the general offices in the Wall Street building, in the shops and in the stations out on the line.

Women applicants for employment on the Union Pacific will first be interviewed by Miss Lobdell and referred by her to the department for which they appear to be best adapted.

Social and welfare work among women employees of the Union Pacific in Portland is already well looked after and will not be covered by Miss Lobdell, her bureau being more properly a buffer between the women employees and the heads of departments.

War Emergency Is Declared Good Wind For Old-Time Actor

S. H. Harris Says Theatrical Profession Has Been Drawn on Heavily During the War.

War emergencies have brought out of retirement the old time actor. The changed conditions have thrust again into the spotlight the entertainer who had been considered passe.

This is the statement of Sam Harris of the Ackerman & Harris Hippodrome circuit, who, with his partner, was a Portland visitor today.

"It is an ill wind that does not blow somebody good," he said, "the proof of which is found in present day stage conditions. The old time actor has once more come into his own and once more he is gaining his share of theatrical laurels."

Women Given Every Chance
"The theatrical profession has been drawn upon heavily in the present war. New conditions have developed the stage hero who, in the past, has been his husband and stage partner has enlisted in the military service, is continuing to carry on the histrionic work alone. In every case we are giving the women every opportunity to make good."

That the United States government is receiving a big sum of money from the theatre was tax money, as the statement of Mr. Harris, who says that since November 1, the Portland Hippodrome house has turned over to the federal agents $11,000 in war taxes.

The receipts are said to average $2000 a month. The tax, though paid by the patrons, is turned into a local bank daily to the credit of the government. Careful account of all tax receipts and ticket sales is kept, and these records are furnished the federal officers.

New Houses Leased
Mr. Harris announced that a new theatre is being established at San Jose, Cal., lease was taken on the fact that the theatre building in Los Angeles, the McDonough building at Oakland has been taken over, an addition is being made to the Tacoma house and a lot has been leased at Vancouver, B. C., on which to erect a new playhouse.

The visitors left for San Francisco last night, accompanied by Samuel C. Meyer, assistant manager of the Portland house.

S. F. Paper Claims
Bribe in Bomb Case

San Francisco, April 6.—A San Francisco newspaper Friday claimed to have obtained evidence through Detective Sergeant Thomas Furman, purporting to show that District Attorney Charles M. Fickert indirectly tried to bribe Israel Weinberg, one of the preparedness bomb plot defendants, to make a confession against Thomas Mooney and other defendants in the case.

The paper declares that Detective Furman learned that David Farber, an old friend of the Weinberg family, had gone to Weinberg in his cell and offered him $15,000 or $20,000 in behalf of the committee of rich Jewish people if Weinberg would confess.

Farber, it is alleged, told Weinberg that the offer was from Fickert.

The newspaper declares that it has confirmation of the story from Farber himself, who, however, is quoted as saying his recollection to be that the amount offered was $5000 or $6000.

SCHOOL BOARD WILL INVEST $100,000 OR MORE IN BOND ISSUE

Board Decides School Houses May Be Used for Meetings on Carfare Topic.

Members of the school board of district No. 1 have voted to purchase another batch of Liberty bonds. The sum of $100,000 to $150,000 will be set aside from the sinking fund. At the previous issue the school board bought $150,000 worth of the bonds.

That Judge Henry E. McGinn will be permitted to hold public meetings in school houses to discuss the cent carfare proposition was the decision of the board in refusing to grant the request of Palmer L. Amidon that school houses not be used for this purpose. In a letter filed with the board, Mr. Amidon took exception to certain statements alleged to have been made by Mr. McGinn. The speaker is said to have attacked public officials and the board.

Director Nelson G. Pike was the only member of the board who sided with the view taken by Mr. Amidon. In referring to the committee on educational affairs the request of Mrs. J. S. Dale that a specially prepared book on the Bible be used in the public schools, the directors put off until a later date final action on the request. The Portland Ministerial association will be consulted. According to one member of the ministerial body the appearance of Mrs. Dale at the board meeting was in no wise authorized by the ministers. School Clerk Thomas said "that information had come to the board that if the ministers desired that passages of the Bible be read in the schools they would send an accredited delegation to the board to discuss the matter."

CATTLE OWNER ASKS ADVICE ON SHIPPING TUBERCULAR ANIMALS

W. H. Lytle, State Veterinarian, Receives Letter Questioning Concerning Diseased Cattle.

Salem, Or., April 6.—P. Tensen of Ontario has written to Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian, for advice as to how he can get his tubercular cattle shipped to Portland for slaughter for beef. The federal law prohibits the interstate shipment of diseased cattle, and the railroad between Ontario and Portland passes through a strip of Idaho.

Mr. Tensen says neither the local butchers nor the Boise, Idaho, butchers will buy the cattle because of a prejudice on the part of the people against eating beef from diseased stock.

As the cows are in a fat condition, he says he could have sold them for beef readily if he had not had them tested. Hereafter, he says he will do like other stockmen do, he will ship his cows to market without being tested, and then he will have difficulty. He asserts the present laws work a hardship on a man who wants to keep his herd clean by having the cows tested.

Dr. Lytle advised him that an effort was now being made to get through congress a bill which will permit the interstate shipment of diseased cattle for immediate slaughter and section of the carcasses.

He can then ship them to market. Another suggestion is that he might drive the cows to Huntington and ship from there.

Why Germany's Lost In World's Greatest Battle

"We are at the decisive moment of the war," declared the Kaiser on March 21st as he launched his tremendous armies against fifty miles of the Allied front in France in the greatest battle of this or any war; and on the same day he declared that "the prize of victory must not and will not fail us," and announced warningly that this prize "was no soft peace but one which corresponds with Germany's interests." A week later, when the first ineptus of the colossal onslaught had made a dent twenty-five miles deep in the bending but unbroken battle-line of the Allies, General von Ludendorff, who is said to be the brains of the German General Staff, announced "that victory has been won," and added significantly "but nobody can see what will result from it."

But victory was not won, as the best informed war-writers everywhere remind him. "So long as the battle ends, as there is every prospect that it will end, with our armies and those of our Allies intact and in a position as strong as they have ever occupied, Germany will have failed and failed decisively," declares Major-General McLachlan, Military Attache to the British Embassy at Washington.

Rooms Wanted In Homes for Soldier Boys

Barclay Acheson, assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has issued an appeal to homeowners to list with the association what surplus rooms they may have, that the throng of soldiers expected in Portland for the weekend may be cared for.

Anticipating a large delegation from Camp Lewis as well as from Vancouver barracks, the Y. M. C. A. is making a list of available rooms. Mr. Acheson points out that resort to private homes is only a last possibility, but he wants as many as possible in hand so he can send soldiers there if no other places are available.

Thousands of soldiers will be here for the opening of the third Liberty loan, supplementing those who have been spending their weekends in Portland regularly.
